CONGRESS OPEN

The Second Session of the Fifty-third Congress Opened With the Usual Formalities Today.

President Cleveland's Message Was the Chief Feature and it Was Listened to Very Attentively.

Secretary Carlisle's Plan of Changing the Banking and Currency System Receives the President's Approval.

Grover Favors Decidedly the Putting of Coal and Iron Ore on the Free List.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The opening of the second session of the Fifty-third congress after a recess of three months made the big white marble capitol building a center of interest today. Early in the day the corridors began to fill with the crowd which is always attracted by the assembling of congress. There was added interest owing to the political revolution which had recently occurred. But it was not a struggling mass of humanity such as sometimes marks the great events of congress.

The president's message was to be presented in both houses, and this meant that there could be no sharp debates, as the reading clerks would have the floor for two hours or more during the reading of the message. The crowd seemed to be drawn mainly to the house end of the capitol, as it was here that the recent political storm had made its marks apparent.

The galleries were well filled, though not overcrowded, and the spectators showed an eager interest in the arrival of each conspicuous figure on the floor. Congressional veterans who had spent a good share of their lives in the house of representatives came into it for their final session, the recent tidal wave having retired most of the leaders of the majority. But there were few disconsolate faces among the defeated, and they joined with the members of the minority in good-natured sallies across the middle aisle, which is the political dead line.

Representative Holman, of Indiana, was one of the first to appear. He was greeted warmly by his old friends and then went to his seat and busied himself with the business of the day. Occasionally there was a round of applause as some leader of note made his appearance. The best known ones—Reed, Wilson, Bland and Burrows—were not among the early arrivals, and the galleries wore expectancy until those party favorites put in an appearance.

At the senate there was another crowd which filled the galleries without crowding. A new rule had been put into operation limiting the reserve galleries to the use of those personally introduced by senators instead of those holding cards of admission. The senators were late in arriving, and some of those who had been most conspicuous in recent public events, notably Senator Hill, of New York, were absent. The usual dignity and decorum which marks all senate proceedings kept the galleries from showing their manifestations of approval which marked the opening of the house session.

In the House.

The house was called to order promptly at noon today. At that time the chamber was well filled. Many of the members desks were strewn with flowers, as one of the house wits said "flowers for the living and flowers for the dead." Many of the floral pieces were large and handsome. On the desk of ex-Speaker Reed was an immense floral ship of state sent, as the card attached to it affirmed, by a "protectionist." "Advocate as you have," it read, "protection to American labor, and the ship of state will guide you into a haven of peaceful waters."

On the desk of Representative Linton, of Michigan, was a large floral school house, the compliment of an A. P. A. organization for his championship of the public school system. Many other handsome pieces adorned the desks. On the Democrat side there were flowers for Messrs. Springer, Dunphy, Snodgrass, Cooper, of Florida; Rusk, of Maryland; Layton, of Ohio; Stone and Caruth, of Kentucky; Tracy and Campbell, of New York, while on the Republican side the desks of Messrs. Boutelle, Dingley, Grossvenor, Quigg, Harter, Henderson, of Iowa; Dolliver and Payne were smothered with flowers.

As the hands of the clock pointed to the hour of 12, Speaker Crisp entered the hall from the lobby and ascended the rostrum. A burst of applause signalized his entrance. With several bangs of the gavel the speaker restored order and the second session of the Fifty-third congress began. All the members stood with reverently bowed heads while Rev. Bagby, the chaplain of the house, invoked the divine blessing, and then, in accordance with the rule, the roll was called to officially ascertain the presence of a quorum. As the clerk struggled through the long roll call the members on the floor resumed their coversation and for the next hour the hall fairly hummed with voices.

The Senate.

Promptly at 12 o'clock Vice President Stevenson called the senate to order and Chaplain Milburn, in eloquent terms, offered the opening prayer. He referred feelingly to the critical illness through which the daughter of the president had safely passed.

On motion of Mr. Ransom the secretary of the senate was directed to give the usual notice to the house of representatives that the senate was now ready to proceed to business.

Mr. Harris offered the customary resolution asking a committee be named for the notification of the president that the senate was in session and ready to receive such communications as he might wish to make. On the adoption of the resolution the presiding officer named Messrs. Harris and Manderson as the committee.

Mr. Cockrell, chairman of the committee of appropriations, offered a resolution which was adopted, providing that the daily sessions of the senate begin at 12 noon. The vice president then directed a roll call, which developed the presence of sixty-six senators, considerably more than a quorum. The senate then took a recess until 12:30 p. m., and the senators again moved about the chamber exchanging greetings.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

The Chief Feature is the Plan For Currency Reform.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—At 1:55 p. m. the president's message was received by both branches of congress, and the clerks proceeded to read it, all present listening with close attention.

The message starts out with the statement that "the history of our recent dealings with other nations and our peaceful relations with them at this time additionally demonstrate the advantage of consistently adhering to a firm but just foreign policy, free from envious or ambitious national schemes, and characterized by entire honesty and sincerity." He refers briefly to the urging on the Belgian government of the value of American inspection of food products; calls attention to the Brazilian war, stating that "our firm attitude of neutrality was maintained to the end;" touches briefly on the termination of the commercial arrangement between this country and Brazil; speaks of the selection by both China and Japan of American ministers to protect their citizens in the other country as "a gratifying recognition of the uniform impartiality of this country towards all foreign states."

The Chinese-Japanese War.

The war between China and Japan endangers no policy of the United States, but deserves grave consideration because of the growing commercial relations with those countries and the increased dangers that may result to our citizens domiciled or sojourning in the interior of China. He says further: "Deploring the destructive war between the two most powerful of Eastern nations, and anxious that the safety of our citizens there shall not be jeopardized, I would not hesitate to heed any intimation that our friendly aid for the honorable termination of hostilities would be acceptable to both belligerents."

Regarding the German prohibition of American pork he says: "It is hoped that Germany will soon become convinced that the prohibition is as needless as it is harmful to mutual interests. In view of the German protest, he recommends the repeal of the law imposing a discriminating duty on sugars from countries paying an export bounty thereon, such legislation seeming to be a contravention of treaties.

Among the unsettled questions he includes the question of protection of food fish in the contiguous waters of the United States and the Dominion of Canada, a preliminary examination being in progress. He announces the customary recognition of new governments in the case of Hawaii. A new treaty of commerce and navigation with Mexico is urged, none now being in force. The Bluefields matters is gone over fully, but nothing new stated.

The Finances.

Taking up the finances he says: The secretary of the treasury reports the receipts to this government from all sources of revenue during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1894, amounted to $372,802,498.20 and its expenditures to $442,605,758 87, leaving a deficit of $69,803,260 58. There was a decrease o $15,952,674.66 in the ordinary expenses of the government as compared with the fiscal year '93. There was collected from customs $131,818,530.62 and from internal revenue $147,168,449 70. The balance of the income for the year amounting to $93,615,517 97 was derived from the sales of lands and other sources. The values of our total dutiable imports amounted to $275,199,086, being $146,657,625 less than during the preceding year and the importations free of duty amounted to $379,705,536, being $64,748,675 less than those during the preceding year.

The receipts from customs were $73,536,486 11 less and from internal revenue $13,836,539 77 less than in 1893. The total tax collected from distilled spirits was $85,259,250.25; on manufactured tobacco, $8,617,898 62, and on fermented liquor $31,414,788.04. Our exports of merchandise, domestic and foreign, amounted during the year to $892,140,572, being an increase over the preceding year of $44,495,378. The total amount of gold exported during the fiscal year was $76,898,061, as against $108,680,444 during the fiscal year 1893. The amount imported was $72,449,119 as against $21,174,381 during the previous year. The imports of silver were $13,286,552 and the exports $50,451,265.

The total bounty paid upon the production of sugar in the United States for the fiscal year was $12,100,208.89 being an increase of $2,725,078 01 over the payments during the preceding year. The amount of bounty paid from July 1, 1894, to Aug. 28, 1894, the time when further payments ceased by operation of the law, was $966,185.94. The total expenses incurred in the payment of the bounty upon sugar during the fiscal year was $130,140.85.

A Deficit Expected.

It is estimated that upon the basis of our present revenue laws the receipts of the government during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1895, will be $424,427,748 44 and its expenditures $444,427,748 44 resulting in a deficit of $20,000,000.

On Nov. 1, 1894, the total stock of money of all kinds in the country was $2,240,773 888 as against $2,204,651,000 on Nov. 1, 1893, and the money of all kinds in circulation or not included in the treasury holding was $1,672,093,422 or $24 27 per capita upon an estimated population of 68,887,000. At the same date there was held in the treasury gold bullion amounting to $44,615,177.55 and silver bullion which was purchased at a cost of $127,779,988. The purchase of silver bullion under the act of July 14, 1890, ceased on Nov. 1, 1893, and up to that time there had been purchased during the fiscal year 11,917,658,73 fine ounces at a cost of $8,715,521.62, an average

NOT IN TROUBLE

Bishop Cotter, of Winona, Flatly Denies the Story That Archbishop Ireland is Financially Embarrassed.

The Panic Made it Difficult to Pay the Taxes and Improvements on Diocesan Property.

Two Little Boys Perished in Joe Mitchell's House Which Was Burned at Manistique Yesterday.

Serious Row in a Saloon in St. Paul Which May Result in Joe McAuley's Death.

GREEN BAY, Wis., Dec. 3.—The Gazette publishes an important interview with Bishop Cotter, of Winona. He denies the allegation that Archbishop Ireland is financially embarrassed and the truth of a $500,000 New York loan. Ireland's enemies have been busy charging that his affairs were as bad as the late Archbishop Purcell's, and supported the statements by showing the alleged extent of Ireland's financial speculations.

A pamphlet was prepared by Father Ahern, whom Cotter designated as a filthy ingrate who deceived Ireland and died an object of his and Catholic charity. Ireland's vast property, Cotter said, had all been given to diocesan usages and the panic helped make it difficult to pay the taxes and improvements. But the archbishop's affairs are all right. He will probably soon issue a personal statement showing the state of things in his diocese.

IT MAY BE A MURDER.

Row in a St. Paul Saloon Which May Result Fatally.

ST. PAUL, Dec. 3.—Young Tim Conners is in the county jail and he does not know whether his arraignment for plain assault in the second degree will stand or whether he will be arraigned for murder.

Conners was in a saloon at Fifth and Cedar streets last evening and there was a brawl in which he cut Joe McAuley, who lives at Eleventh and Robert streets. He smashed McAuley over the head with a beer glass and the doctors had to put thirty-two stitches in the scalp.

McAuley is in a critical condition, and the case was continued this morning by Judge Twohy until Thursday in order to await the result of his injuries.

Wisconsin Central Matters.

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 3.—Judge Jenkins issued an order today requiring the Wisconsin Central receivers to pay the Chicago & Northern Pacific receivers $110,000 on account. The Chicago & Northern Pacific receivers were also ordered to intervene in the main suit and to answer the Northern Pacific petition concerning the matter of supplies.

Two Boys Perished.

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 3.—A special to Wisconsin from Manistique, Mich., says: Joe Mitchell's house burned yesterday and two boys, aged 4 and 5 years, perished. Mrs. Mitchell left the children in the house while she called on a neighbor.

More Trouble for Burns.

ST. PAUL, Dec. 3.—Ex-Auditor James H. Burns, already under indictment, was in court today to answer charges of fraud made against him by his mother-in-law, Mrs. Riegel, and the case was continued until Dec. 17, bail being furnished in the sum of $1500.

A Skating Contest.

ST. PAUL, Dec. 3.—In the mile skating contest at Minneapolis last evening between Harley, Davidson and Neilson, the former won with ease in 3:25, skating the last quarter of a mile backwards.

IMPROVING DULUTH HARBOR.

The Amount Asked From Congress by the Secretary of the Treasury.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—[Special to The Herald.]—The estimate of the secretary of the treasury on the amounts required for the support of various government institutions and for carrying on public work during the fiscal year ending June 3, 1896, was of interest to Duluth as follows:

For the support of schools at White Earth Indian agency, $4000; for fulfilling treaties with Chippewas and Pillager bands at White Earth, $22,666; for relief and civilization of the Chippewas in Minnesota, $75,000; for advance of interest to Chippewas to be expended under the direction of the secretary of the interior, $90,000; surveying and allotting for Chippewas in Minnesota, reimbursable, $25,000; for the support of Chippewas at White Earth, $10,000; education of 100 Indian boys at St. John's university and St. Benedict's academy, in Stearns county, $15,000; for establishing post lights in Superior and St. Louis bay, $11,200; for establishing a light station at Hat Point, near Grand Portage, $15,000; improving the harbor at Superior and St. Louis bay, $156,736; for St. Louis river, $18,800; for improvement and repairs to Duluth harbor, $237,323.

Give the Country a Rest.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Republicans do not favor any tariff legislation at this session. Senator Aldrich, of Rhode Island, says that he thinks it will be best to allow matters to rest where they are. "Let the country recover," he added, "and we will see if any further legislation is wanted."

Murder in a Prison.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Dec. 3—Two convicts, John Brady and Jake Rosemeyer, fought in the state prison here today and Brady killed Rosemeyer, beating him to death with a bucket.

ESTIMATES FOR THE YEAR.

Senator Carlisle's Figures For Running the Government For a Year.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The secretary of the treasury today sent to the house of representatives his estimates of appropriations required for the various services for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1896, which aggregate $410,435,079 as against $411,879,041 estimated for the present fiscal year.

Following is a recapitulation of the estimates by departments for 1896, with comparisons with the appropriations for 1895, cents omitted:

Departments.	Estimates, 1896.	Appropriations, 1895.
Legislative	$ 8,336,742	$ 10,377,647
Executive	199,540	194,024
State	1,750,538	2,008,215
Treasury	148,187,281	183,735,362
War	54,855,928	55,286,320
Navy	31,360,886	26,729,592
Interior	158,929,973	178,825,971
Postoffice	65,132,526	2,468,932
Agriculture	2,409,320	3,227,282
Labor	187,470	150,041
Justice	6,724,999	7,730,399
Grand totals	$410,435,079	$515,760,943

The changes of interest in these estimates, as compared with the appropriations for the current fiscal year, are as follows: In the legislative branch: Salaries and expenses are increased about $225,000; public works about $400,000; public printing about $750,000.

Treasury department: Salaries and expenses are increased about $100,000; territorial governments are decreased about $30,000; internal revenue increased $817,100, of which $469,600 is on account of the collection of the income tax provided for by the act of Aug. 28, 1894.

The estimates for public works are nearly $4,000,000 in excess of the present appropriations, of which about $2,000,000 is for the continuation or completion of public buildings.

THIS IS THE TURKISH STORY.

The Troubles in Armenia Claimed to Have Been a Revolution.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The Turkish legation today furnished the Associated Press the following official telegram received by the minister from Turkey relative to the troubles in Armenia:

"It has been ascertained that agitators, originally from Roumania and Greece and recruited in Caucasus, took an important part in the Sassoun rebellion. Following instructions from the London Armenian committee, money is even now subscribed in Caucasus with the view of creating more troubles at Mouch and other places. It was the Armenians of the Talourie district who started the revolt, attacking Musulman villages, the inhabitants of which had great difficulty in sheltering themselves in their winter quarters near Diarbekir.

"Regular troops were immediately sent to the spot. These troops never employed more than seventy or eighty Kurds, who were of the Djaafer tribe, and served as guides in those hilly regions, according to the custom that all armies follow. These facts show that so far from committing any cruelties, the regular troops succeeded in restoring peace and order.

"A further proof that there was no persecution of any sort is evidenced by the fact that peaceful Armenian villages, not partaking of the revolutionary movement, although surrounded by the villages the inhabitants of which were in open revolt, were left in perfect security and unmolested during and after the military operations."

TO PUT A CURB ON KOLB.

Bill in the Alabama Legislature to Prevent a Dual Government.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Dec. 3.—A bill introduced in the house today by Representative Knight, of Hale, is intended to put a stop to Kolb's performances and prevent all possible danger of a dual government.

Briefly the bill makes it a crime punishable by fine and imprisonment for any person to take the oath of office and attempt to discharge the duties of such office without first having been declared elected thereto by the person or body having authority to so declare the result.

It makes the penalty for violating any of its provisions a fine of not less than $500 and not more than $10,000, and the offender shall be imprisoned in the penitentiary of this state for not more than twenty-five years.

There is little doubt that the bill will become a law. Its introduction in the house at this time, when there is so much hot blood on both sides, created a sensation and great indignation among the Populist members.

TO RELIEVE THE SETTLERS.

Bill Before Congress to Relieve Sufferers by the Forest Fires.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—[Special to The Herald.]—Representative Lynch, of Wisconsin, has prepared a bill which he will introduce in a few days to relieve the settlers who were burned out during the disastrous fires in the Northwest last summer.

This bill will permit homesteaders to either prove up their claims earlier than the date prescribed by law, or else pre-empt them. In this case they could cut and use the timber, which they cannot do at the present time, and which being partly burned would go to waste if not cut immediately.

CAMPBELL TO BE CONFIRMED.

No Opposition to the New Marshal Appears in the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—[Special to The Herald.]—The report sent to the Northwest from Washington that W. M. Campbell will be defeated for confirmation by the senate for United States marshal is not correct.

There is no apparent organized effort to knock Campbell out. It is a ten to one shot that he will be confirmed when the senate takes his case under advisement.

Petroleum Train Burned.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 3.—A petroleum train which was derailed near Morshansk, about sixty miles of Tambov, caught fire. Three of the railroad officials were burned to death and several others were killed or severely injured.

RELIEF NEEDED

A Matter of Great Importance to St. Louis County to Come Before the Next Legislature.

Steps to be Taken to Reduce the Royalty on Ore from the State Lands.

Proceedings Also to be Begun to Reduce the Ore Rate on the Two Railroads.

Unless Such Relief Can be Obtained, Independent Operators on the Mesaba Cannot Continue Work.

ST. PAUL, Dec. 3.—[Special to The Herald.]—The Pioneer Press publishes today a lengthy dispatch from Duluth in regard to a matter of great importance to St. Louis county and to the entire state, which is to be brought up before the next session of the legislature. It is proposed to make a radical change in the terms of the state mineral land leases. It is claimed that in view of the present condition of the iron ore industry the independent operators on the Mesaba range are unable to compete with the two great corporations, the Rockefeller syndicate and the Minnesota Iron company, or with the operators on the Michigan and Wisconsin ranges.

The fact is cited that the Rockefeller syndicate sold ore in Cleveland this year at $2.10, and that it is impossible for the operators on state mineral lands to sell at such a figure, except at a heavy loss. The Oliver Mining company shipped 500,000 tons of ore from the Oliver mine this year, paying the state royalties amounting to $125,000 and it lost $30,000. The men composing the company own furnaces in the East, and they could have purchased ore there 20 cents a ton cheaper than they could mine it and ship it from their own property to the docks at Cleveland. The reason was that they had to pay a heavy royalty to the state, when the Rockefeller syndicate took its ore from the Mountain Iron mine, which is a fee property, and had no royalty to pay on it. This gave the syndicate an advantage of 25 cents a ton to start with. Then the Oliver company paid 80 cents a ton to the Rockefeller syndicate for transporting the ore from the mine to the docks at Duluth over the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road, which is owned by the syndicate. This made a total of $400,000 paid for transportation to Duluth. The syndicate's railway made a net profit of at least $160,000 on this ore. It is estimated that the road nets at least 52 cents on every ton of ore that it carries from the mine to Duluth. Thus the syndicate has an advantage of 77 cents over the miner on state lands when the ore has reached Duluth. The result is that further production by independent operators will be abandoned, and the two great corporations—for what has been said of the Rockefeller syndicate is also true of the Minnesota Iron company so far as profits are concerned—will absolutely control both the Mesaba and Vermilion ranges and will crowd out all competitors.

These corporations can so manage the production that the state will derive practically no revenue from its rich mineral lands. They will work the fee mines only and suspend operations on the lands leased from the state. They can easily do this, as the present state law merely provides that the lessee shall pay annually 25 cents a ton on a minimum output of 5000 tons. The two corporations consequently can hold each lease by paying $125 a year to the state, and take the ore from their fee properties on which they will not have any royalty to pay. Thus the Oliver mine, if abandoned by the company now operating it, would yield a revenue of only $125 to the state next year, instead of $125,000, which was paid into the state treasury. This shows how important the question is to the state at large.

The forty acres on which the Oliver mine is located paid as much into the state treasury as was contributed in taxes by three average agricultural counties. It is to the interest of the state to encourage the production of ore on state lands, so that the revenue therefrom may be increased instead of diminished. With this object in view it is proposed to introduce a bill at the common session of the legislature providing that the royalty be reduced from 25 to 15 cents on ore mined on state lands and further providing that the minimum annual output shall be 50,000 or 100,000 tons instead of 5000 tons as at present. This would afford relief to the operators on state lands who are trying to compete with the two great corporations alluded to and at the same time would assure to the state a much larger revenue that it now receives from this source.

In the second place, a movement is to be made to throw off the impediment to the development of independent mines which now exists in the shape of extortionate ore carrying rates now charged by the Duluth and Iron Range road and the Duluth, Missabe and Northern road, each owned by the two great iron corporations which are now rapidly gaining control of the entire Minnesota ranges and are in a fair way of amalgamating at an early date into one gigantic monopoly. It is proposed to take steps which will compel these roads to make a fair and reasonable rate for carrying ore to the docks at Duluth or Two Harbors. The rate now is 80 cents a ton. This gives the roads a net profit of at least 52 cents a ton, probably 60 cents in the case of the Missabe road. It is claimed that 50 cents a ton would be a fair and reasonable rate, and an effort will be made to have the existing rate reduced to that figure.

This is it.

This is the new shortening or cooking fat which is so fast taking the place of lard. It is an entirely new food product composed of clarified cotton seed oil and refined beef suet. You can see that Society Women as Editors.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 3.—The society women of San Francisco have adopted a novel plan to raise money for the support of a ward for incurables at the children's hospital. They are going to edit the Christmas edition of the Examiner. W. R. Hearst, proprietor of the paper, has agreed to turn over the whole newspaper plant to them and they are going to write every line of the paper. The entire proceeds of the Christmas edition of the Examiner will be turned over to ladies to be used for the support of the children's hospital.

Theatrical People Arrested.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 3.—Tonight Rev. Charles Work, of the First Presbyterian church, accompanied by the Rev. Charles Pelton, agent of the municipal reform society, went to Havlin's theater, stayed long enough to qualify themselves as witnesses, then went on the street and requested a policeman to arrest the performers. He refused. They then made the same request of police headquarters and were refused. Havlin's performers and the performers at all other Sunday theaters were subjected to the regular Sunday night arrest after the performance.

The Swift Comet.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 3.—Recent observations at the Mount Lowe observatory indicate that the Edward Swift comet, discovered by the son of Professor Swift at that observatory on Tuesday evening, Nov. 20, may turn out to be the famous lost comet discovered by Devico at Rome, Aug. 22, 1844, just half a century ago.

A Challenge Posted.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—As a refutation of the fake interviews published in the United States through the United Press today, in which persons classed as "Lord Dunraven's yachting friends" were reported as saying that no challenge for the America's cup would be sent this year, the secretary of the royal yacht quadron, Richard Grant, telegraphs to the Associated Press this afternoon from Cowes, Isle of Wight, that a challenge for the America's cup was posted last night.

A DECIDEDLY UNSEEMLY AFFAIR.

Peculiar Conduct of a Florida Hotel Keeper Causes Some Excitement.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 3.—The people of Crescent City, Fla., a village seventy-four miles south of Jacksonville, are wrought up over the conduct of A. A. Calhoun, proprietor of the Hotel Morrow. About five weeks ago, Frank Bateman, a young man of 19, in the last stages of consumption, and hailing from Galesburg, Ill., put up at the hotel, paying his bill in advance. Ten days ago, he began to fail and a few days ago died. His brother-in-law, Arkell of Bloomington, Ill., had been telegraphed for and arrived to take charge of the remains but brought only sufficient money to meet his personal expenses, as the boy had an income. However the weekly allowance of the deceased had not arrived and as the family was known by one of the guests, undertaker and landlord were asked to wait for their money till the body had reached its destination at Galesburg.

The undertaker and physician acquiesced, but the hotelkeeper flew into a passion and swore that neither the remains nor any of its belongings should be moved till the board was paid and at once swore out an attachment on the dead body. A gentleman present offered his diamond ring in security, but it was refused.

To end the unseemly affair, a resident named Miller, formerly a newspaper man of Toronto, Ont., gave his check in payment and the body was removed. Young Bateman was highly connected and his father, now deceased, was once a member of congress from Illinois and was largely interested in mining property.

SPRECKELS' LARGE CHECK.

The Sugar King Drew a Check on Saturday for $1,500,000.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 3.—Considerable interest has been aroused here over the check for $1,500,000 which Claus Spreckels, the sugar king, drew Saturday on the Nevada bank. The check was made payable to the California bank, and it was thought that possibly Mr. Spreckels had transferred his account from one bank to the other.

Mr. Spreckels said today that was not the case; that he still had a large deposit at the Nevada bank. When asked how large that deposit was, Mr. Spreckels said he thought he could draw several checks without exhausting his account. He refused to say what the check was for, but intimated that it was to purchase some of the new issue of government bonds for which the Bank of California had subscribed $800,000.

Prominent Virginian Dead.

He was a young literateur here in the days of Edgar Allen Poe, whom he knew well.

cost of .7313 per fine ounce. The total amount of silver purchased from the time that the law took effect until the repeal of its purchasing clause on the date last mentioned was 168,674,682.53 fine ounces, which cost $155,031,002.25, the average price per fine ounce being .9244.

The total amount of standard silver dollars coined at the mints of the United States since the passage of the act of Feb. 28, 1878, is $421,776,108, of which $378,166,793 were coined under the provisions of that act, $38,531,143 under the provisions of the act of July 14, 1890, and $5,078,472 under the act providing for the coinage of trade dollar bullion. The total coinage of all metals at our mints during the last fiscal year consisted of 63,485,220 pieces valued at $166,216,730,-00, of which there were $99,474,912.50 in gold coined, $758 in standard silver dollars, $6,924,140.30 in subsidary silver coin and $716,919 26 in minor coin.

Gold and Silver Production.

During the calendar year, 1893, the production of precious metals in the United States was estimated at 1,739,323 fine ounces of gold of the commercial and coinage value of $35,955,000 and 60,000,000 fine ounces of silver of the bullion or market value of $46,820,000 and of the coinage value of $77,576,000. It is estimated that on the first day of July, 1894, the stock of metallic money in the United States, consisting of coin and bullion, amounted to $1,251,640,958, of which $627,923,201 was gold and $624,347,757 was silver. Fifty national banks were organized during the year ending Oct. 31, 1894, with a capital of $5,285,000, and seventy-nine with a capital of $10,475,000 went into voluntary liquidation. Twenty-one banks with a capital of $2,770,000 were placed in the hands of receivers. The total number of national banks in existence on Oct. 31 last was 3756, being forty less than on Oct. 31, 1893. The capital stock paid in was $672,671,365, being $9,678,491 less than at the same time the previous year and the surplus fund and undivided profits, less expenses and taxes paid, amounted to $334,-121,082.10 which was $16,089,780 less than on Oct. 31, 1893. The circulation decreased $1,741,563. The obligations of the banks to each other were increased $117,268,334 and the individual deposits were $277,294,489 less than at the corresponding date the previous year. Loans and discounts were $161,206,923 more than at the same time of the previous year, and checks and other cash items were $99,340,963 more. The total resources of the banks at the date mentioned amounted to $3,473,922,055 as against $3,109,563 284 in 1893.

The War Department.

From the report of the secretary of war it appears that the strength of the army on Sept. 30, 1894, was 2135 officers and 25,765 enlisted men. He recites various items from the secretary of war's report, already published, endorsing recommendations therein made. The year has been free from disturbances by Indians, and the chances of further depredations on their part are becoming more remote and improbable. He recommends the revival of the military grade of lieutenant general, and that it be conferred on Gen.-in-Chief Schofield, who soon retires.

He commends the attorney general's suggestion that another judge in each circuit for the court of appeals would strengthen those courts. Various other recommendations of the same official are endorsed.

The postmaster general's report is reviewed and his recommendations regarding second class matter favored. He particularly calls attention to the suggestion of the postmaster general that in the near future all legitimate newspapers and periodicals might be properly transmitted through the mails to their subscribers free of cost.

The Navy.

The report of the secretary of the navy shows very gratifying progress in the construction of ships for our new navy. The estimates for building ships is large for the next year, but unless more new ships are ordered by congress the expense for the following year will be much reduced. He thinks it necessary, however, to increase both the number of battle ships and torpedo boats. He recommends that provision be made for such vessels.

The report of the secretary of the interior exhibits the situation of the numerous and interesting branches of the public service connected with the department. I commend this report and the valuable recommendation of the secretary to the careful attention of the congress. The public land disposed of during the year amounted to 10,406,-100.77 acres, including 28,876 05 of Indian lands. It is estimated that the public domain still remaining amounts to a little more than 600,000,000 acres excluding, however, about 360,000,000 acres in Alaska as well as military reservations and railroad and other selections of land yet unadjudicated.

The total cash receipts from the sale of lands amounted to $2,674,285.79, including $91,981 03 received from the sale of Indian lands. Thirty-five thousand patents were issued to Indians on allotments of their holdings in severalty, the land so allotted being unalienable by the Indian allottees for a period of twenty-five years after patent. There were certified and patented on account of railroad and wagon road grants during the year 865,536.45 acres of land, and at the close of the year 29,000,000 acres were embraced in the lists of selections made by railroad and wagon road companies and awaited settlement.

Swamp Lands.

The selections of swamp lands and that taken as indemnity therefor since the passage of the act providing for the same in 1849 amount to nearly or quite 80,500,000 acres, of which 59,000,000 have been patented to the states. About 138,-000 acres were patented during the last year. Nearly 820,000 acres of school and education grants were approved during the year and at its close 125,036,381 acres remained unadjusted. It appears that the appropriation of the current year on account of special service for the protection of the public lands and the timber thereon is much less than those for previous years and inadequate for an efficient performance of the work. A larger sum of money than has been appropriated during a number of years past on this account has been returned to the government as a result of the efforts of those employed in their particular service mentioned, and I hope it will not be crippled by an insufficient appropriation.

I fully endorse the recommendation of the secretary that adequate protection be provided for our forest reserves and that a comprehensive forestry system be inaugurated. Such keepers and superintendents as are necessary to protect the forest already reserved should be provided. I am of the opinion that there should be an abandonment of the policy sanctioned by present laws under which the government for a very small consideration is rapidly losing title to immense tracts of land covered with timber which should be properly reserved as permanent sources of timber supply.

The suggestion that a change be made in the manner of securing surveys of the public lands is especially worthy of consideration. I am satisfied that these surveys should be made by a corps of competent surveyors under the immediate control and direction of the commissioner of the general land office.

Land Office Contests.

An exceedingly important recommendation of the secretary relates to the manner in which contests and litigated cases growing out of efforts to obtain government land are determined. The entire testimony upon which these controversies depend in all their stages is taken before the local registers and receivers, and yet these officers have no power to subpoena witnesses or to enforce their attendance to testify. These cases, numbering 3000 or 4000 annually, are sent by the local officers to the commissioner of the general land office for his action. The exigencies of his other duties oblige him to act upon the decisions of the registers and receivers without an opportunity of thorough personal examination.

Nearly 2000 of these cases are appealed annually from the commissioner to the secretary of the interior. Burdened with other important administrative duties his determination of these appeals must be almost perfunctory and based upon the examination of others, though this determination of the secretary operates as a final adjudication upon rights of very great importance. I concur in the opinion that the commissioner of the general land office should be released from the duty of deciding litigated cases, that a non-partisan court should be created to pass on such cases, and that the decisions of this court should be final, at least so far as the decisions of the department are now final.

The condition of the Indians shows a healthy progress but he questions the policy of too speedy giving lands in severalty, the Indians not being sufficiently civilized to handle farms successfully in times when experienced whites have difficulty in making expenses on farms. He is convinced the solution of the Indian problem depends on the honesty of the agents and the interest they feel in the work. Indications are that the detail of army officers for the purpose will result in improved management of the reservations. He agrees with the secretary of the interior in the disposition of lands adjacent to Indian allotments. The Indians' school work shows good results and advancement.

The number of pensioners increased 3532 during the year. He calls attention to the statement of the commissioner of pensions that after next year the pension list must begin to decline, thirty years having passed since the close of the war. The unearthing of pension frauds proves the necessity for the purging of the pension rolls.

The completion of the census is now in the hands of the commissioner of labor. The report of the secretary of agriculture is recapitulated and its recommendations approved.

Civil Service Reform.

He says: "The advantage to the public service of an adherence to the principles of civil service reform is constantly more apparent and nothing is so encouraging to those in official life who honestly desire good government as the appreciation by our people of these advantages."

He strongly favors a national board of health with proper authority for quarantine. Regarding the strike commission's report, he says: "Their work has been well done and their standing and intelligence give assurance that the report and suggestions they make are worthy of careful consideration."

He favors decidedly the putting of coal and iron ore on the free list and urges the abolition of the differential duty on refined sugar. The revival of the shipping interests is urgent and action looking to that end advised. He therefore recommends the prompt repeal of the law preventing the American register of foreign built vessels.

The Gold Reserve.

After reciting the causes and method of issuing the new bonds for the replenishing of the gold reserve, he says: "Nothing could be worse or further removed from sensible finance than the relations existing between the currency the government has issued, the gold held for its redemption and the means which must be resorted to for the purpose of replenishing such redemption fund when impaired. Even if the claims upon this fund were confined to the obligations originally intended, and if the redemption of these obligations meant their cancellation, the fund would be very small. But these obligations when received and redeemed in gold are not cancelled but are reissued and may do duty many times by way of drawing gold from the treasury. Thus we have an endless chain in operation constantly depleting the treasury's gold and never near a final rest. As if this was not bad enough we have, by a statutory declaration that it is the policy of the government to maintain the parity between gold and silver, aided the force and momentum of this exhausting process and added largely to the currency obligations claiming this peculiar gold redemption.

Our small gold reserve is thus subject to drain from every side. The demands that increase our danger also increase the necessity of protecting this reserve against depletion, and it is most unsatisfactory to know that the protection afforded is only a temporary palliation. It is perfectly and palpably plain that the only way under present conditions by which this reserve when dangerously depleted can be replenished, is through the issue and sale of the bonds of the government for gold, and yet congress has not only thus far declined to authorize the issue of bonds best suited to such a purpose, but there seems a disposition in some quarters to deny both the necessity and power for the issue of bonds at all. Of the questions in that line, he says:

"Prominent among them are the lack of elasticity in our currency circulation and its frequent concentration in financial centers, when it is most needed in other parts of the country. The absolute divorcement of the government from the business of banking is the ideal relationship of the government to the circulation of the currency of the country. This condition cannot be immediately reached, but as a step in that direction and as a means of securing a more elastic currency and obviating other objections to the present arrangement of bank circulation, the secretary of the treasury presents in his report a scheme modifying the present banking laws and providing for the issue of circulating notes by state banks free from taxation under certain limitations.

Secretary Carlisle's Plan.

"The secretary explains his plan so plainly and its advantages are developed by him with such remarkable clearness that any effort on my part to present an argument in its support would be superfluous. I shall therefore content myself with an unqualified endorsement of the secretary's proposed changes in the law and a brief and imperfect statement of this prominent feature. It is proposed to repeal all laws providing for the deposit of United States bonds as security for circulation, to permit national banks to issue circulating notes not exceeding in amount 75 per cent of this their paid up and unimpaired capital, provided they deposit with the government as a guarantee fund in United States legal tender notes, including treasury notes of 1890, a sum equal in amount to 30 per cent of the notes they desire to issue, this deposit to be maintained at all times, but whenever any bank retires any part of its circulation a proportionate part of its guarantee fund shall be returned to it. The secretary of the treasury shall prepare and keep on hand ready for issue, in case an increase in circulation is desired, the blank national bank notes desired, blank national bank notes for each bank having circulation, and the provisions of the present law should be repealed which impose limitations and restrictions upon banks desiring to reduce or increase their circulation, thus permitting such increase or reduction within the limit of 75 per cent of the capital to be quickly made as emergencies arise.

A Safety Fund.

In addition to the guarantee fund required, it is proposed to provide a safety fund for the immediate redemption of the circulating notes of failed banks by imposing a small annual tax, say one-half of 1 per cent, upon the average circulation of each bank, until the fund amounts to 5 per cent of the total circulation outstanding. When a bank fails, its guarantee fund is to be paid into this safety fund and its notes are to be redeemed in the first instance from such safety fund thus augmented, any impairment of such fund caused thereby to be made good from the immediately available cash assets of said bank, and if these should be insufficient, such impairment to be made good by a pro rata assessment among the other banks, their contributions constituting a first lien upon the assets of the failed bank in favor of the contributing banks.

As a further security it is contemplated that the existing provision fixing the individual liability of stockholders is to be retained and the bank's indebtedness on account of its circulating notes is to be made a first lien on all its assets. For the purpose of meeting the expense of printing notes, official supervision, cancellation and other like charges there shall be paid a tax, say one-half of 1 per cent per annum, on the average amount of notes in circulation. It is further provided that there shall be no national bank notes issued of less denomination than $10; that each national bank, except in case of a failed bank, shall redeem or retire its notes in the first instance at its own office or at agencies to be designated by it and that no fixed reserve need be maintained on account of deposits.

The State Banks.

Another very important feature of the plan is the exemption of state banks from taxation by the United States, in cases where it is shown to the satisfaction of the secretary of the treasury and the comptroller of the currency by banks claiming such exemption that they have not had outstanding their circulating notes exceeding 75 per cent of their paid up and unimpaired capital; that their stockholders are individually liable for the redemption of their circulating notes to the full extent of their ownership of stock; that the liability of said banks upon their circulating notes constitutes under their state law a first lien upon their assets; that such banks have kept and maintained a guarantee fund in United States legal tender, including treasury notes of 1890, equal to 30 per cent of their outstanding circulating notes, and that such banks have promptly redeemed their circulating notes when presented at their principal or branch offices.

"It is quite likely that this scheme may be usefully amended in some of its details, but I am satisfied it furnishes a basis for a very great improvement in our present banking and currency system."

Harper's Magazine

"The Simpletons," a new novel by Thomas Hardy, will be begun in the December Number, 1894, and continued to November, 1895. Whoever may be one's favorite among English novelists, it will be conceded by all critics that Thomas Hardy stands foremost as a master artist in fiction, and "The Simpletons" may be expected to arouse enthusiasm not inferior in degree to that which has marked "Trilby"—the most successful story of the year. Among leading features will be the "Personal Recollections of Joan of Arc," by the Sieur Louis de Conte, Her Page and Secretary, under which guise the most popular of living American magazine writers will present the story of the Maid of Orleans. In the January Number will appear a profusely illustrated paper on "Charleston and the Carolinas," the first of a series of Southern Papers.

Northern Africa is attracting more attention than at any other time since it was the seat of empires. The next volume of HARPER'S MAGAZINE will contain four illustrated articles on this region, and three of them will depict the present life there. Julian Ralph will prepare for the MAGAZINE a series of eight stories, depicting typical phases of "Chinese Life and Manners." Besides the long stories, there will begin in the January Number the first chapters of "A Three-Part Novelette," by Richard Harding Davis—the longest work yet attempted by this writer. Complete short stories by popular writers will continue to be a feature of the MAGAZINE.

WEST DULUTH ITEMS.

Difficult Operation Performed by Five Physicians Upon Mrs. G. H. George on Saturday Afternoon.

Mrs. McAdams' Thanksgiving Dinner for Her Friends Turned Out to be a Wedding Feast.

She Was Quietly Married on Saturday to John G. Krebs, a Popular West Duluth Man.

Doctors Graham, Keyes, Burnside, Huntoon and R. Graham performed a critical operation upon Mrs. G. H. George on Saturday. The disease was the formation of tubercules upon the intestines. The operation is one of the most dangerous attempted in medical surgery. It was successfully accomplished and the patient who could have no hopes of life without this treatment is reported as doing nicely. Drs. Huntoon, Keyes and Graham also performed a somewhat serious operation upon a young lad yesterday, with success.

WAS A WEDDING FEAST.

A Supposed Thanksgiving Dinner Became a More Pleasant Event.

Mrs. McAdams invited a few friends to her residence in the Munger row, West Duluth, for a Thanksgiving dinner yesterday afternoon. When, however, the guests arrived they were surprised to learn that Mrs. McAdams had been quietly married on Saturday to John G. Krebs, one of West Duluth's popular business men, and what was intended for a Thanksgiving dinner was in reality the wedding feast. An elaborate feast was served at 5 o'clock and a reception held from 7 to 9 in the evening. Dr. Kenney and Mr. Wright both proposed toasts and made complimentary speeches to the bride and groom, and the guests extended congratulations. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Holding, Mr. and Mrs. Wood, Duluth; Mr. and Mrs. Jamison, Mr. and Mrs. Flick, Mr. and Mrs. Towner, Misses Dockey, Morgan and Eitel and Messrs. Kenney, Wright, Olund and Green.

ACCIDENT ON THE DIXON.

Va've Blew Out and the Escaping Steam Was Dangerous.

The steamer Dixon is in trouble. Friday night, eight miles below Grand Marais. She blew out a valve. The crew in the hold had to scramble out and hang onto the fenders to keep from being scalded with the escaping steam. A boat was sent to Grand Marais for relief but a small tug had to be launched and fitted out before the steamer could be towed into Grand Marais.

Today, a little steam launch reached Duluth with news of the accident and a tug was sent out to tow the disabled vessel back here. Had Friday night been rough instead of calm, the steamer in her disabled condition most likely would have gone to the bottom or been driven on to some rocky point.

BAD COUGH, SPIT UP BLOOD,—CONSUMPTION.

MR. K. C. MCLIN.

K. C. McLIN, ESQ., of Kempsville, Princess Anne Co., Va., writes: "When I commenced taking your 'Discovery' I was very low with a cough, and at times spit up much blood. I was not able to do the least work, but most of the time was in bed. I was all run-down, very weak, my head was dizzy, and I was extremely despondent. The first bottle I took did not seem to do me much good, but I had faith in it and continued using it until I had taken fifteen bottles, and now I do not look nor feel like the same man I was one year ago. People are astonished, and say, 'well, last year this time I would not have thought that you would be living now.' I can thankfully say I am entirely cured of a disease which, but for your wonderful 'Discovery,' would have resulted in my death."

THE FEELING WAS BULLISH.

Strong Cables Kept up Prices in the Wheat Market Today.

Wheat was fairly active and ruled firm for the most part on the Duluth board today. Much of the news was decidedly bearish, but the effect of it was partially offset by some unfavorable factors which were developed. The early cables were strong and the later ones confirmed the other advance. Stocks in Liverpool showed another decrease and there was more talk of the bad crop outlook in Argentine. Antwerp, which reported Saturday that too crop there would be 16,000,000 bus more than last year, corrected the statement saying that the message should have read 16,000,000 bus decrease. The receipts in the Northwest were more than 100 cars greater than the same day last year. All the late private cables were higher than the public ones and indicated a very bullish situation abroad. The expectation that the government report on feeding, which will be out Wednesday, would be very bullish, helped the market.

May wheat started here at 62¾c, which was ⅛c higher than Saturday's close. This gain was lost by 11 o'clock. Then the market firmed up and the price advanced to 62¾c by noon. After noon it ruled firm and sold up to 62⅝c. Nearly all the trading in futures was in May and it was of good volume. Only a few trades were reported in December. A fair business was done in cash stuff, the mills taking about 15,000 bus at ⅛c premium and the elevators absorbing the rest. The close was ⅛c higher all round than Saturday. Following were the closing prices:

No. 1 hard, cash, 61½c; December, 61¼c; May, 63¾c; July, 64¾c. No. 1 northern cash, 60c; December, 59¾c; May, 62¾c; July, 63¾c. No. 2 northern cash, 57c. No. 3, 51c. Rejected 51c. To arrive—No. 1 northern, 60c. No. 1 hard, 61½c. Rye, 45c. No. 2 oats, 31½c; No. 3 oats, 30½c. Barley, 41@48c.

Car inspection today—Wheat 266, oats 7, flax 2, barley 11. Receipts—Wheat, 175,365 bus; oats, 12,908 bus; rye, 868 bus; flax, 911 bus; barley, 3016 bus. Shipments—Wheat, 101,379 bus; flax, 1180 bus; barley, 20,377 bus.

Gossip.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker. Room 107, Chamber of Commerce.

The good buying of wheat was continued this morning, notwithstanding the bearish news that was circulated. The very strong cables was about the only news in the bears' favor, during the first half of the session but they had plenty of it during the last half. Wheat on passage increased 1,832,000 bus. The visible supply increased 1,215,000 bus against an increase of 308,000 bus last year. Clearances for the day aggregated 165,000 bus. The English visible decreased 1,426,000 bus last week. A cablegram from Argentine says the crop has been damaged so it will not yield over 70 per cent of a crop. The bulls have complete control and will not release their hold until prices are marked considerably higher. The big short interest is getting unwieldy and they are liable to run to cover any moment. We believe there will be 5 cents per bushel in wheat around these prices

Corn and oats strong but not active. The corn visible increased 1,026,000 bus. Oats increased 545,000 bus. We believe in the long side of corn on reactions. Provisions strong and higher.

THE HARVARD DUMMY

The Odd New Tackling Machine Which Has Been Devised for Training Her Football Players.

It Weighs Two Hundred Pounds and Doesn't Complain When Brought to Earth Very Hard.

Good Tackling an Art That May Only be Acquired by Long and Faithful Practice.

Every football player, in order to gain a place on the coveted team that will be the cynosure of so many eyes for months, must be able to tackle well. It may seem a simple thing to the uninitiated, but good tackling is an art that may only be acquired by long and faithful practice. When a player of the opposing side comes bounding down the field, with the oval ball securely clasped to his breast, it is far from an easy task to clutch his flying legs in a viselike grip that nothing can break and drop him in his tracks like a thousand of brick. He must be tackled low, or he will be able to struggle along a few yards with the player clinging to him. He must be tackled hard, must be stopped at the very point the strong, young arms grip him, for even the gain of a yard after the tackling is done may swell the total gain for the run to five yards and allow the enemy to remain in possession of the ball.

For some time past the members of the big elevens practiced tackling the substitute players. This was a great scheme for every one concerned except the luckless fellow who was tackled while at full speed and brought into violent contact with the hard bosom of Mother Earth. This method of tackling in practice was like the experience of the boys and the frogs they industriously stoned—it was great fun for the boys, but death to the frogs. So many valuable substitutes were badly injured that the wiseacres of football, the men who do the coaching and endeavor to keep down the size of the players' heads, looked about them for some machine that would in a measure at least take the place of a live runner. Harvard has at last hit upon a contrivance that is said to be of value. The machine is thus described by a Boston writer:

"There are the two perpendicular posts, connected at the top by a horizontal bar, from which is suspended by a rope on a pulley block the dummy or imitation man.

"This dummy is nothing but a heavy mattress about as big around as a stout man. It hangs a couple of feet above the ground. Near the top, five feet from the ground, is a shoulder, which projects out over the lower part of the dummy nearly a foot. It is so big that a tackler could not possibly get his arms around it. It is, moreover, hard enough so that the fellow does not care to strike it with his shoulder. The object of this ugly projection is to make the player tackle low. If the runner is caught anywhere above the waist, it is hard to down him in his tracks, while if he is held firmly by the legs his powers of locomotion are gone, and he comes down. The only remaining thing to look out for is his momentum. If a 6 footer falls forward his length, he gains two yards, and two yards gained on each rush would mean six yards in three rushes, so that the side with the ball could still have possession.

"The tackling machine provides to give men practice in overcoming this momentum by its weight. If a tackler can abruptly stop 200 pounds when swinging back and forth, he is pretty sure to be able to down a half back who weighs no more than 150 or 160 pounds. When practicing for downing a man in his tracks, the tackler makes a dive for the dummy, catching it low, well below the projecting shoulder. An attendant who has hold of the rope by which the dummy hangs lets the rope go loose, and the tackler throws the dummy where it is. To be sure, the man would make a struggle. But the dummy weighs enough more than a half back, so that the more resistance of weight makes it difficult to throw the dummy.

"Training in tackling for the side is also easy to obtain. The dummy is set to swinging in a direction at right angles with the direction in which the tackler will have to grasp it. As it swings by him swiftly the tackler makes a dash for it. He does not let go, but clings to it until he brings it to a standstill. The more quickly he does this the better is considered his tackle.

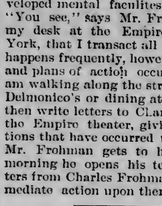

"When tackling to catch the runner from behind, the dummy swings directly toward the tackle, and as it goes back he dives for it and clings fast, dragging his own body on the ground in order to overcome the momentum of the dummy."

Here's an advertisement in an English professional paper: "A young man, sober and reliable, who has a wooden leg and a cork arm, is willing for a moderate salary to allow his false limbs to be maimed by wild beasts in any reputable menagerie as an advertisement. No objection to travelling."

TWO QUEENS OF CHESS.

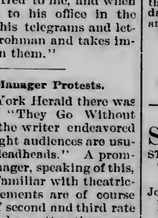

Mrs. Showalter, Mrs. Worrall and Their Battle For the Championship.

Mrs. Jackson W. Showalter, wife of the famous Kentucky expert, has long been considered the lady chess champion of America, although she did not win the title in a regular match. On Nov. 6, however, Mrs. Showalter and Mrs. Harriett Worrall of Brooklyn began a seven game match for the championship of the United States.

MRS. J. W. SHOWALTER.

MRS. HARRIETT WORRALL.

Mrs. Showalter's principal claim to fame rests upon the fact that with the odds of a knight she once succeeded in defeating Emanuel Lasker by a score of 5 to 2. Lasker has since won the championship of the world. She has also beaten several men who are fair second or third class players, and owing largely to her husband's excellent coaching plays a very strong game for a woman.

Mrs. Worrall is the wife of Thomas H. Worrall and has been playing chess since the days of Paul Morphy. She was taught the rudiments of the game by her brother, Rev. H. Jonah, an English amateur who was well known years ago. Her husband also played a good game and was intimate with Morphy and other well known experts. The Worralls lived for some time in Mexico, and Mrs. Worrall was called the champion of Mexico by her admirers. In 1866 she played several games against Morphy, receiving the odds of a rook. Thus favored, she secured an occasional draw against the great Morphy. The late Captain Mackenzie allowed her a pawn and two moves and was beaten. Ex-Champion William Steinitz gave her the odds of a knight and found his fair opponent too strong for him when thus favored. She has never yet found a woman, Mrs. Showalter excepted, who could defeat her.

In the present match Mrs. Showalter won the first, third and fourth games, the second was drawn, and Mrs. Worrall won the fifth. Another win gives Mrs. Showalter the match.

He Writes Letters to Himself.

If one noticed a man writing and mailing letters to himself across the street and sending a telegram to himself, the natural inference, as a rule, would be that the individual engaged in this peculiar proceeding is not quite responsible for anything he might do. That is exactly what Charles Frohman does, however, and that Charles Frohman is in full possession of well developed mental faculties is well known. "You see," says Mr. Frohman, "it is at my desk at the Empire theater, New York, that I transact all my business. It happens frequently, however, that schemes and plans of action occur to me when I am walking along the street, lunching at Delmonico's or dining at the Waldorf. I then write letters to Charles Frohman at the Empire theater, giving him suggestions that have occurred to me, and when Mr. Frohman gets to his office in the morning he opens his telegrams and letters from Charles Frohman and takes immediate action upon them."

A Prominent Manager Protests.

In a recent New York Herald there was an article entitled "They Go Without Paying," in which the writer endeavored to show that first night audiences are usually composed of "deadheads." A prominent New York manager, speaking of this, said: "To any one familiar with theatricals the writer's statements are of course absurd. Managers of second and third rate houses and second class attractions may be glad to create a good impression on their opening night by filling the house with well dressed and nonpaying people, but to say that our first class managers adopt the same system is ridiculous. On the contrary, as a rule, first class managers have all they can do to find seats enough to go round on a first night. It has become a fad of late years to be present at the making or at the death of every new play, and most theaters have large standing orders for first night seats."

The Fifty Millions Loan.

The success of the recent treasury loan is regarded by Henry Clews as very gratifying, when viewed as a test of financial conditions. In his financial review for the past week, Mr. Clews expresses the opinion that the fact that subscriptions were made for thrice the amount of bonds offered shows that the common talk here and abroad about distrust in the government credit is more a matter of surface criticism and momentary pessimism than of real want of confidence. It means that, while there is no disposition to ignore that some serious derangements and unsound conditions exist in our national finances, yet there is no lack of public confidence that these faults will be soon remedied. In fact, it is realized that, as a nation, we are in the midst of a manifold process of reconstruction, which naturally involves some confusion and much misapprehension; yet it is at the same time seen that the drift is towards the incorporation in our affairs of what is new and better in the methods and conditions of the times, and this fact implies an advantage to financial operations which will soon find due expression.

The success of the loan, Mr. Clews also says, has an important effect as evidencing a revival of confidence among investors. It shows that the owners of the mass of capital so long kept idle are becoming satisfied that the depression in the value of sound securities has reached bottom. When the government has $150,000,000 offered at 3 per cent, it is a fair presumption that there is a large amount of money waiting to enter investment of other kinds at 4 to 5 per cent. The holders of this capital have now a plain standard of what they may get, and so far the way is cleared to the negotiation of corporate securities.

The largeness of the subscriptions to the loan is the more remarkable in view of the fact that it was intended to repair a misfortune in the public finances; that it is the second of the kind within nine months; and that there is some public misgiving whether it may not have to be followed by still further borrowing. Public feeling has run high in connection with the discussion of questions of fiscal and monetary policy; and the query is fairly before the country—in what kind of money shall the common mass of our long obligations be payable? This question was directly pertinent to the new bonds, and it was distinctly understood that, under the authorizing acts, the bonds were subject to payment in silver coin as well as gold. Yet, in the face of this fact, our people have been willing to take three times the amount of the obligations offered. Mr. Clews contends that is a very unmistakable expression of intelligent conviction that ten years hence the government will be as certainly upon a gold paying basis as it ever has been.

This is an answer of no little importance to the foreign investors who have too hastily inferred from our heated discussion of monetary questions that there is some real danger of the country drifting upon the silver basis. It is natural enough, perhaps, that our exposure of the dangers of silver money should be taken at their worst significance by foreign observers; but it is hardly supposable that our European critics can fail to correct their extravagant conclusions by the expression of capitalistic opinion afforded by this significant negotiation. They cannot be insensible to the fact that we, the most competent judges, do not share their apprehensions; nor to the further fact that whatever assistance the government may temporarily need, to keep its finances fortified by an adequate stock of gold, will be readily supplied by the banks and the people. This manifest assurance cannot but pass for much among the class who make opinion among the bankers and on the bourses across the Atlantic, however it may be among the less informed editors and the class of small investors for whom they carelessly cater.

Is the West Discontented?

Chancellor James H. Canfield, of the University of Nebraska, contributes an article of uncommon interest to the December Forum, entitled "Is the West Discontented? A Study of Local Facts," which is the result of a close study into the manner of life and material condition of the people of Nebraska, more especially of the people of Lincoln. He illustrates his theme by describing the daily life, material condition, way of living, etc., of a number of families in Lincoln with whom he has been thrown in personal contact or had opportunities of observing.

He admits that there is some discontent within the limits of Nebraska. With the unsuccessful, even though they have done more than fairly well, the sense of not being as far along in the race as those with whom they made the start is irritating. This is not surprising, because this discontent which Mr. Canfield has noticed in Nebraska is found to an equal degree in every state and in every community. There are hundreds of people who are discontented because they do not secure success and are envious of others who are successful. They whine about their ill-luck or they kick about the social conditions that prevent them from achieving the same success as others. The fact is that the fault lies nowhere outside of their own endeavors. They either lack the ability that their more successful neighbors possess or they are too lazy to use the ability with which they are gifted. They are always looking for some easy road to fortune, and as there is no such road they express discontent with their condition and rail at the rich men and the corporations as the cause of their lack of success.

But to return to Mr. Canfield's article. Men there, as elsewhere, he says, are in haste to get rich; not simply to secure a competence. With many others the present complaining is hereditary, and comes to them with their New England blood. Most well-organized, normal New Englanders are always on the road to the poorhouse. The only difference between New England and Nebraska seems to be that, whereas in the former people go cheerfully and willingly and and seem rather to enjoy the prospect (they rarely get there, of course—those who are always talking about it never do), their descendants in Nebraska, with the same prospect in view and entertaining it just as sincerely as do their ancestors (which is not sincerely at all), grow rebellious at the very thought.

This kind of discontent seems to have naturally and properly become a powerful factor in American public life. But as a result of Mr. Canfield's observations and inquiries, he concludes as follows: "As for ourselves and our neighbors as individuals, and in our own individual and private interests and affairs, it is safe to say that 95 per cent of the people of this state fall easily under any thoughtful definition of the expression 'contented classes.'" This is equally true of all the Western states.

On the second page will be found a St. Paul dispatch giving the gist of an article from Duluth which was published in the Pioneer Press today. It gives some particulars of a movement which is under way to secure the passage by the legislature of a bill reducing the royalties on ore taken from the state mineral lands and to secure a reduction of the ore rate charged by the Duluth & Iron Range and the Duluth, Missabe & Northern roads from 80 to 50 cents a ton. This promises to be the most important subject at the coming session of the legislature.

Different articles of freight handled by the St. Paul & Duluth Railway company for the fire sufferers at Hinckley and other places on the line of the road from Sept. 1 to Nov. 10, if the transportation of the same were paid for at tariff rates, would have netted the company $3311.58. Aside from this, general officers of the company and others connected with it made liberal contributions of money and articles of food and clothing. These facts show that all corporations are not heartless.

The British government which has been at work for years uprooting the barbarous practices of Indian religion, has struck a final blow at the horrible practice of "hook swinging." Hitherto at religious festivals by inserting a hook attached to a rope in the flesh and then swinging in the air a few minutes, the devotee believed that he promoted the salvation of his soul. The practice is now prohibited by law.

The Herald surpassed every other evening paper in Minnesota on Saturday by its complete report of the Yale-Princeton football match. And the Sunday morning papers had nothing to add to the story.

How do ores form? In a paper read by Professor Posepuy at the Chicago meeting of mining engineers on "The Genesis of Ore Deposits" two theories are presented, one holding that ores are "secreted laterally" from the wall rocks, the other that they are formed from material that "ascends" from below. The professor prefers the latter theory as the one most generally applicable.

The president's message is lengthy. The opening portion is devoted to a summary of the reports of the various departments, and several of the recommendations made by the secretaries are endorsed. The president again urges that iron ore and coal be placed on the free list. The most important feature of the message is the approval of Secretary Carlisle's plan of currency reform.

Good Words for Maginnis.

Two Harbors Iron News: Those who stood high in the major's regard when he was at the apex of his influence are indeed unfortunate. First Bede went and now Taylor has to go. This should render the balance of the boys thoughtful. C. P. Maginnis, between whom and the major there existed a chilliness not long since, is regarded as Mr. Taylor's successor. If a change is made, there is no Democrat we would rather see appointed than Maginnis.

A First Class Mayor.

Mayor Lewis, who is well known in Superior, has made a competent, fair, impartial mayor of Duluth. He has no prejudices, excellent judgment, and is altogether as good a mayor as Duluth ever had.

Will Have no Walk Away.

Long Prairie Leader: The burning political question of the day is who will succeed Washburn as United States senator—Washburn himself or some other fellow? Half a dozen prominents in the state would like to relieve him of his senatorial toga and from present indications he will have no easy walk away. Among those mentioned for the position outside of Washburn is Hon. S. G. Comstock, of Moorhead. Comstock is a good man and besides lives in a section of the state that ought to count some in his favor. The Twin Cities hadn't ought to expect to have the two senators forever, especially when just as good senatorial timber can be found in the country.

A RECEIVER WANTED

The Great Western Manufacturing Company, of Duluth and Chicago, is in Temporary Financial Trouble.

Most of Its Quick Securities Here and Elsewhere Have Been Pledged for Its Debts.

With Liabilities of Only $300,000 and Assets of Fully $750,000 Reorganization Will be Tried.

The Great Western Manufacturing company of Duluth and Chicago, one of the largest manufacturing concerns of electric supplies in the country, which has been weathering the hard times gale with some difficulty of late, has succumbed to the storm and gone into the hands of a receiver. The concern has its chief factory at West Duluth. Its head offices and warehouses are located at 116, 118 and 120 Market street, Chicago, with branches in Pittsburg and Denver.

Ex-Senator L. R. Casey, of Dakota, is president of the company; S. J. Young, of the Union National bank of Brunswick, Me., is vice president; R. S. Munger, president of the Imperial Milling company of Duluth, is second vice president; O. M. Simonds, the general manager at Duluth, is a director of the National Bank of Commerce at Duluth; J. F. Reed, the secretary, is of the law firm of Reed, Brown & Allen, Chicago; H. A. C. Dell, one of the directors, represents Governor Merriam, of St. Paul, Minn.; J. L. Dodge, one of the directors, is president of the Mahanie National bank, of Great Barrington, Mass.; Capt. Joseph Sellwood, a director, is president of the Security bank of Duluth. In short the officers, directors and managers of the institution are all solid business men, known and thoroughly trusted in the communities in which they reside.

The capital stock of the company is $1,500,000. Of this a considerable proportion is represented by patents, franchises, etc., but over $700,000 of it represents paid in capital. It is incorporated under the laws of Iowa, and at the outset it absorbed the Great Western Electrical Supply company, the Chicago Insulated Wire company, the Phœnix Manufacturing company and the Bain Electric Manufacturing company.

The company has done a good business, but during the hard times period its collections have been slow and it has been obliged to carry several electrical street railways, such as those located in Fond du Lac, Wis.; Atchison, Kan., and Atlanta, Ga. In this way its finances became straitened and for some months past it has been running very close to land.

The liabilities of the concern are a little over $300,000 and its assets under favorable circumstances would be valued at some $700,000.

Could Pay No Longer.

One after another of their creditors was met by the company and paid, until within the last few months a vast sum of money has changed hands in an attempt to tide over the breach which would have been successful had not some of their principal creditors become needlessly alarmed within the last few days. A panic was the result, and that, of course, precipitated failure. A receivership was the only course open. Had the creditors held on a few days longer, the company would have obtained a large amount of money in the East, and been able to pay them all in full. As it is, they will have to wait the slow processes of a receivership to get their money.

A short time ago the company began negotiations with an Eastern house, the Electrical corporation of Boston, to which it was about to sell a large part of the securities. Before the deal was closed the creditors pushed their claims to such an extent that it was cut short. Instead of getting about $100,000 in this way it got only some $25,000. With this money and a receiver the concern will now undertake to go on with its business, and its officers hope in this way to come out of the storm in a short time.

To Reorganize at Once.

On Saturday the company gave a bill of sale of its Chicago house and its contents, and of the plant at West Duluth, to the First National bank of Chicago, to whom it owes nearly $100,000, a part of which was secured by the first mortgage bonds of the Fond du Lac, Wis., Electric Street Railway company. The suit at Chicago of Mrs. Lamb and the entry of judgment for $15,000, which could not be satisfied Saturday, is the basis for asking for a receiver. A receiver will take hold today or tomorrow. The business will be conducted in that manner for the present, but the officers and directors of the concern state that a reorganization of the company will take place in a few days on a basis that will not only pay off all indebtedness, but place the concern on a solid financial footing.

Legal Proceedings Against It.

In the United States court at Chicago on Saturday a confession of judgment was entered against the company for $15,000. The plaintiff is Mary Lamb, who claims that the company owes her that amount on a loan she recently made the company. The confession is taken on notes given to secure the amount. The company has been harrassed by litigation ever since April last. The records of the circuit and superior courts show a half dozen suits against the company of various sorts.

On Nov. 23 last C. R. and Isabelle Corwith began in the superior court a distress warrant for the November rent of the Market street premises. The distress warrant is for $999.99, the sum due for one month, and which the Corwiths were unable to get. On Nov. 20 C. R. Gould began in the circuit court an assumpsit suit for $600, the indebtedness being evidenced by a note signed by Manager E. R. Gilman. Saturday Gould began an attachment in aid of the suit formerly begun. On Sept. 11 in the Superior court the W. J. Johnston company, limited, began in the superior court an assumpsit suit for the recovery of $1236.36 and also an attachment in aid of the suit. This debt was also evidenced by a note.

On Aug. 20 last the Orr & Lockett Hardware company filed a $500 assumpsit suit against the company in the superior court to recover the purchase price of some merchandise. The suit of April 17 was begun by J. H. Gregory and was an attachment for $8029.45. It was begun on a note given by the company a few days previous to the suit. On the circuit side of the court is a suit by the Waterbury Manufacturing company for $759.96. The affidavit for the attachment states that the suit is to recover money on goods sold the company.

Tavary Opera Company.

The Tavary Grand Opera company arrived in this city this morning by special train and will this evening commence an engagement at the Lyceum, presenting Verdi's "Il Trovatore." The appearance of this famous organization has been anticipated for many months and it is very evident from the preparations which music lovers have been making for the event that it will be one of the most brilliant engagements which have been played in this city for several years.

The Tavary company is the largest and best which has ever been taken en tour for the presentation of grand opera. The list of principal singers contains such well known celebrities as Nini Bertini Humphrys and Sophia Romani, sopranos; Helen Von Doenhoff, Dora Scott and Mme. Thea Dorre, contraltos; Payne Clark, A. L. Guille and H. S. Keady, tenors; William Mertens, F. L. Hill, Samuel Dudley, baritones; and William Schuster and W. H. Hamilton, bassos.

It will be seen from the above list of names and the established reputation of each, that Mme. Tavary will have splendid support, in the artists who will assume the leading roles, and as the chorus contains many picked voices, especially selected for grand opera, and the orchestra will be double the number of players generally used in performances of this kind, some idea may be gained of the completeness with which each opera in the repertoire will be given. There seems to be an impression that the prices for these performances have been placed at an unusually high figure; this is not so.

The repertoire for the week is as follows: Tonight "Il Trovatore," Tuesday "Carmen," Wednesday matinee, "Cavalleria Rusticana and "I Pagliacci," Wednesday night, "Lohengrin."

Something About Mr. Worrell.

The gentleman who lectures before housekeepers in Temple opera house, Tuesday afternoon, is 36 years old. Is married and resides with his family in Dorchester, which is to Boston what Hyde Park is to Chicago. On the temperance and other vital questions he takes a strong, influential position on the right side. He is a member of the Congregational club, Boston, one of the strongest and most conservative social-religious organizations in New England. Mr. Worrell is the only person who has made food discussion a large success. He has won an established reputation in New England, where he has lectured each season for the past seven years. It is stated on good authority that he receives, outside of all expenses, $150 per week or $600 per month, for his services. He gives three talks each week, one only in a city. It goes without saying that a young man who can command these terms is worth being heard.

The Weather in November.

The mean temperature for November, according to Observer Kenealy's report, was 26 degrees. The warmest day was 48 degrees on the 1st and the coldest 6 degrees below on the 28th. The total movement of wind was 5075 miles and the prevailing direction northwest, the highest velocity attained being 34 miles on the 10th. The total precipitation was 1.43 inches, number of cloudless days 6, partly cloudy 10 and cloudy 14.

The Lodge of Sorrow.

Yesterday afternoon, the annual Lodge of Sorrow was held in Pythian hall by the Duluth lodge of Elks. This is the first service of the kind held for three years and during that time E. H. Prince, M. V. Bingham, F. H. Quinby and Achilles Nelson have died. At the service yesterday, Exalted Ruler J. W. Reynolds presided and an elegant eulogy was pronounced by J. B. Cotton. That was followed by the singing of an ode, which ended the service.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury,

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them. THE COMMERCIAL CLUB.

Idea Proposed for its Formation by the Chamber Committee.

At Saturday's chamber of commerce meeting the committee appointed to look into the commercial club project, consisting of Messrs. T. W. Hugo, G. A. Leland and M. O. Hall, made its report, which was laid over for one week. Following is the substance of the report:

It is recommended that before the commercial club be started the rules of the chamber be enlarged and amended so as not to conflict with the aims of any other body. The social element was highly recommended as a means of furthering the work and arousing interest. A general interest alone was held insufficient to keep the chamber together.

The club should be fitted up with conveniences attractive to the business man. If a club should be formed with the chamber in its present shape it would be a death blow, and that is highly undesirable. Therefore the committee recommended that the matter be referred to the committee on legislation in order that it may recommend amendments so as to conform the chamber to the club and bring them both together to their mutual advantage.

The general idea is to bring about a federation of the bodies of the city, so that each may pursue its own work, but when the objects sought to be attained are too general for one body, all may unite and bring their combined energies to bear on the one object.

A communication was received from J. R. Meining asking that the meeting day be changed from Saturday. It was laid over, but that will probably be one of the changes that will be made. Messrs. York, Fitger and Church were appointed delegates to the Cincinnati meeting Jan. 22, to form an association of manufacturers. The resolution of the trans-Mississippi congress in favor of deep waterways was spread on the minutes.

The annual election takes place between 9 and 12 a. m. next Wednesday.

THE SCHOOL BOARD.

The Insurance Question Discussed at Considerable Length.

The school board met Saturday evening and the insurance question was discussed. The executive committee reported having written policies to the amount of $140,000 on the High School building. Some of the members thought a blanket policy on all buildings ought to have been obtained, and others that the board ought to do its own insuring. Director Luther opposed the committee's action strongly.

The committee's action was endorsed, howeevr, Director Luther alone voting no.

The building committee reported the Lowell building as completed and recommended that it be accepted from J. A. Roberts & Co., the contractors. This was done. No kindergarten is to be established in the West End Presbyterian church this winter and the petition for a night school in the Jefferson building was laid on the table.

ANOTHER SUICIDE.

Arthur M. Bailey Cut His Throat With a Razor Yesterday.

Arthur M. Bailey, a electrician and machinest at the Great Western Manufacturing company's plant, cut his own throat with a razor yesterday about noon, or shortly before. He lived with C. D. Marble on Fifty-eighth avenue west and Raleigh street. He has been in a melancholy state for some time and was possessed with the idea that everybody was conspiring against him. Yesterday he retired to his room about 11 o'clock. About noon a friend called for him. Mr. Marble went up to his room and found him dead with the razor in his hand and several horrible gashes in his throat. His mother lives at Farmington, Me., and he has a brother at Holton in the same state.

Are Our Legs to Vanish?

Dr. Emil Young, professor of physiology at the University of Geneva, allowing scientific speculation to run away with him, is concerned lest (in a thousand years or so) the legs of the human species will practically disappear. "Men refuse more and more to walk, though walking is the wholesomest of physical exercises. Steam, electricity, the rope railways, trycicles and bicycles have changed the whole aspect of Swiss touring. Everybody seems anxious to get everywhere any way except by the use of his legs. In another generation our traveling balloons will hang outside our windows or our electrical coaches stand outside our doors. They will be produced so cheaply that every man will have his own chariot. Hence our legs will become superfluous, then they will be crippled and shrink to hideously small dimensions until at last they will finally disappear." This seems to be science run mad. Dr. Young is unnecessarily alarmed. But even if the year 3000 A. D. should verify his apprehension, the people of America especially those residing in Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana and South Dakota, will be well taken care of by the grand Burlington route, which then, as now, will be the popular line of travel to and from all the leading cities of those states. For information in the present concerning this system, apply to your home ticket agent, who can furnish maps, time tables, rates and tickets, or address W. J. C. Mrs. Stuntz Discharged.

Some days ago Mrs. George Stuntz was tried in the municipal court on the charge of threatening bodily harm to Mrs. Theresa Oestrich. Mrs. Stuntz denied the impeachment and her attorney asked that the case be dismissed for the reason that Mrs. Oestrich was no longer a neighbor to Mrs. Stuntz, having moved since the trouble. Judge Powell took the case under advisement and this morning in view of the fact that Mrs. Oestrich herself stated that she no longer was in fear of the defendant, ordered that Mrs. Stuntz be discharged.

IMPORTANT MINING CASE.

The Last Chance Case Before the Federal Supreme Court.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The action of the United States supreme court in granting the petition of the Last Chance Mining company for a writ of certiorari in the case of the Last Chance company versus the Tyler Mining company, will have the effect of transferring to this court a litigation which has attracted much attention in the state of Idaho in the past five or six years.

This case has not only become important because of the large values involved, but also because of the questions in mining law which it raises. Among these questions the most consequential probably is as to the rights of mining claimants to follow their ledges beyond the lines of their claims into the claims of their neighbors.

LITT'S NEW CIRCUIT

Temple Opera House in Duluth and Grand in Superior Under the Milwaukee Manager's Control.

He Has Secured the People's Theater in Minneapolis and Will Call it the Metropolitan.

Both Popular and Advanced Price Attractions Will be Played, Dividing Between the Four Cities.

An event of more than little interest in Northwestern theatrical affairs, transpired the past week, by which Jacob Litt, the well known and successful manager becomes a most important figure in the dramatic business of this state. By a purchase of a large block of the stock of the People's Theater Building company of Minneapolis, Mr. Litt has become the owner of a controlling interest in that company, which company is to be succeeded by the Litt-Stafford Opera House corporation of which Jacob Litt is president, John C. Sundin, vice president, and Lac Stafford, secretary and treasurer.

The People's theater represents an investment of $150,000 and is conceded to be one of the handsomest places of amusement in the Northwest. It is provided with every modern convenience and equipped with a most complete outfit of scenery and stage appointments. Mr. Litt has personally taken a lease of the theater and will change the name of the same to the Metropolitan Opera house. Mr. Litt will play at the Metropolitan only the best attractions at prices ranging from 25 cents to $1.50. This departure by Mr. Litt will in no way affect his control of the Bijou Opera house in Minneapolis which is and always has been the best paying theater on his circuit. The Bijou will continue to play popular priced attractions under direction of Mr. Litt, he having a lease of the house for a period of ten years. Mr. Litt will take possession of the People's in Minneapolis on Jan. 1, 1895, and if good attractions can be secured will keep it open the balance of this season, if not he will close it for the remainder of the present dramatic year and reopen the beginning of next season with probably the finest line of bookings ever made for the Northwest.

In this connection, Mr. Litt has decided to change the policy of the Grand Opera house in St. Paul. On the last three nights of each week in St. Paul, a higher class of attractions will be played at prices ranging from 25 cents to $1.50. By this method Mr. Litt raises his St. Paul house to the standard of what is called a first-class theater and will be enabled to give his patrons a wider and stronger list of attractions.

The growing prestige of Duluth and West Superior as Northwestern cities has not escaped Mr. Litt's managerial eye, and he has consummated arrangements for the control of theaters at these points which will give him unusual advantages in booking for the Northwest. He will control the Temple Opera house and also the Grand Opera house in West Superior. Both of these houses are thoroughly up to date in all appointments. The attractions that play at St. Paul the first half of the week will divide the last half of the week between Duluth and West Superior, playing two nights at Duluth and one at West Superior. Under this admirable arrangement both the Duluth and West Superior houses will be able to provide a stronger list of attractions than ever before. It is a strong evidence of the growing prestige of Duluth and West Superior when a metropolitan manager like Mr. Litt has the confidence to make these two towns a part of his successful circuit of theaters. J. T. Condon, who has for years managed the Duluth and West Superior houses, will act as resident manager for Mr. Litt. The securing of these additional playhouses will shorten the engagements of the popular-priced attractions playing at the Grand opera house in St. Paul for four nights. The last three nights of the week in St. Paul will be devoted to the playing of the attractions which appear at the Metropolitan opera house in Minneapolis. Theodore L. Hays, who has been closely identified with Mr. Litt's Northwestern interests, will act as manager of both the Bijou and Metropolitan, and under this change becomes general manager for Mr. Litt's entire interest in the Northwest, including both Duluth and West Superior.

Jacob Litt is today one of the most progressive managers in the United States. He has been fortunate in owning both successful theaters and successful attractions. "In Old Kentucky" alone it is said will realize a profit for him the present season of over $100,000.

Lecture on Food Products.

How few people realize that the various foods have each a specific action upon certain functions of the body. Certain food makes muscular tissue; other makes fat; other contributes to bone or brain nourishment, etc. It is such points, clearly brought out, that is one of the charms of Mr. Worrell's lectures, or "talks," as he modestly calls them. Information of this character all mothers specially should avail themselves of. Mr. Worrell's lecture at Temple Opera house tomorrow afternoon will be about an hour and a half. "HIS EXCELLENCY."

Something of Gilbert and Carr's Great London Operatic Success.

W. S. Gilbert, who is regarded in England as the "laureate of librettists," has written another comic opera. It is called "His Excellency" and has scored a great success in London, being in fact the talk of the English theatrical world just now. The musical portion of the production has been supplied by Dr. Osmond Carr, well known in London as the author of several burlesques. Dr. Carr's music in this opera is said to be very pretty and catchy and in several respects peculiarly appropriate. He has been accused by the English critics of imitating Sir Arthur Sullivan, Gilbert's old collaborator, although they concede that it is a very good imitation. Now, as a matter of fact, the real trouble is that Gilbert is still himself, and any music set to his rhythms must of necessity remind one of former music set to precisely the same measure. For instance, in the following patter song, where Gilbert is making excuses for inflicting chestnuts upon the public, one is reminded of innumerable other Gilbertesque productions:

DR. OSMOND CARR.

Oh, happy was that humorist—the first that made a pun at all—
Who when a joke occurred to him, however poor and mean,
Was absolutely certain that it never had been done at all—
How popular at dinners must that humorist have been!

With the single exception of Alfred Celler, who composed the music of "The Mountebanks," Dr. Carr is the only composer who has written music to Gilbert's libretto since the first of the Gilbert-Sullivan series.

This is Dr. Carr's first serious effort, and he deserves encouragement, for he has no light task before him if he wishes to earn a place with Sir Arthur Sullivan in the hearts of comic opera lovers. Dr. Carr is well known in London's swell clubdom as a man about town.

George Grossmith and Arthur Playfair, both well known actors, take prominent parts in "His Excellency."

It will not be very long before American playgoers will have an opportunity of judging for themselves the merits of this Gilbert-Carr production.

ON THE FOOTBALL FIELD.

Some one has figured that it cost Yale $260 a day for football last year.

Yale has had a total of 21 graduates coaching football elevens this season.

William A. Opperman of the Monterey Football club of New York, while playing recently, received injuries that caused his death.

By defeating the University of North Carolina the Rutgers college team won a turkey dinner.

The University of Wisconsin football eleven has not been scored against this season. Wisconsin recently administered the first defeat ever suffered by the University of Minnesota team.

In speaking of Pennsylvania's offensive plays the Princeton players say that they are about the most severe and exhausting to stop that they have ever encountered, far more so, in fact, than the momentum mass plays of last year.

Mike Donovan's Estimate of Fitzsimmons.

Professor Mike Donovan, who recently had a friendly bout with Bob Fitzsimmons at the New York Athletic club, says: "It was the first time I ever faced Fitzsimmons, and what most surprised me was the man's remarkable quickness and the apparent lack of exertion with which he delivers very hard blows. I never faced a big man who was quicker on his feet. Fitzsimmons has a magnificent arm, with extremely large bones, and when you see the tremendous muscles of the shoulder and back you at once understand why he hits so hard. His blow that dazed Creedon was a chopping one that landed on the frontal bone of the skull. It is a new blow in boxing.

"Fitz is a heavyweight from the shoulders to the waist, and while his legs are not large they are strong and sufficient. I am of the opinion that no one can teach him much about the fine points of boxing. How will the big fight result? That's a leading question. Corbett is a very clever and very strong man. He will no doubt get the greatest battle of his life. The encounter will be a remarkable one."

Champion Corbett's Queer Experience.

Champion Jim Corbett says the queerest experience he ever had in the ring happened in Providence recently, when he officiated as referee of a bout between two local men. "After an hour's fighting," said the champion, "one of the principals appeared to be all but out, and I determined to give the decision to his opponent, who was a novice in the business, after one more round was had. In that round the novice sent his man to the floor, and as I started to declare him the winner the excitement of the victory proved too much for him, and he fell to the floor in a dead faint. While he was stretched out and before I had concluded my little finishing speech to the spectators the defeated man got up and stood beside me with a dazed expression on his countenance. It was a peculiar position for me to be placed in. Old timers fail to recollect a similar case in the history of the roped arena. My decision had gone, and the man on the ground won."

Fox Hunting's Popularity In England.

Some idea of the extent to which cross country riding is followed in Great Britain may be gained from the fact that there are said to be at present 156 packs of foxhounds in England, 114 of harriers and 17 packs of stag hounds. In Ireland there are 28 packs of harriers, 20 of foxhounds and 6 packs of stag hounds. In Scotland there are 10 packs of foxhounds and 3 of harriers, but no stag hounds. Since April five packs of English foxhounds have been given up, and three new packs have been established.

Harrigan's New Play.

Edward Harrigan has a new play, with which he intends to open his theater in New York about Dec. 3. The new piece is called "Notoriety," and, like its most successful predecessors, the scene is laid in New York city. Mr. Harrigan hereafter will play shorter engagements in New York and will extend his traveling tours to cover more time than heretofore. His present traveling season, it is said, has been quite successful.

Best Paper, Best Advertising!

When a contractor is in a hurry to drive a long plank down the side of a new sewer, he sets two men at it. Each with a big maul hits it alternate blows as often and as hard as he can. The strokes come as even as a pendulum swings.

One man and one maul would drive the plank down, but it would take longer.

The bigger the maul, the quicker and easier he will do the work.

Two men, or a dozen, with tack hammers would not get the plank driven in a hundred years.

There's a parallel to this in advertising. If you're in a hurry to drive your business, use two papers and make the advertising maul---the space as big as possible.

If you haven't money enough to buy two big mauls, buy only one---use only one paper, the best, and make the space big enough to be felt.

You'll do more good with one maul than with half a dozen tack hammers. You'll get more benefit from a regular advertisement, of sufficient size, in a paper like The Evening Herald than you will from half a dozen smaller ads in weaker papers.

If you only have one ad, have it right. You don't believe in cutting your store in two, do you?

You don't establish a branch until you feel sure you are doing all you can in the main store.

Be sure you are doing enough in the best paper before you think of adding another.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE.

Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage, which was duly executed and delivered by Alphonse R. Walker and Hattie Walker, his wife, mortgagors, to Anna P. Hillebrand, mortgagee, bearing date the 6th day of December, 1892, and which was duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, on the 7th day of December, 1892, at 4 o'clock p. m., in Book 92 of mortgages, on page 191 thereof; which mortgage contains a provision that if default shall be made in the payment of the said sum of money or interest or any part thereof at the time the same shall become due and payable, the said mortgagors in such cases do authorize and fully empower the mortgagee to sell the premises described in the said mortgage and in this notice, at public auction, and convey the same to the purchaser, agreeably to the statutes in such case made and provided;

And whereas, default was made in the payment of a semi-annual installment of interest upon said mortgage and the principal note thereby secured; which interest became due on the 6th day of December, 1893, and the 6th day of June, 1894, amounting in the aggregate to the sum of forty (40) dollars, and which semi-annual installments of interest are evidenced by two interest coupon notes for the amount of twenty (20) dollars each, attached to the said principal note, and which said coupon notes the said Alphonse R. Walker duly signed;

And whereas, said mortgagors have duly covenanted and agreed to pay on the amount of said coupon notes, interest at the rate of 8 per cent per annum from the time the same shall fall due, until the same is paid;

And whereas, there is claimed to be due and unpaid, and there is actually due and unpaid upon said mortgage debt at the date of this notice, the sum of forty (40) dollars, and interest on twenty (20) dollars of said amount from the 6th day of December, 1893, at the rate of 8 per cent per annum, and interest on twenty (20) dollars of said amount from the 6th day of June, 1894, at the rate of 8 per cent per annum, together with twenty-five (25) dollars attorneys' fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure; and whereas said mortgage contained a power of sale, which power of sale by the default hereinbefore mentioned has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise having been instituted or commenced to collect said mortgage debt or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by a virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by the sale of the premises described in said mortgage, namely:

Lot No. six (6) in block No. three (3) and lots No. five and twenty-one (5 and 21) in block No. nine (9), in Superior View Addition to Duluth, according to the recorded plat thereof on file in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota; all of said lands being in said county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, together with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash to pay said debt and interest, and taxes, if any, on said premises and twenty-five (25) dollars attorneys' fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, at the front door of the county court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on the 2nd day of January, 1895, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

INDEMNITY TO JAPAN.

If the War Ends at Once Japan Will Accept an Indemnity of 400,000,000 Yen.

The Cession of All the Territory Now Occupied by Her Forces is Also Demanded.

Should the War Be Further Prolonged, These Heavy Conditions of Peace Will Be Increased.

YOKOHAMA, Dec. 3.—According to the semi-official press Japan has decided to insist upon heavy conditions of peace, which will be increased as the war is prolonged. If the war was concluded at the present time, Japan would accept an indemnity of 400,000,000 yen and the cession of the territory now occupied by her forces. Too much weight should not be attached to the Chinese overtures for peace, for it is believed that japan will be requested to give her enemy further proof of the power of Japan in order that the Chinese people may learn that their government sued for peace.

If Taku and Shan Hai Kwan cannot be attacked this winter owing to the severity of the climate, the war will be carried on in other parts of China. No armistice will be granted unless China is unable to pay the war indemnity immediately, a portion of the sum decided upon paid down will be accepted and the remainder may be paid in installments with interest.

It must, however, be stipulated that the power of Japan is regarded as absolute and then there will be no further opposition to the conclusion of peace.

PUBLIC DEBT STATEMENT.

The Statement Today by the Secretary of the Treasury.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The monthly debt statement issued today by the secretary of the treasury shows that on Nov. 30, 1894, the public debt, less cash in the treasury, amounted to $879,582,019, a decrease for the month of $31,744,552. This decrease, however, is altogether due to the receipt of gold in payment of new 1904 bonds not yet formally issued. Following is a recapitulation of the debt:

Interest-bearing debt, $639,143,034; increase during the month, $4,100,170; debt on which interest has ceased since maturity, $1,826,030; decrease, $1350. Debt bearing no interest, $383,120,504; increase, $1,324,088. Total debt, $1,630,361,568, of which $626,270,843 are in certificates and treasury notes offset by an equal amount of cash in the treasury.

The cash in the treasury is classified as follows: Gold, $164,350,468, which is an increase for the month of $38,736,574; silver, $504,802,457; paper, $107,257,764; bonds, disbursing officers' balances, $16,729,173. Total, $739,140,163, against which there are demand liabilities amounting to $618,632,558, leaving a cash balance of $141,507,605, of which $100,000,000 is gold reserve.

THE FIREMAN WAS KILLED.

Accident on the Alexandria Local Train to Washington.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The Alexandria, Va., local train coming to Washington this morning, was wrecked at Jackson City, at the Virginia end of the long bridge.

The train left Alexandria at 6:05 a. m., the engine, as is customary on these locals running backwards, or tender first. Just before entering the long bridge at a switch the train jumped the track and plunged down an embankment.

The locomotive crushed the life instantly out of the fireman, William T. Wilker. The engineer, E. A. Hayden, escaped with a badly cut head, although he went over with his engine. A few of the passengers were thrown from their seats, but none were seriously injured.

CAME TO THE WHITE HOUSE.

For the First Time in Two Weeks, the President Was Out.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—President Cleveland came to the White House at 10 o'clock this morning. It was the first visit he had made to the city in two weeks past. He came alone and was met by Mr. Thurber. The president looked very well considering the severe illness he has suffered from, and the only outward sign of his ailment was the pronounced limp which characterized his walk from the carriage into the house.

Probably because his coming had not been generally expected, there were very few callers at the White House in the morning, the only one of note being Representative Catchings, of Mississippi, who, in behalf of the speaker, came to enquire whether the president would receive the committee of notification at the White House.

"TENDERFEET" IN OKLAHOMA.

Eastern Hunters Armed to the Teeth to Resist the Cook Gang.

PERRY, O. T., Dec. 3.—In Ponca City six young men, strangers, caused intense excitement by walking down the principal street of the town heavily armed with Winchesters, pistols and bowie knives and other implements of war. The police, sheriff and constables soon summoned a large posse and arrested the young men while in a saloon.

When the officers went into the saloon the boys voluntarily held up their hands and said: "Here's our cash." It was ascertained later that the men were not used to the country, had armed themselves to combat the Cook gang and when the officers came in they thought the Cook gang was on their trail. The boys passed through Newkirk, Kildare and Cross thus armed. They were a hunting party from the East and are called here "tenderfeet."

A Nebraska Bank Failed

OMAHA, Dec. 3.—A special to the Bee from North Platte, Neb., says: The North Platte National bank failed to open its doors this morning but is now in charge of the national bank examiner. The assets and liabilities are not yet known. It has a capital stock of $75,000.

WAS HORRIBLY TREATED.

Outrageous Conduct of Chinese Towards a Catholic Priest.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 3.—A letter received from Father Hugh, O. S. F., a missionary priest in the province of Shensi, in China, contains an account of outrages, of which Father Capistan Goette, formerly of St. Louis, was the victim. The letter is dated Sept. 18, and is addressed to the provincial of the Order of the Sacred Heart in this city.

It says that on Sept. 9 Father Goette was assaulted by natives who drove off his Chinese servants and carried him a prisoner into a neighboring market town. At the time when the assault was made, the father was engaged in locating and making claims to lands belonging to his church.

For a whole day he was exposed to the indignity of the populace, who vented their rage by beating him, spitting into his face and striking at him with their long, brass-headed pipes. They tore his face with branches of thorns and committed other outrages. An attempt was made by his captors to shoot him, but fortunately the old gun held by the Chinamen did not answer its trigger. One of the spectators offered to kill him for 3 francs.

From this town Father Goette was conducted to the gates of another market village, where he was treated in the same manner as at the first town. It was intended to put him to death at the third village to which he was led, but the head man of that district refused to assume the heavy responsibility, and the prisoner, who was securely bound all the time, was dragged out into the fields.

Spectators were warned off the road, as he was led by his tormentors. Here they stuffed his mouth full of dry clay and then some held him close to the ground by the hair while others knelt upon his prostrate body, and one of them applied a long knife to his neck. The father was unable to grasp the arm of the would-be murderer, and some of the Chinese also protested against this act and his life was saved. His captors finally concluded to throw him into a well, but the timely arrival of an officer saved his life.

The condition of the father was most deplorable. He was covered with bruises and knife wounds, and for a time his state was critical. At the date of writing, he had recovered physically, but still suffered occasional aberrations of mind, due to this great suffering. The letter concludes by saying that the Chinese government was dilatory in taking steps looking to the punishment of the offenders and making reparation for the crime.

THE TAMMANY SOCIETY.

It is Claimed That Its Charter is Being Violated.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—The Good Government club, of which John Brooks Leavitt is the president, has appointed a committee which is going to call upon the attorney general. He will be requested to bring to the attention of the courts the violation of the charter of the Tammany society, or the Columbian order, whereby the latter will be compelled to show cause why its charter should not be annulled.

Club F and Mr. Leavitt claim that the Tammany society has violated that provision of its charter which stipulates that the society shall never have an income from real estate exceeding $5000.

It is also claimed that the charter is violated in reference to the provision that it shall have a pension fund devoted to the widows and orphans of its members. They assert that if there be such a fund in the hands of the society, it is never applied and therefore the necessity for the existence of the society passes.

It is claimed by the members of the society that there is such a fund and that it is expended for the relief of needy members when occasion arises. The Tammany society meets tonight.

THE ITALIAN PARLIAMENT.

It Was Opened Today With a Speech by King Humbert.

ROME, Dec. 3.—King Humbert opened parliament today with a touching reference to the suffering and ruin caused by the recent earthquakes. He added that national industry was reviving, that the credit of the country had improved, and that the confidence manifested towards Italy rendered it her duty to attain a balance of the budget.

The king also said that imperious measures would be presented to parliament for the amelioration of the monetary circulation and to improve credit. His majesty concluded with an expression of confidence in the continued maintenance of the peace of Europe.

Verdict for Damages.

LAPLATA, Md., Dec. 3.—Mrs. Elizabeth Swan (colored) who sued the Baltimore & Potomac railroad for $1000 secured a verdict for the full amount. Mrs. Swan purchased a regular ticket from Coxs to Pope Creek. She was in ill health and carried a child. Owing to an accident to the passenger coach Mrs. Swan was compelled to ride in the baggage car, resulting, she claims, in causing permanent injury to her health.

The Santa Anita Stable.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 3.—The excitement attendant upon the investigation of several men connected with the Santa Anita stable has about died out, and despite the action of the board of stewards of the California Jockey club, William Brien is still head trainer for the stable. E. J. Baldwin, owner of the Santa Anita horses, has confidence in Brien. He thinks that the board of stewards made a mistake in warning Brien off the track.

Chilton to be Senator Again.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Senator Coke, who has just arrived from Texas, expressed the opinion today that ex-Senator Chilton would be elected to succeed him. He said that there were already enough members of the legislature pledged to Chilton to insure his success. Senator Coke said also that he had not at any time felt tempted to reconsider his determination not to be a candidate again.

FITZ IS FORMIDABLE

Fitzsimmons is a Physical Phenomenon and Should Give Corbett the Battle of His Life.

His Shoulders Are as Broad as Sullivan's, and His Reach Exceeds That of Corbett.

As Boxers Both Men Stand at the Top of the Heap and Know Every Trick.

Measurements do not win battles in the ring, but Bob Fitzsimmons' measurements, backed by his wonderful record in the roped arena, lead me to believe that the red haired Australian will give Champion James J. Corbett the battle of his life when they meet next year.

I have seen Corbett stripped on several occasions, and I very recently saw Fitzsimmons examined and measured by Dr. John Wilson Gibbs, the New York physician who has at one time or another stretched a tapeline over the powerful frames of Sullivan, Corbett, Jackson, Fitzsimmons and other leading exponents of slugology. I was a Corbett partisan before Corbett met Sullivan, and after seeing both men in training was of the opinion that Corbett was in form to surprise the talent and defeat the great John L.

When Corbett and Mitchell were training, I could only figure the Englishman a winner upon the hypothesis that Corbett might obligingly fall dead in the ring, and when Corbett and Fitzsimmons were matched recently to meet about a year hence for the championship of the world and the substantial sum of $61,000, the only laurel wreath fancy could conjure up was one that rested athwart the luxuriant pompadour of the unbeaten Californian. Fancy is not so certain of this, however, since the broad shouldered, wonderfully muscled Australian struck a living picture pose at the residence of Dr. Gibbs.

Fitzsimmons is a physical freak, and a very formidable appearing freak too. From the waist up he is one of the most magnificent specimens of physical excellence I have ever seen stripped, and I have viewed his esteemed pugilistic contemporaries—Corbett, the lithe, powerful Apollo; Sullivan, the mighty nineteenth century gladiator, and Jackson, the bronze Hercules of the antipodes. From the waist down Fitzsimmons is slender and disappointing, but his long, slim legs are well muscled and have never failed him during his successful career in the ring.

CORBETT AND FITZSIMMONS COMPARED.
[Corbett black, Fitzsimmons white.]

Fitzsimmons is built like a great human wedge. From his wonderfully broad shoulders, the top of the wedge, he descends in what might almost be called two unbroken lines that rapidly approach nearer and nearer to each other and strike the floor only five or six inches apart. In his day Sullivan's shoulders, chest and arms were considered the acme of perfection in a heavyweight pugilist, and yet Bob Fitzsimmons, the overgrown middleweight, has a breadth of shoulders of 20¼ inches, exactly equaling in this respect the erstwhile mighty man from Boston. Sullivan was 44¼ inches around the chest; Fitzsimmons is 42¼, and Fitzsimmons has the enormous chest expansion of 5 inches, while Sullivan's expansion was only 2 inches. With arms outstretched Sullivan was 6 feet 2 inches from finger tips to finger tips, and Fitzsimmons' measurement in this particular is the same as Sullivan's. The ex-champion was 5 feet 10½ inches tall, and Fitzsimmons overtops him by 1¼ inches.

These figures are merely given to show how Fitzsimmons compares in some respects with the man who was champion a dozen years. What the public is more interested in is how Fitzsimmons compares with Corbett. In the table which follows the Fitzsimmons figures are correct, for I saw them taken and can vouch for them. The Corbett measurements were taken immediately preceding his battle with Mitchell and are substantially correct. The principal dimensions of the rival gladiators are the following:

Corbett.	Dimensions.	Fitzsimmons.
28 years	Age	32 years
6 feet ½ inch	Height	5 feet 11¾ inches
188 pounds	Weight	165 pounds
29½ inches	Reach	31½ inches
42½ inches	Chest normal	42¼ inches
45¼ inches	Chest expanded	47¼ inches
16½ inches	Neck	14¾ inches
14½ inches	Right bicep	12½ inches
33 inches	Waist	29¾ inches
21 inches	Thigh	20 inches
19 inches	Shoulders	20¼ inches
14 inches	Calf	13 inches

It will thus be seen that Corbett is taller, younger and heavier than Fitzsimmons, and that the Australian surpasses him in reach, lung power and breadth of shoulders. At 28 Corbett may be said to be in his prime, while Fitzsimmons at 32 is past the age when a pugilist is usually considered to be in his best form. Fitzsimmons can fight for his life at from 150 to 170 pounds, and the probabilities are that when he meets Corbett he will not underweigh the Californian more than 15 or 20 pounds. In a recent interview Corbett declared that he proposed to get down to 175 pounds, about his weight when he fought Sullivan, in order that no one could sneeringly say after he had whipped Fitzsimmons that he had only added another middleweight's scalp to his belt.

If Corbett enters the ring at 175 pounds, which is very doubtful, he and Fitzsimmons will not be far apart in the matter of avoirdupois.

In the matter of training Fitzsimmons is the wonder of the ring. He finds no difficulty in fighting at the middleweight limit, and he seems able to put on 15 or 20 pounds at will and still be in fine fettle for the fray. Corbett is less than an inch taller than Fitzsimmons and will consequently reap little advantage in the matter of height. In reach Corbett seems to be quite a little at a disadvantage, especially when it is remembered what a penchant Fitz has for ending a battle in about the third or fourth round by landing his long right with unerring accuracy on his opponent's jaw.

As boxers both men stand at the top of the heap. They know every trick of the trade and are as agile as deer upon their feet. In this respect they are so much alike that neither may be said to possess any advantage over the other. Both are masters of ring generalship, but Corbett seems much more apt to lose his head under trying circumstances than his opponent. Corbett practically fouled Mitchell at Jacksonville because he allowed rage to get the better of his prudence, and, although Corbett is undoubtedly as fair a fighter as lives at heart, such tactics against Fitzsimmons might lose him a closely contested battle. While it is true that Fitzsimmons has never met a man so formidable as Corbett, it is also true that Corbett has never faced a fighter of Fitzsimmons' marvelous quickness.

Fitzsimmons has whipped a great many good men in quick time, and his victories over Jack Dempsey, Peter Maher, Jim "All," as he calls Jim Hall, Joe Choynski, Slade the Maori, Dan Creedon and a hundred other lesser lights have demonstrated that he is a pugilist worthy of any man's best efforts, but on two occasions since he came to America he has narrowly escaped being knocked out. Big Peter Maher had him in a hazy condition of mind early in their 12 round battle March 2, 1892, and Fitzsimmons honestly admitted to me the other day that Choynski had him nearly out when they met in Boston not long ago. Fitzsimmons' wonderful recuperative power is shown by the fact that in both battles he rallied from the very verge of a knockout and succeeded in finishing his men in hurricane style.

If James J. Corbett gets him going in this manner, however, the probabilities are that he will keep on going until he goes out. On the other hand, if Fitz succeeds in landing his terrible right on the Californian's chin with the old time force that has inducted so many good men into a state of somnolent quietude, and that recently resulted in the accidental killing of Con Riordan, his sparring partner, during an exhibition bout, there seems no good reason why Corbett should not go down and out also.

All things considered, Corbett and Fitzsimmons are more equally matched in pugilistic ability than is generally supposed. Corbett will be the favorite if they meet, and I think he will win, but Fitzsimmons may have something up his sleeve that will surprise the entire sporting world.

VAN DOOZER A LINE BUCKER.

His Chicago Athletic Association Team One of the West's Best Elevens.

One of the strongest football elevens in the west is the Chicago Athletic association team, which has defeated the University of Wisconsin, University of Chicago, University of Illinois, Rush Medical college and other good elevens this year. It claims to be the best team in the west, and if the University of Wisconsin team is excepted the claim may be considered well founded. The Chicagoans do not rank in the class of Yale, Princeton, Harvard and the University of Pennsylvania, however, a fact that was demonstrated when Yale defeated them 23 to 0, Oct. 24, and Harvard performed the same feat Nov. 10 by a score of 36 to 0.

J. P. VAN DOOZER.

J. P. Van Doozer is captain and right half back of the eleven. He stands 5 feet 9¾ inches and weighs 174 pounds. He is the best player on the team and could make the team in any college today. Experts pronounce his work of the gilt edge order. He is very powerful and a fast runner. At buck [illegible]; the line his equal is hard to find. He has played for four years at Northwestern university and has a splendid knowledge of the game.

The fastest pacing records this season are Robert J, 2:01½; John R. Gentry, 2:03¾; Online and Joe Patchen, 2:04; the 2-year-old colt Directly, 2:07¾, and Flying Jib, with running mate, in 1:58¾.

Emanuel Lasker, the chess champion of the world, is recovering from a severe attack of typhoid fever.

In the New York chess masters' tournament Steinitz won first prize, Albin second, and Showalter and Hymes tied for third place. The feature of the match was the strong play of Hymes, the Columbia college student.

Heffelfinger, the famous Yale coach, predicted that Princeton would defeat Pennsylvania by at least ten points, and Princeton did not even score. Heff is not a flattering success as a prophet.

The University of Chicago eleven, coached by A. A. Stagg, the famous Yale athlete, has made a very poor showing this season. In a recent game the opposing Purdue team apparently knew Chicago's signals and won with ease.

M. Cannon, the English jockey, will probably head the list of winning riders in England this year. He has a houseboat on the Thames and when not in training keeps himself well by rowing, swimming and hunting. He has an income that might satisfy a duke.

WILL COME UP AGAIN

Rumors of an Aldermanic Compromise on the Water Works Purchase Ordinance Were Heard Today.

Several of Them Profess to Have Heard Nothing About it—A Concession Talked Off.

John Clyne, the Contractor, Again Comes Forward With a Proposition to Extend the Intake.

The council meets tonight and there is a general expectation that the water-works purchase resolution will be up for further consideration. This afternoon there was a rumor to the effect that the conflicting elements in the council had agreed upon a compromise and that the resolution would be passed this evening. Half a dozen of the aldermen, when asked about it, said they had heard nothing of any compromise. One member of the council said that he thought, however, that the water company would come off its perch and meet the aldermen and consent to terms that would be equivalent to reducing the interest on $750,000 worth of bonds for fourteen years from 5 per cent to 4 per cent. That would be a concession in favor of Alderman Hale's demand that the water company either furnish $750,000 5 per cent bonds to be turned in for 4 per cent or else deduct $105,000 from the purchase price.

Thomas S. Wood appeared at the afternoon caucus in the interests of John Clyne, of West Duluth, and presented an amended proposition to the effect that he would take the contract for building an intake pipe three miles long, from the present system and have 500 men to work by next Monday morning.

THE COMMISSIONERSHIP.

Council Will Soon be Called Upon to Name W. W. Butchart's Successor.

The city council will soon have a duty to perform in the direction of choosing a successor to County Commissioner Butchart. Mr. Butchart becomes sheriff of St. Louis county Jan. 1, and about Dec. 10 it is calculated that he will resign his position on the county board. By a special act of the legislature the council must select the successor to fill out the unexpired term, as the district represented by Mr. Butchart is wholly within the city limits.

The woods are chuck full of aspirants for the place. Jacob Zimmerman feels that he has served the Republican party in and out of season long and faithfully enough to be entitled to the appointment. Gustave Bergquist has a longing in his breast for the appointment and Wilson, the contractor, seems to feel that his knowledge of things in general would be of great value to the county were he given the place. J. C. Helm, the ex-alderman at the West End, put up his lightning rod and got into the field first. He seems to be the favorite and it is held by many that he will get the appointment if no complications arise.

THIEL, fifteen cabinets, two styles, $3.

THE COMMISSION RULE.

There Will Be a Lively Fight Over it Next Friday.

On Friday next the board of trade members will again vote on the abolishment of the commission rule requiring a charge of not less than 1 cent per bushel to be made. There is a decided difference of opinion as to what ought to be done. The larger dealers are for the abolishment of the rule and the smaller ones want it to stick and be enforced. Which side is stronger remains to be determined.

"The heavier dealers say that in order to meet competition from Superior the rule must be suspended. Over there they are selling at one half cent and consequently have that much advantage in the market. One dealer said the other day:

"We have got to meet competition, no matter if we have to sell for nothing. For myself I would rather handle wheat for nothing than to let the business be taken somewhere else and that is what it will result in."

On the other hand the smaller dealers claim that they cannot make enough on less than 1 cent commission to keep themselves in business and if the rate is cut they will be driven out. This may have something to do with the attitude assumed by the big dealers. A Herald reporter attempted to talk with some of them but none were disposed to discuss the matter for publication.

The Formal Opening.

The new establishment of the Minnesota Packing and Provision company on Sixth avenue and Railroad street was opened this morning. A handsome lunch was provided and cigars and refreshments were on hand for those desiring them. Local Manager John Cummings was assisted in entertaining by G. T. Spelman, secretary of the company, who came up from St. Paul to be present at the opening. The new house is finely arranged and conveniently furnished. In the rear are the stables and wagon. Altogether, it is a very complete establishment.

In Duluth For Duluth!

Of course, we are in Duluth and we are very much "In it," when it comes to securing an order if people know a good thing when they see it (and most of them around here do).

Once in a while a person asks if we have any branch stores. We have not and our energies are all devoted right here. It is more particularly a source of congratulation to ourselves that we are not a branch store, and it is in many ways a vast benefit to our customers, for the policy of our business is not dictated by people who don't live here and are not in touch with our conditions. It also spares our customers the disadvantage of having the dead stock of the main store in another city "worked off" on them. We think that any person who will look through our store will concede that we have the cleanest, brightest, newest and freshest stock they have seen in many a day. We have no shop-worn, dingy, smoky, or out of date goods to work off and all Goods are marked in PLAIN FIGURES, which will command attention if you will just look them over before you buy.

We Sell=

A Best Quality Plush Bed Lounge, Sold elsewhere for $13.50 to $16.00; For $11.50

Others at $12.50, $13.50, $15.00 and $18.00.

We can show you double the number of patterns shown by any store here. If you are skeptical, come in and see them.

Great Inducements During December!

We have marked the prices way below the Selling point, to move our large stock.

Partial Payment Plan. This Popular Credit System was introduced by us in Duluth eight years ago and has grown in popularity ever since. We sell all goods in this way. Part down and balance on convenient weekly or monthly payments.

CARLISLE'S PLAN

Secretary of the Treasury Sends to Congress a Statement of His Currency Reform Plan.

He Earnestly Urges Upon Congress the Necessity of Remedial Legislation at the Present Session.

United States Legal Tender Notes and Treasury Notes a Menace to the Gold Reserve.

Believes His Plan Will Secure a Safe and Elastic National and State Bank Currency.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The annual report of the secretary of the treasury on the state of finances was sent to congress today. It shows that the revenues of the government from all sources for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1894, were $377,802,489 and the expenditures $445,605,758, which shows a deficit of $69,803,260. As compared with the fiscal year 1893, the revenues of 1894 fell off $88,914,063. During the year there was a decrease of $15,952,674 in the ordinary expenditures of the government.

The revenues for the current fiscal year are thus estimated upon the basis of existing laws (cents omitted): From customs $160,000,000; from internal revenue $165,000,000; from miscellaneous sources $15,000,000. From postal service $84,427,748. Total estimated revenues $424,427,748.

The expenditures for the same period are estimated as follows: For the civil establishment $91,520,000; for the military establishment $53,250,000; for the naval establishment $32,500,000; for the Indian service $11,500,000; for pensions $140,500,000; for interest on the public debt $31,000,000; for postal service $84,427,748. Total estimated expenditures $444,427,748, or a deficit of $20,000,000.

It is estimated that upon the basis of existing laws the revenues of the government for the fiscal year 1896 will be: From customs, $185,000,000; from internal revenue, $190,000,000; from miscellaneous sources, $15,000,000; from postal service, $86,907,407; total estimated revenues, $476,907,407.

Too Many Ports of Entry.

On the subject of customs administration the secretary says there is in his opinion, great necessity for a reorganization of the customs districts throughout the country by reason of the fact that there are now many ports of entry at which little or no business is transacted. These should be abolished and the districts consolidated, and in his opinion this could be accomplished without impairing the means necessary to protect the revenue against smugglers and without withdrawing proper facilities for documenting vessels.

The appropriations heretofore made annually for the enforcement of the Chinese exclusion laws are declared to be inadequate for the purpose. The expense involved in investigating cases which Chinese unlawfully enter the United States in the trial of those arrested and the deportation of those convicted, including their transportation to the Pacific coast is very large and the appropriation referred to should in the judgment of the secretary be not less than $100,000 per annum.

The pending treaty between China and the United States under which laborers residing here may, under conditions, leave this country and return thereto will necessitate the exercise of greater vigilance and a consequent increase in expense.

The department is in possession of reports indicating a marked decrease in the number of seals on the Pribyloff islands and in consequence the number permitted to be taken this year was limited to 16,000 and for the ensuing year the number will have to be still further reduced.

Concurrently with this falling off on the islands there has been for some years a great increase in the number of seals killed at sea. While the official returns cannot yet be stated it is known that the total catch in the North Pacific and Bering sea for the season just expired is by far the largest ever known in the history of pelagic sealing.

The decrease in the seals on the Pribyloff islands coupled with the large number of the dead pups found on the islands during the last season where mothers presumably were killed at sea, and the further phenomenal increase in pelagic catch justifies the belief that before the expiration of five years—when the regulations enacted by the tribunal of arbitration are to be submitted to our government and that of Great Britain for a new examination to consider possible modifications in the light of past experience—the fur seal will have been practically exterminated.

Currency Reform.

The most important feature of Mr. Carlisle's report is his discussion of the subject of currency reform in the course of which the administration's plans of a new system of currency are set forth in detail. Mr. Carlisle says: On July 1 last the total cash in the treasury, excluding current liabilities but including a gold reserve of $64,873,021 was $116,626,221, and on Nov. 1, the total cash, excluding current liabilities but including $61,361,826 in gold, was $106,992,734 showing a decrease of $9,633,487. The excess of expenditures over receipts during the last fiscal year was $69,803,260, and during the first five months of the present fiscal year $21,737,367.92.

It is not believed, however, that this difference between the receipts and expenditures will continue in the same proportion until the close of the year and accordingly I have estimated a deficiency of $20,000,000 at that time. Owing to the large importation of raw sugar in anticipation of the passage of the tariff act of Aug. 26, 1894, the duties collected upon that article up to Dec. 1 amounted to only $3,022,000, and of course nothing has yet been realized from the tax on incomes as its payment cannot be legally enforced until after July 1, 1895.

But there is reason to believe that the importations of sugar must be resumed at an early date and continue upon a scale which will include a large revenue from that source during the remainder of the year and it is probable, also that on account of the penalties which may be incurred for non-payment within ten days after July 1, a considerable part of the income tax will be realized.

My opinion is that the law now in force will increase the revenue for the fiscal year 1896, as all the provisions will then be operative and the prospective improvement in the business of the country if realized will greatly increase the resource from which taxes are collected, and accordingly a surplus of $28,814,920 is estimated for that year.

Remedial Legislation Needed.

In my last annual report I called attention to the unsatisfactory consideration of our financial legislation, especially to the issue and redemption of circulating notes by the government and the inability of the secretary of the treasury under existing laws to make prompt and adequate provision for the support of the public credit. The experience of the past year has confirmed and strengthened the opinions then expressed, and I therefore respectfully but most earnestly urge upon congress the necessity for remedial legislation during its present session.

So long as there are in circulation under the government two coins, unequal in value but equal in legal tender qualities, every consideration of good faith and sound policy requires the prompt redemption of the notes on presentation in the kind of coin demanded by the holder and constant observance of such administrative methods as may be necessary to preserve the purchasing power of the less valuable note.

This situation is the necessary result of three features of our currency legislation and it cannot be permanently avoided or even temporarily improved without material changes in our laws relating to that subject. The features are: (1) The circulation of United States notes as currency and their current redemption in coin on demand. (2) On the compulsory reissue of such notes after redemption. (3) The excessive accumulation and coinage of silver and the issue of notes or certificate of notes on a ratio which greatly overvalues that metal as compared with the standard value of that metal in this and other principal commercial countries.

Frequent issues of bonds for the purpose of procuring gold which cannot be kept after it has been obtained, will certainly cause increased distrust among our own people as well as among the people of other countries, and not only swells the volume of our securities returning from abroad for sale of redemption but increases the withdrawal of foreign capital here to the injury of our domestic enterprises.

A Constant Menace.

Since the resumption of specie payments on Jan. 1, 1879, United States legal tender notes and treasury notes issued under the act of July 14, 1890, have been redeemed in gold to the amount of $260,000,000 and all the notes so redeemed have been reissued and are now outstanding. They are a constant menace to the gold reserve and no scheme of financial reform can be complete or effectual which does not provide at least for their gradual elimination from our currency system.

To continue their redemption and reissue under present conditions endangers the entire volume of our currency, discredits the obligations of government and people, increases the public debt and seriously embarrasses the administration of our financial affairs. While no proposition should be entertained that will have a tendency to degrade the currency, or in any degree impair public confidence in its safety, I am convinced that the interests of the country require such changes in our legislation as will discharge the government entirely from the business of issuing or reissuing circulating notes and thus relieve its fiscal department of the periodical demands upon its resources, which, under the existing system, must continue to disturb the financial and general business affairs of the people.

Under our present currency system so far as it consists of notes issued by the United States government the volume of circulation was intended to be, and is, in fact, unchangeable. It is unalterably fixed at a certain amount, and no matter how great the emergency may be, it can be neither enlarged nor diminished. The only part of the currency possessing in any degree the quality of elasticity is that issued by the national banking associations, and it is now generally conceded, I believe, that in this particular at least it has failed to meet the requirements of the situation at some of the most critical periods in business affairs of the country.

Its failure is crediable in my opinion to the following cause: First, to the volume of United States currency of various kinds kept constantly outstanding, making the contraction or expansion of comparatively national bank circulation less effective than it would otherwise have been; secondly, the difficulty and delay in procuring and in some extent to retiring circulation; thirdly and mainly, the provisions of the law which require the deposit of United States bonds to secure circulation and restrict the issue of notes to 90 per cent of the par value of the bonds.

The greatest difficulties are encountered in the national banking system. As now organized it is least effective when the business of the country demands quick expansions of the currency to meet sudden emergencies. In addition to sudden obstructions to the prompt increase and decrease of circulation, the ninth section of the act of July 12, 1882, which provides for the extension of the corporate existence of national banks, expressly prohibits them from retiring their notes to a greater amount than $3,000,000 in the aggregate per month and advocates that a bank which has made a deposit of lawful money, in order to withdraw its circulation, shall not be permitted to make any increase in its circulation for a period of six months thereafter.

OPTICAL DEPARTMENT.

CAUTION About the selection of spectacles. Don't take chances with your eyes. Sight is priceless and its proper preservation is a matter for the most earnest consideration of every person of ordinary common sense. When the eyes become tired from reading or sewing, or if the letters look blurred or run together it is a sure indication that glasses are needed. The lenses sold by jewelers and at bargain counters are of unequal density and have imperfectly formed surfaces. Continued use of these poor lenses will result in positive injury to the eye from the constant strain upon the accomodation to supply the defects in the glass. Owing to the great demand for eye glasses and spectacles we have secured the services of an expert refractionist If you think you have anything the matter with your eyes, see him; no charge will be made for an exact refractive examination; no fancy prices; no humbug.

A FATAL BLOW STRUCK

John Naughton Felled William Brickley to the Floor With a Blow of His Fist.

When Picked Up Brickley Was Nearly Dead, and He Expired in a Few Minutes.

Both Young Men Were Deaf Mutes and Had Been Fast Friends For Several Years.

PITTSBURG, Dec. 4.—John Naughton, aged 24, struck William Brickley, a companion about the same age, a blow with his fist in a Diamond street saloon this morning which felled him to the floor. When picked up Brickley was nearly dead, and life was extinct in a few minutes. It is thought his neck was broken, though he was taken to the morgue without a medical examination and his assailant locked up.

Both young men were deaf mutes and have been fast friends for years. Last night they were together, drinking and carousing. This morning they were refused a drink in the Diamond street saloon and began quarreling between themselves over the ownership of 25 cents. Naughton then struck the fatal blow.

THE COOK GANG SIGHTED.

A Posse of Heavily Armed Deputy Marshals Has Started After Them.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 4.—A special to the Republic from Perry, O. T., says news was received there last evening that the Cook gang was at Red Rock, a small station two miles north of here and the superintendent of the Santa Fe road advised Marshal Nix, who, in turn ordered the deputy marshals of that place to go with a posse.

It is feared that an attempt will be made to rob a train at Red Rock. The posse from here is heavily armed and a battle is sure if the robbers show up.

SERIOUS FIRE IN OMAHA.

The Exposition Hall, a Theater and a Baptist Church Burned.

OMAHA, Dec. 4.—At 5 o'clock this morning fire broke out in the Exposition hall, covering three-quarters of a block on Fourteenth, Fifteenth and Capitol avenue, and totally destroyed it with the First Baptist church, Fifteenth street and Davenport.

The Exposition building was partially occupied by the Fifteenth Street theater. This is the theater burned out two years ago on Farnam street. Hoyt's "Bunch of Keys" was playing an engagement and their loss is heavy.

The fire was discovered in the rear of the store of John Lally at 515, and in fifteen minutes the whole Exposition was a mass of flames. It seemed but an instant from the time the flames reached the theater before the whole interior was on fire. The flames quickly spread to the First Baptist church adjoining, and in an hour all that was left of the building was a bare brick wall.

The firemen succeeded in saving the few residences on the northeast corner of the block, but they were badly damaged, as was also the Dellone hotel. The water pressure was very light and the firemen were badly handicapped. The flames spread so rapidly that not a thing was saved from any of the stores in the Exposition building or the theater. The total loss is estimated at $175,000, with insurance probably about one-half.

CARLILE'S PLANS

These provisions are so manifestedly in conflict with the dictates of sound policy that it require no comment. In view of the foregoing considerations and many others that might be urged in favor of a reorganization and reformation of our paper currency system I have prepared the outlines of a plan which, in my opinion will relieve the government to a great extent from the burdens now imposed on it, secure within a reasonable time a safe and elastic national and state bank currency and result ultimately in the permanent retirement of United States legal tender notes of both classes. It is in brief as follows:

The Secretary's Plan.

1. Repeal all laws requiring or authorizing the deposit of United States bonds as security for circulation.

2. Permit national banks to issue notes to an amount not exceeding 75 per centum of their paid up and unimpaired capital, but require each bank before receiving notes to deposit a guarantee fund consisting of United States legal tender notes, including treasury notes of 1890, to the amount of 30 per cent upon the circulating notes outstanding, to be maintained at all times.

3. Whenever a bank retires its circulation, in whole or in part, its guarantee fund to be returned to it in such proportion that the amount of notes retired may retain the provision of the law making the stockholders individually liable and that the circulation of notes shall constitute a first lien upon all assets of the bank.

4. Impose a tax of one-half of 1 per centum per annum, payable semi-annually, upon the average amount of notes in circulation to defray the expenses of printing notes, official supervision, cancellation, etc.

5. No national bank notes to be of less denomination than $10 and all notes of the same denomination to be uniform in design, but banks desiring to redeem their notes in gold may have them payable in that coin. The secretary of the treasury to have authority to prepare and keep on hand ready for issue upon application a reserve of blank national bank notes for each banking association having circulation.

6. Require each national banking association to redeem its notes at its own office or at its own official agencies to be designated by it.

7. To provide for a safety fund for the immediate redemption of the circulating notes of failed banks, impose a tax of (blank) per centum per annum on the average circulation of each bank until the fund amounts to 5 per cent of the total circulation outstanding. Require each national bank and each bank taking out additional circulation to deposit its proper proportion of this fund, before receiving notes. When a bank fails, its guarantee fund held on deposit to be paid into the safety fund and used in the redemption of its notes, and if this fund shall be impaired by the redemption of the notes of failed national banks, and the immediately available cash assets of such banks are insufficient to establish the fund, it shall at once be made good by pro rata assessments upon the other banks according to the amounts of their outstanding circulation, but there shall be a first lien upon all the assets of failed bankers or banks to reimburse the contributing banks. The safety fund may be invested in outstanding United States bonds having the longest time to run, the bonds and interest upon them to be held as part of the fund and sold when necessary to redeem notes of failed banks.

To Withdraw Limitations.

8. Repeal the provisions of the reorganization and extension act of July 12, 1882, imposing limitations on reduction and increase of national bank currency

9. Repeal all sections of the law requiring banks to keep a reserve on account of deposits.

10. The secretary of the treasury may in his discretion use any surplus revenue in redemption and retirement of United States legal tender notes but such redemptions shall not in the aggregate exceed an amount equal to (blank) per cent of the additional circulation taken out by national and state banks under the system herein proposed.

11. Circulating notes issued by a banking corporation duly organized under the laws of any state and which transacts no other than a banking business shall be exempt from taxation under the laws of the United States when it shows to the satisfaction of the secretary of the treasury and the comptroller of the currency, (1) That such bank has at no time had outstanding its circulating notes in excess of 75 per cent of its paid up and unimpaired capital. (2) That its stockholders are individually liable for the redemption of its circulating notes to the full extent of their ownership of stock. (3) That the circulating notes constituted by the law a first lien upon all assets of the bank. (4) That the bank at all times keep the guarantee fund in United States legal tender notes, including treasury notes of 1890, equal to 30 per cent of its outstanding or circulation notes, and (5) that it has promptly redeemed its notes on demand at its principal office or at one of its branch offices, if it has branches.

12. The secretary of the treasury may under proper rules and regulations to be established by him permit state banks to procure and use in the preparation of their notes the distinctive paper used in printing United States securities, but no state bank shall print or engrave its notes in similitude of a United States note or certificate or national bank note.

A Gradual Retirement.

Whatever may be the objections to the circulation of United States legal tender paper on either constitutional or financial grounds, it has become so incorporated into our currency system and constitutes so large a part of our active circulation that it could not be suddenly withdrawn without producing, in the present state of our laws, considerable disturbance in the fiscal operations of the government, as well as the business of the people, and therefore the plan suggested provides for its gradual retirement by the use of surplus revenues hereafter received, a process which will probably require several years for its completion. As these notes cannot be retired until other forms of currency to an equal amount have taken their place, there will be neither a forced compaction or expansion of the circulation on this account.

The experience of this country under the act of February 28, 1871, which limited silver certificates to denominations of $10 and over, and under the act of Aug. 3, 1886, which removed that restriction, justifies the belief that the change now proposed would result in a great increase of value of coin and would be much less likely to return to and remain in the treasury as at present. At the time of the passage of the act last referred to permitting the issue of silver dollars not represented by certificates in denominations of $1, $2 and $4 standard silver dollars had accumulated in the treasury to the extent of $83,959,880, although the total coinage up to that date was only $235,643,286.

Within four months after that date, although in the meantime the coinage was progressing at the usual rate, the amount of free silver held in the treasury was reduced to $71,259,568 and it continued to decrease on account of the demand for small certificates, until it became so reduced that further issues of certificates had to be limited practically to the current coinage of the dollars.

Tariff Reform.

On the subject of tariff reform the secretary says: The raw material used in the production for the use of people in their homes and their various industrial pursuits should be free from taxation, in order that the burdens of labor may be lightened, the opportunities for employment increased and the necessaries of life made more abundant and less expensive. If our industries are to be profitably conducted, reduced cost of production must precede or accompany reduced prices for the finished product, and as cheap commodities increase consumption, the interests of all classes will be promoted by removing the obstructions which deny our skilled laborers and artisans access to the world's store of raw materials.

The late act, while it places upon the free list a considerable part of most important raw materials used in our manufactures, left iron and lead ores and bituminous coal, together with several other articles of less consequence, still dutiable, thus not only failing to put in force a consistent system of revenue reform, but leaving some of our most valuable industries at a great disadvantage as compared with their rivals differently located.

Used three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes of Bucklin's Arnica Salve, and his leg is sound and well. Confectionery of Mrs. T. King, on Ramsey Street. Broken Into by Thieves Last Night.

They Stole a Large Supply of Cigars and Tobacco But Touched No Candy or Fruit.

Fine Concert to be Given at Great Eastern Hall on Thursday Evening—Columbia Club Election.

Another bold robbery took place last night at the confectionery store of Mrs. T. Ring on Ramsey street, east of the postoffice. The sneak thieves broke their way into the building through two doors in the rear and stole about $50 worth of cigars and tobacco. The fruit and confectionery were not disturbed, but the robbers helped themselves to a bottle of pop and one of birch beer. The cigar case was rifled of its contents as well as ten boxes of cigars which had never been opened. A large amount of chewing tobacco was also taken. The inside door was bolted and barred, but such force was brought to bear that the catches were broken, the door sprung and the bar lifted from the outside.

This is the second time the place has been broken into since the store was opened. The thieves were cute enough to empty out the cigars and leave the boxes, thereby lessening the opportunity for detection.

WHEAT WEAKER TODAY.

It Opened Strong But Heavy Selling Broke Prices.

Wheat opened strong and higher here today. The news was of a bullish character, cables being higher, drought being reported in Kansas, a fair investment demand appearing and generous covering by shorts at Chicago aiding the upward movement. May started at 62¾c, ½c higher than yesterday's close and within the first half hour sold up to 63c. Then there was heavy selling which led to weakness, and by 11 o'clock May had dropped back to 62½c. It rallied slightly, but the strength did not last and it again sold off, the close being weak at the lowest point of the day. Nearly all the speculative business was in May, but one trade being reported in December. The trading in cash stuff was only fair. The mills took about 30,000 bus, part of it being at a premium. Gossip.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, Room 107, Chamber of Commerce.

All the cables came in strong this morning and accompanying them were some very liberal buying orders. Cables also confirmed the reports of damage to the Argentine and Australian crops. There was some realizing on long wheat but it was all taken by good purties. New York reported vessel room chartered for over 300,000 bus there today. Bradstreets' report said the world's visible increased 1,030,000 bus. Reports of damage to new winter wheat by drouth are coming in again and are getting more serious daily. The government report on feeding of wheat to live stock will be issued tomorrow and is expected to be very bullish. Receipts in the Northwest were 870 carloads. Clearances aggregated 469,000 bus. Continue buying wheat on any decline.

Corn and oats were very strong but with little business doing. We consider corn a safe purchase on any concessions. Provisions dull and featureless.

CONDENSED SPORTING CHAT.

Stonenell won 14 races out of 22 starts and a total of $13,770 during 1894.

The report that James S. Mitchell was entered as a student in the Medical school of the University of Pennsylvania is not true.

Monroe Salisbury believes that Allx, 2:03¼, can trot in 2:02.

During the past season Chicago race tracks distributed $827,105 among the horse owners.

R. J. Clark of the Country club of Boston recently drove a golf ball 573 feet at a single blow. It is said that 500 feet is an exceedingly good drive.

Eddie Bald, the Buffalo bicyclist is called Cannon Bald on account of his phenomenal sprinting ability at the end of a race.

George Gould is "going in" for golf at Lakewood, N. J., where the golf club expects to play all winter when the weather will permit.

Father Bill Curtis, the new president of the Amateur Athletic union, once made a lift in harness of 3,239 pounds. He was a famous athlete a quarter of a century ago.

The first large sum ever offered for a player's release was offered to the Chicago club by Anson for his own release back in the seventies—namely, $1,000. It was only a promise to sign a contract, yet the great ball player would not break the promise for absolution from which he offered $1,000.

Uncle Henry Dow of Randolph, Me., who is 93 years old, drove a trotting horse to sulky at that place the other day in 2:38. It is said that he has as sure a seat as the younger men.

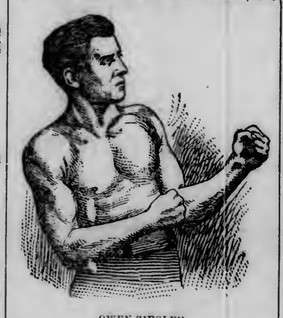

ZIEGLER A FISTIC STAR.

He Looks Like the Coming Lightweight Champion of the World.

That it is the unexpected which always happens is never more frequently demonstrated than in pugilism. This was evidenced at the Atlantic Athletic club's recent tournament at Coney Island.

Jack McAuliffe of Brooklyn, lightweight champion of the world, met Owen Ziegler of Philadelphia in a ten round contest. McAuliffe well remembered the memorable evening not long since when he met Young Griffo. The referee declared the encounter a draw. The hisses of the assembled thousands ringing in his ears proved to McAuliffe that the public regarded it as a defeat, despite the decision.

From that time McAuliffe set to work to regain the confidence of his admirers. He trained faithfully, but overindulgence and a life of pleasure for four years must tell. He faced Ziegler well trained, but not the Gentleman Jack of seven years ago, and after the Quaker City lad recovered from the champion's first violent onslaught he more than held his own.

In the first round McAuliffe immediately assumed the aggressive, and although Ziegler was outgeneraled his superior strength stood him in good stead, and at the end of the round it was an even thing. McAuliffe broke his left hand in the next round, and consequently was compelled to act on the defensive till the call of time. Notwithstanding his misfortune the third round was a hard and fast one, and blood flowed freely. Suddenly Mac seemed to grow weak. The men clinched, and a police sergeant climbed into the ring and stopped the bout. The fight was declared a draw.

Owen H. Ziegler has participated in 46 battles and points with pride to the fact that in only one instance has the decision been unfavorable to him. That was when he met Jack Falvey in a six round go at Providence. Ziegler is 24 years of age. He weighed in against McAuliffe at 132 pounds. He is a game fighter who can take lots of punishment and is likely to be heard of in the future. Among those whom he has recently been pitted against are Horace Leeds, Billy Ernst of Brooklyn and Stanton Abbott, champion of England.

Interesting Facts About Golf.

Golf was a fashionable game among the Scotch nobility at the beginning of the seventeenth century. It was prohibited at an earlier date (1457) by James II of Scotland, as it interfered with archery, which the king encouraged, that his men might vie the better with the English bowmen. It was also prohibited by James IV. Charles I of England was fond of golf and was playing when the news of the Irish rebellion reached him. In the reign of Edward III golf was known under the name of "cambuca," a late Latin word, and today "cammack" in Scotland is the name of a game played with a hockey stick. The Irish and Gaelic for a golf club is "camen." As for "caddie," the golf player's attendant, the word comes from the French "cadet," the younger son or brother, the phonetic form of which, "cadee," was used in England (1689-1789) to define "a gentleman who entered the army without a commission to learn the military profession and find a career for himself."

Breezy Theatrical Advertising.

Here is a sample of some breezy managerial advertising:

"Things are awful hard, but Spokane's all right, and —— —— is the only really and truly manager between ——. Well, anybody with a good trupe can do well on the Northern Pacific. Maggie Murphie played to $448 in Great Falls, $479 in Helena, $441 in Spokane. And I've been contending for five years that Murphie was in the 400 class. Leave it to Cal Stone or look at her picture. We would have played Butte to over 400, but Lizzie Evans and Pete Baker were in the way, Not. John Smyth, manager, with the trupe, Frank Perkins—away ahead—over $70. Billie Blinkins arranging Indian excursions for a Turkish bath. It's a good thing. Push it along."

Now, really, doesn't it make your mouth water to see Mr. Smith's "trupe?"

A FATAL ERROR.

If He Hadn't Proposed on Monday, All Would Have Been Well.

"Miss Snaggles," began the youth tremulously, "may I speak of a matter that lies very close to my heart? I"—

"Please, Mr. Spoonamore," she interposed, with a pleading gesture, "don't say anything that"—

"Let me speak!" he went on. "I have held my heart in check and choked back the words that have risen to my lips until"—

"Oh, Mr. Spoonamore! Don't"—

"Until my feelings have mastered me and the time has come when I can no longer"—

"Can't you see"—

"I see nothing but you, Japonica Snaggles! I hear nothing but the sound of your voice. I think of nothing but you. I can't sleep at night. I don't know what to do with myself in the daytime. For three weeks I have taken no interest in politics. For three weeks I have not eaten enough to keep a jumping bean alive. I don't take any more interest in the coming chrysanthemum show than if it were an exhibition of farm wagons or Early York poultry. I have come here this evening to say"—

"Mr. Spoonamore, I ask you not to"—

"Do you mean to tell me I am presuming too much in daring to think of you, to carry your image in my heart, to dream of a time when we two"—

"I did not say that, but"—

"Then, why should I not speak? Have you not seen how much I"—

"Mr. Spoonamore, I will not pretend to misunderstand your meaning. You have come to tell me you love me."

"I have! I am at this moment a raging torrent of love! I am an avalanche of—of tender affection! I am a—cyclone of ungovernable fondness! Japonica"—

With clasped hands the beautiful girl stood before him.

"Oh, Mr. Spoonamore," she said wildly, "my heart pleads in your favor, but why, oh, why, did you come this evening?"

"Why not this evening?"

"Surely you could have come at some other time."

"Surely I could, but why should I not have chosen this evening to ask you to be my wife?"

"Because, Mr. Spoonamore," replied the maiden, her eyes dewy with unshed tears and her lovely lips quivering, "it's Monday, and to say 'Yes' now would look so much as if I were getting you from the bargain counter!"—Chicago Tribune.

A Cruel Husband.

She was a silly young thing and shouldn't have married for ten years yet, but she had, and when she had settled down to the everydayness of wedded life she was disillusionized, at least temporarily. Her husband was no longer her hero, and the dark clouds gathered thick in her sky—so thick at last that she consulted an attorney in the matter of bringing suit for divorce. She should have gone to her mother, but she didn't. She went to the attorney.

"I have come to see you about bringing a suit for divorce," she said, coming plump down to the business in hand.

"Bless me," exclaimed the lawyer, a fatherly old fellow, "you are too young to be getting a divorce."

"I've been married six months, sir," she said haughtily, "and youth can suffer as well as age. I know what it is, sir, to bear the burden of care and doubt; to wait and to watch, sir, and to feel the agony that wives are subjected to by unfeeling husbands," and she sobbed convulsively.

"Well, well," said the attorney, soothingly, "don't talk about it, my dear child. On what grounds do you wish the suit brought?"

"For cruelty, sir, cruelty," and her face grew hard.

"Cruel to you!" exclaimed the old fellow admiringly, for she was extremely pretty.

"Yes, sir," she sobbed.

"And in what did the cruelty consist, my dear?"

"Why—why, sir," she sobbed afresh, "he doesn't call me Birdie any more as he did when we were first married."

And the kind old lawyer broke down completely.—Detroit Free Press.

The Municipal Reform League.

The National Municipal Reform league will meet in Minneapolis next Saturday in national convention and will continue in session on the following Monday. This league is made up of delegates from chambers of commerce, boards of trade and other similar organizations in different cities. A circular issued by the executive committee of the league states that the first national convention, held in Philadelphia in January last, was followed by a remarkable development of public interest and a decided advance in public opinion respecting the evils of our municipal politics. The extravagance, incompetence and venality, which are the inevitable results of popular indifference, and the spoils system, have been investigated and exposed in several cities, and the recent elections are claimed to mark the beginning of a new era in the history of American citizenship.

Fortunately the people of Duluth have not been indifferent to the necessity of good municipal government. At least they have not manifested any indifference for a number of years past, and as a result of the great interest which all classes of citizens have taken in municipal affairs we have an administration which will compare favorably with any in the country. However, this fact should not lessen the desire to take part in the approaching convention at Minneapolis. The fact that Duluth is already an example to a large extent of the municipal reform which the National league is seeking to establish in every city would give this city's representatives greater weight with that body.

The program will include the discussion of "Municipal Condition of Western Cities," "Methods of Work and Organization" and "The Elements of a Good City Charter." These are important subjects and their discussion must result in valuable points being brought out by those who attend the convention. It is especially desirable that the cities of Minnesota should be represented at this convention and get the benefit of the best ideas on city government to be obtained. Especially is this important in view of the fact that the next legislature is expected to overhaul our municipal legislation very thoroughly, and, perhaps create new schemes of city government in this state. An effort will be made in the coming legislature to pass a law creating a uniform charter for all the cities in the state, and it is desirable that all the best ideas of civic government should be included in it. The convention at Minneapolis will afford our legislators an opportunity of having the most thoughtful and expert opinions in regard to the different schemes of city government. Every city interested in the proposed legislation should be represented at the convention. Duluth should send a number of delegates to take part in the discussions and learn what they can from the prominent men from other sections of the country in regard to this matter. There will be many men there from abroad who have given the subject much attention and their counsel will be valuable.

The committee in charge of the convention urge all associations of men or women, having for an object the improvement of municipal government or the promotion of good citizenship, to send delegates to the conference, and all individuals interested in the objects are invited to attend. The Herald trusts that Duluth will be well represented on this occasion.

Dr. Parkhurst and his allies are threatening to overdo the matter. They are now calling for the dismissal of the entire New York police force. This is neither practicable nor just. There are many honest and efficient men on the force and they should not be removed because others have been corrupt.

Extending Its Service.

The Atlanta, Ga., Journal yesterday withdrew from the Southern Associated Press and signed a ninety-year contract with the Associated Press. The leased wire service of the Associated Press will be extended to Atlanta next Saturday in order to supply the Journal with the entire day report of the Associated Press and to make Atlanta a news distributing center for the states of Georgia and Alabama.

The Journal has the largest circulation of any afternoon paper in the cotton states and ranks among the best of the afternoon papers in the United States. One of its principal owners is Hon. Hoke Smith, secretary of the interior. H. H. Cabaniss, business manager and treasurer of the Journal, was in Washington yesterday and signed the contract for the leased wire and the membership papers of the Associated Press.

The Columbia, S. C., Register, one of the oldest and most influential dailies in the South, yesterday withdrew from the Southern Associated Press and signed a ninety year contract with the Associated Press. The Southern night leased wire circuit of the Associated Press was extended from Richmond, Va., to the capital of South Carolina last night, passing through the cities of Danville, Va., and Charlotte, N. C., en route.

The Southern papers which have joined the Associated Press during the past week are receiving the full leased wire service, and are as follows: New Orleans Picayune, New Orleans Times-Democrat, Atlanta Journal, Columbia, S. C., Register, Richmond States, Petersburg Index-Appeal and Norfolk Pilot.

Thus the Associated Press is steadily extending its territory and increasing its ability to furnish a complete news service. The policy of the Associated Press is always one of advancement and improvement, and consequently it today furnishes the best and most complete telegraphic news service in the country. The Herald's telegraphic columns daily bear witness to this fact. The Herald holds the exclusive day franchise of the Associated Press in Duluth.

The city of Pittsburg has started in earnest on the execution of a plan for a plant for the production of antitoxin. The chamber of commerce has indorsed the suggestion of the sanitation commission recommending that the city take immediate steps toward supplying the life-saving fluid, and there is reason to believe that it will be ready for distribution in six weeks or two months. The director of the department of public safety, in anticipation of such a step, has had preparations made for a laboratory at the horse hospital attached to his department.

The death of ex-Governor Bowie, of Maryland, is announced today. Two years after he returned from Mexico, he was the only Democrat elected to the Maryland house of delegates. In 1861 he was a candidate for the senate but was defeated by military interference. In 1864 he was nominated for lieutenant governor of Maryland but was defeated by the vote of the soldiers. All during the war he used his utmost endeavors to keep the Democratic party organized. He was elected governor by over 40,000 majority in 1867.

The D'Arsonval experiment of reviving persons apparently killed by electricity by artificial respiration has had a practical illustration in the past in the person of a man at Pittsfield, Mass., through whom a current of 4700 volts had passed. It is possible that D'Arsonval's claims may be correct. There would be no harm done in permitting a test of his system to be made on one of the murderers electrocuted in New York.

The interest bearing bonded debt of the United States now amounts to $685,029,330, this sum including bonds which carry different rates of interest. The greatest debt the country ever carried was the $2,381,530,295 it bore on Aug. 31, 1865. At that time the interest on the debt was $150,977,698, or nearly one-fourth of the total debt today. Since the close of the war the debt has steadily decreased except in 1874, when it was increased $28,000,000.

Among the estimates of appropriations needed for public warks for the next fiscal year, which were presented to congress yesterday by Secretary Carlisle, were the following: Improving St. Mary's river at the falls, $183,865; improving Hay Lake channel, $150,000; improving the channel connecting the waters of the great lakes between Duluth, Chicago and Buffalo, $500,000.

In 1893 there were 16,609,600 pounds of butter, valued at $3,404,305, shipped from Australia to England, although the freight charges amounted to the very large sum of $498,288—about 15 per cent of the value. The cost of shipping from, say Ohio, would not be over 25 per cent of the Australian rate, and yet we are beaten out of the above splendid market.

The latest report of the next national house of representatives states the division of parties in that branch as follows: Republicans, 244; Democrats, 104; Populists, 6; one silverite and one vacancy. The vacancy is caused by the death since election of a Republican chosen in Pennsylvania.

The morning papers today print the president's message which appeared in the evening papers yesterday. Tomorrow they will give Secretary Carlisle's important report which appears in The Herald this evening. What is the use of morning papers anyhow?

New York cast at the state election 1,260,201 votes, divided as follows between the principal candidates: Levi P. Morton, 673,512; David B. Hill, 516,153; Everett P. Wheeler, 28,649; Francis E. Baldwin, 22,392.

A crowd of Minneapolis sports have started on a wolf hunt in Anoka county. Probably this is but a fair return for the Anoka people who go to Minneapolis to hunt the tiger.

The exports of our farm products for the fiscal year aggregated $628,000,000, or nearly 73 per cent of the whole.

The Auld Curler's Prayer.

I.

I'm bit a puir auld doited carle,
Wi' siller nane to spare,
The auld broon coat is patched an' thin,
The shoon are brusten sair;
There's nane sae pleuty coal an' wood,
The shelf is unco bare,
Bit I'm prayin' aye for days
Wi' the frost i' the air.

II.

The wife misca's me tae the folk,
The bairnies say I'm daft;
But there's nae sae curlin'
When the weather's warm an' saft.
Of a' the seasons that God has gi'en
There's nane sae sweet tae me
As when the bonny channel-stane
Gangs roaring tae the tee.

III.

Wi' withered airm, an' crookit back,
That ance was straight an' strang,
An tremlin' limbs, an' blighted een,
I canna bide for lang;
Bit set my foot upo' the ice,
My hert upo' the stane,
An' pairted youth an' I shall meet
For ane short hour again.

IV.

Then gie me bit anither day,
Anither hour tae stan'
Ance mair a blythesome callant
Wi' the besom in his han';
An' when the pairtin' shot is played
I'll lay me doon an' dee,
An' through the narrow port my soul
Shall rest upo' the tee.

—Outing for December.

Mineral Land Leases.

St. Paul Pioneer Press: An important communication from Duluth makes it clear that none of the mining properties there can be worked except at a loss under existing conditions, except those operated by the Rockefellers, who own the mines and the railroad which transports the ore to the docks. The contention is that the only way in which these mines can be operated so as to pay even the smallest profit at the present extremely low price of ore—$2.10 a ton—is for the state to reduce its royalty from 25 cents a ton to 15 or 10 cents, and to compel the railroad company to carry ore at reasonable rates, or at the rates charged for similar service by the iron ore railroads of the south shore. The present charge is 80 cents a ton, against much less than half that rate on the latter roads. The contention seems to rest on facts which cannot be disputed. If present conditions are continued those holding leases of mining properties from the state will be compelled to relinquish them, and the state derives from this source. It will, therefore, be greatly to its advantage to respond favorably to the demands of the leaseholders for a reduction of the royalty and of the railroad rates. The subject is one of such great importance that we reserve it for fuller discussion at another time.

Bede and His Pants.

New York Sun: The Hon. J. Adam Bede, of Vermilion range, has issued a letter to announce that he does not want to be a member of the Chippewa Indian commission. He is no ward, he says, and he does not pine for the reservation. The truth is, the renowned birch bark pants were made out of two Chippewa dug-outs, and the little citizen is doubtful about going among the Chippewas again. They might want to adopt him, and they would be sure to lay claim to his crusal envelopes."

Why Not Protect Men?

Cloquet Pine Knot: A dispatch to the city dailies from Duluth says that the local game protective society will at the coming session have a bill introduced into the legislature making it illegal to sell venison in Minnesota for the next five years. It is designed to protect the deer, and put a check to the slaughter of those animals that goes on from year to year. Why don't somebody have a law passed making it illegal to kill a man for a deer, during the next century or two? It's all right to protect the deer, but we think something should be done for the unfortunate human also, who is now at the mercy of every reckless gunner who roams the woods.

The Country Not Hoggish.

Swift County Monitor: At the present time St. Paul has only one senator and one congressman, and Minneapolis has an equal number. But Mr. Washburn, of Minneapolis, has about used up his term, and while he is a candidate for election, a gentleman named Rogers, hailing from St. Paul, thinks himself of about the right quality to sit in the United States senate as a colleague of Senator Davis. That would only give St. Paul two senators and one congressman, and it isn't enough. This state has nine delegates in congress, and the outside territory must concede that St. Paul is entitled to more than three of these. She ought to have the whole nine, but let us give her eight and Minneapolis can take the other one. The country districts are not hoggish.

COUNCIL ACCEPTS IT

President Belknap's Proposition to Sell the Gas and Water Plant to the City Formally Accepted.

Nine Votes Favorable to It Were Secured and All Amendments Were Voted Down.

Ald. Hale's Idea of Forcing an Exchange of $750,000 in Bonds Was Not Approved.

By a vote of 9 to 7 the council passed the resolution accepting the offer made to the city by President Belknap for the sale of the Duluth Gas and Water company. The meeting opened with every member present. The regular run of business had not proceeded very far when Alderman J. W. Nelson arose and moved that the gas and water-works purchase resolution be recommitted to the committee on city property, public buildings and markets.

Aldermen Evens and Hale expressed opinions that such a step was out of the regular order of business, but the resolution was recommitted just the same, by a vote of 12 to 4.

Five minutes later two members of the committee, Aldermen Goldsmith and Lerch, reported in favor of the passage of the resolution. After the report had been read, Alderman Goldsmith moved that the resolution be passed and Alderman Nelson offered a second.

Alderman French wanted the committee to tell how they found out so much about the condition of the plant as was set forth in the recommendation of the committee.

Alderman Goldsmith handed the clerk a letter from the city engineer and called for its reading. The document was a report from City Engineer Reed, based on a cursory examination of the gas and water company's plant, and expressing the opinion that the plant is in a fair condition.

Alderman French then said that the resolution reported upon was not the one passed by the committee of the whole.

Alderman Mitchell said that he was a member of that committee but that the report had never been presented to him for consideration at all.

Alderman Lerch offered an amendment increasing the $591,000, the sum out of which the company shall be paid $294,000 in cash, to $894,000. The amendment was adopted and bids for that amount of bonds will have to be accepted before the gas and water company receives the $294,000 in cash.

Alderman Hale's Amendment.

Alderman Hale offered an amendment calculated to protect the city against being compelled by the gas and water company to issue the bonds in spite of a failure to get satisfactory bids at desired rates of interest. This was killed by a vote of 8 to 8, Alderman Ole breaking away from the "solid 9."

Alderman Evens offered some wholesale amendments to the resolution, a material reduction in the price being the chief feature. He said that if his amendments were adopted, he had assurances that all opposition to the purchase and prospects of litigation would cease. The amendments were lost by a vote of 10 to 6.

Alderman Hale offered an amendment in favor of the section that the committee had cut out in its report and that was to the effect that the water company be required to furnish bonds in the sum of $750,000 to be refunded in favor of 4 per cent city bonds.

Alderman Hale made a somewhat vigorous speech. He said: "We were deceived before election. We were told that the bonds had sold as high as 104 per cent. They really had sold from 60 to 80 per cent. After the election, they went up nearly to par. If we buy they will go up so high that we will have to pay a bonus to get them which, in effect, will be no better for us than to issue bonds drawing a high rate of interest. If we would stand up here and be true to ourselves and make no deal until these bonds are brought in, they will all be in within two months. I am not standing here as an obstructionist. We want that plant only on a fair and equitable basis. If we take the right course, the bondholders will understand it so and will see it to their interests to meet us on such a basis.

The amendment was lost, however by the following vote:

Nays—Christensen, Cox, Goldsmith, Harwood, Lerch, Nelson, Howard, Ole, Trevillion—9.

Year—Evens, French, Getty, Hale, Mitchell, Olafson, Patterson—7.

The question then recurred on the original resolution.

Alderman Evens objected to its adoption as a whole. Alderman Hale objected also and Alderman Olafson arose and said that such proceedings were highway robbery. "We might as well give this company the city and open the doors of the money vaults and say to it, 'take what you want.' I am surprised, I am ashamed for this highway robbery resolution. Every alderman that votes for it will be sorry."

Alderman Cox defended the measure in words that gave the impression that he was much afraid the gas and water company would get the worst end of the bargain.

Alderman French opposed the resolution as unfair and unsafe to the best financial interests of the city. Alderman Olafson arose the second time and expressed an opinion that Alderman Cox had just been talking through his hat.

Nine Votes Secured.

Nine votes were necessary to pass the measure. At all previous meetings, the vote has been a tie or less than a majority. Since then Alderman Lerch has returned from a pleasure trip East.

The measure passed, the vote standing 9 to 7 as follows:

Yeas—Christensen, Cox, Goldsmith, Harwood, Howard, Lerch, Nelson, Ole and Trevillion—9.

Nays—Evens, Hale, French, Getty, Mitchell, Olafson and Patterson—7.

The mayor named M. F. Kelliher as a special policeman without pay, upon the request of certain merchants that have employed Mr. Kelliher as a private watchman.

Chief of Police Armstrong notified the council that according to orders from the mayor, he had discontinued the patrol wagon at West Duluth, and loaned the team to the fire department.

The fire commissioners asked permission to purchase some new hose. Referred.

J. L. Washburn asked that a sidewalk be placed along the west side of the Lake avenue viaduct, from Superior street to Michigan street. Referred.

Mrs. R. J. Rickard and others asked for a supply of drinking water at or near 1121 Lincoln avenue. At present the residents have to depend on impure water from wells or the bay.

City pay rolls for November were allowed as follows:

City officers	$1,886 67
Health department	1,132 00
Board of public works	376 68
Engineers and inspectors	1,188 42
Maintenance of streets, road rollers and chain gang	2,313 70
Maintenance of sewers	535 25
Police department	4,568 00
Assessor's department	275 00
Poundmasters	200 00
Fire department	6,532 51

Noble Sampson, sealer of weights and measures, reported that during November he had inspected 139 loads of coal; 134 were correct weight and five incorrect. Eight cords of wood were full full measure and seven were not, twenty-two scales were correct and four incorrect; seven measures were honest and three dishonest.

The ordinance giving the North American Telegraph company the privilege of putting its wires underground on Michigan street, from Sixth avenue west to Third avenue west, was given a second reading and passed, Alderman Harwood alone dissenting, and doing so in a speech about Millionaires Bennett and Mackay, and the interests of the poor people. He also showed the unusual presence of mind to back up his remarks by voting against the ordinance.

What's the use of wasting time with inferior cooking materials? Dr. Price's baking powder saves time and money.

AMUSEMENTS.

"Il Trovatore."

For weeks and even months the coming of the Marie Tavary Grand Opera company has been anticipated and last evening all expectations found their realization in the magnificent performance given by this accomplished company at the Lyceum. The theater was well filled but it is not creditable to Duluth that it was not packed.

"Il Trovatore" is perhaps more familiar to the people generally than any of the grand operas. The music is tuneful and pleasing, the dramatic action is intense and in several if not all the roles there is a deep sympathy and feeling which communicates itself to the auditors. The choruses are strong and the manner in which they were sung last evening was thoroughly acceptable. Especially good is the male portion of the chorus, the voices all being strong and rich and a grand volume is thrown forth which makes the theater ring. The anvil chorus was finely given. The orchestra has been criticised in other cities but was open to none last evening for the music was correctly and faithfully rendered.

The chief interest centered in the appearance of Madame Tavary and a burst of applause greeted her as she entered. She is a woman of medium height and size and in the prime of life. Her manner is easy and confident and her entire personality is in itself quite taking. When her lips open and the song bursts forth the capture of the audience is complete and all are lost in admiration of her wonderful voice. Her execution is absolutely true and the most difficult staccato runs and trills were perfectly given and as clearly as a bird's. Her range is exceptionally wide and through all her songs there is a great depth of feeling and sympathy. In dramatic ability, too, she is not lacking, although her voice rather throws it in the background especially in the first three acts of the opera. But the "Miserere" scene she sings with a passionate and dramatic intensity which brings admiration for the actress as much as for the singer. Again in the prison at Leonora's death scene she displayed great dramatic fervor. Madame Tavary was recalled again and again during the evening and twice graciously responded to the encores.

Almost not less pleasing was the splendid characterization of Azucena, the gipsy, given by Mme. Helen von Doenhoff. She is a superb contralto and her fine singing was accorded great applause, in fact at one point, Madame Tavary was almost unable to proceed so anxious was the audience to hear Mme. Doenhoff again. Not less prominent than her singing is Mme. Doenhoff's fine dramatic ability. It is an arduous role, but it was carried in an irreproachable manner, the emotional passages being presented in a stirring and artistic manner.

One disappointment must be recorded. Signor Guille, the famous tenor, was expected to sing the role of Manrico and his name was on the program for it, but he did not appear. There was almost as much desire to hear him as Madame Tavary and it is particularly exasperating after having anticipations aroused to be so disappointed. This is the second time a Duluth audience has been denied the privilege of hearing Signor Guille and many are wondering whether he will ever sing here. It is a disappointment which the management ought not to repeat. It also places the person who takes the part in an embarrassing position, for no matter how well he may sing the disappointment of the audience is against him. Payne Clark took the part and sang and acted it well. His voice is a strong and clear tenor but has a nasal ring which mars it somewhat.

William Mertens, the baritone, made an excellent Count di Luni, acting and singing it with force and feeling.

Tonight Bizet's great opera "Carmen" is the bill. Madame Tavary will appear as Michela and Mme. Thea Dorre as Carmen. William Mertens will be seen in his great part of Escamillio and will sing the "Toreador" song which has become synonomous with his name.

ATTORNEYS TO MEET.

They Will Recommend Municipal Judge Candidates to the People.

The attorneys have called a bar meeting for next Saturday evening at the city hall to recommend candidates for the offices of municipal judge and special municipal judge. Their action is, of course, to be non-partisan and they will endeavor to select the best man. H. B. Dibbell is one of the most prominently mentioned candidates. Isaac E. West also has a good following and there are a number of others who would like it. It is anybody's tight as yet, for that matter, and new candidates may be brought forward.

J. C. HUNTER'S DOG.

The "Minnesota Chicken" is Accused of Having Stolen it.

John Ziegel alias George Ziegel and Jean Hanna, alias the "Minnesota Chicken" appeared before Judge Powell this morning on the charge of grand larceny in the second degree. Robert Benson charges that on Dec. 1, the defendant stole a shepherd dog belonging to James C. Hunter, valued at $100. The examination was set for 2 o'clock this afternoon.

John Jackson pleaded guilty to a charge of drunkenness but received a suspended sentence.

James McAvoy Dead.

James McAvoy, who was struck by a car Saturday while walking up the incline, died yesterday at St. Luke's hospital. He was a single man and came here from the East. He has a brother here who is laid up with a broken leg and he was working for the Highland Lumber company in his brother's place when injured.

Y. M. C. A. Annual Meeting.

The Young Men's Christian association will hold its annual meeting this evening at 8 o'clock in the association parlors. The present officers are: President, George W. Stevens, vice president, William S. Woodbridge; treasurer, Dr. John B. Weston; recording secretary, C. P. Grady. The association now has 306 members.

The Library Board.

The library board met last evening. The purchase of 300 new books was authorized and bills to the amount of $1390 were allowed. The new rooms are now open and there was a big rush the first few days. During the first four days 2500 books were taken out; 1300 persons visited the library on the first day and 1460 the next.

Breakers Ahead!

Prudence, foresight, that might have saved many a good ship that has gone to pieces among the breakers, is a quality "conspicuous by its absence" among many classes of invalids, and among none more notably than persons troubled with inactivity of the kidneys and bladder. When these organs fall off in duty, grievous trouble is to be apprehended. Bright's disease, diabetes, catarrh and stone in the bladder, are among the diseases which a disregard of early symptoms confirm and render fatal. That signally effectual diuretic, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, will—and let no one so troubled forget this—remedy the symptoms of approaching renal disease and check its further progress. Equally efficacious is the Bitters for constipation, liver complaint, malarial and rheumatic trouble and debility.

For rheumatism I have found nothing equal to Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It relieves the pain as soon as applied. J. W. Young, West Liberty, W. Va. The prompt relief it affords is alone worth many times the cost, 50 cents. Its continued use will effect a permanent cure. For sale by all druggists.

COUNCIL ACCEPTS IT

President Belknap's Proposition to Sell the Gas and Water Plant to the City Formally Accepted.

Nine Votes Favorable to It Were Secured and All Amendments Were Voted Down.

Ald. Hale's Idea of Forcing an Exchange of $750,000 in Bonds Was Not Approved.

By a vote of 9 to 7 the council passed the resolution accepting the offer made to the city by President Belknap for the sale of the Duluth Gas and Water company. The meeting opened with every member present. The regular run of business had not proceeded very far when Alderman J. W. Nelson arose and moved that the gas and water-works purchase resolution be recommitted to the committee on city property, public buildings and markets.

Aldermen Evens and Hale expressed opinions that such a step was out of the regular order of business, but the resolution was recommitted just the same, by a vote of 12 to 4.

Five minutes later two members of the committee, Aldermen Goldsmith and Lerch, reported in favor of the passage of the resolution. After the report had been read, Alderman Goldsmith moved that the resolution be passed and Alderman Nelson offered a second.

Alderman French wanted the committee to tell how they found out so much about the condition of the plant as was set forth in the recommendation of the committee.

Alderman Goldsmith handed the clerk a letter from the city engineer and called for its reading. The document was a report from City Engineer Reed, based on a cursory examination of the gas and water company's plant, and expressing the opinion that the plant is in a fair condition.

Alderman French then said that the resolution reported upon was not the one passed by the committee of the whole.

Alderman Mitchell said that he was a member of that committee but that the report had never been presented to him for consideration at all.

Alderman Lerch offered an amendment increasing the $594,000, the sum out of which the company shall be paid $294,000 in cash, to $894,000. The amendment was adopted and bids for that amount of bonds will have to be accepted before the gas and water company receives the $294,000 in cash.

Alderman Hale's Amendment.

Alderman Hale offered an amendment calculated to protect the city against being compelled by the gas and water company to issue the bonds in spite of a failure to get satisfactory bids at desired rates of interest. This was killed by a vote of 8 to 8, Alderman Oie breaking away from the "solid 9."

Alderman Evens offered some wholesale amendments to the resolution, a material reduction in the price being the chief feature. He said that if his amendments were adopted, he had assurances that all opposition to the purchase and prospects of litigation would cease. The amendments were lost by a vote of 10 to 4.

Alderman Hale offered an amendment in favor of the section that the committee had cut out in its report and that was to the effect that the water company be required to furnish bonds in the sum of $750,000 to be refunded in favor of 4 per cent city bonds.

Alderman Hale made a somewhat vigorous speech. He said: "We were deceived before election. We were told that the bonds had sold as high as 104 per cent. They really had sold from 60 to 80 per cent. After the election, they went up nearly to par. If we buy they will go up so high that we will have to pay a bonus to get them which, in effect, will be no better for us than to issue bonds drawing a high rate of interest. If we would stand up here and be true to ourselves and make no deal until these bonds are brought in, they will all be in within two months. I am not standing here as an obstructionist. We want that plant only on a fair and equitable basis. If we take the right course, the bondholders will understand it so and will see it to their interests to meet us on such a basis.

The amendment was lost, however by the following vote:

Nays—Christensen, Cox, Goldsmith, Harwood, Lerch, Nelson, Howard, Oie, Trevillion—9.

Year—Evens, French, Getty, Hale, Mitchell, Olafson, Patterson—7.

The question then recurred on the original resolution.

Alderman Evens objected to its adoption as a whole. Alderman Hale objected also and Alderman Olafson arose and said that such proceedings were highway robbery. "We might as well give this company the city and open the doors of the money vaults and say to it, 'take what you want' I am surprised, I am ashamed for this highway robbery resolution. Every alderman that votes for it will be sorry."

Alderman Cox defended the measure in words that gave the impression that he was much afraid the gas and water company would get the worst end of the bargain.

Alderman French opposed the resolution as unfair and unsafe to the best financial interests of the city. Alderman Olafson arose the second time and expressed an opinion that Alderman Cox had just been talking through his hat.

Nine Votes Secured.

Nine votes were necessary to pass the measure. At all previous meetings, the vote has been a tie or less than a majority. Since then Alderman Lerch has returned from a pleasure trip East.

The measure passed, the vote standing 9 to 7 as follows:

Yeas—Christensen, Cox, Goldsmith, Harwood, Howard, Lerch, Nelson, Oie and Trevillion—9.

Nays—Evens, Hale, French, Getty, Mitchell, Olafson and Patterson—7.

The mayor named M. F. Kelliher as a special policeman without pay, upon the request of certain merchants that have employed Mr. Kelliher as a private watchman.

Chief of Police Armstrong notified the council that according to orders from the mayor, he had discontinued the patrol wagon at West Duluth, and loaned the team to the fire department.

The fire commissioners asked permission to purchase some new hose. Referred.

J. L. Washburn asked that a sidewalk be placed along the west side of the Lake avenue viaduct, from Superior street to Michigan street. Referred.

Mrs. R. J. Rickard and others asked for a supply of drinking water at or near 1121 Lincoln avenue. At present the residents have to depend on impure water from wells or the bay.

City pay rolls for November were allowed as follows:

City officers	$1,886 67
Health department	1,139 00
Board of public works	376 68
Engineers and inspectors	1,188 42
Maintenance of streets, road rollers and chain gang	2,312 70
Maintenance of sewers	535 25
Police department	4,568 00
Assessor's department	275 00
Poundmasters	200 00
Fire department	6,532 51

Noble Sampson, sealer of weights and measures, reported that during November he had inspected 139 loads of coal; 134 were correct weight and five incorrect. Eight cords of wood were full full measure and seven were not, twenty-two scales were correct and four incorrect; seven measures were honest and three dishonest.

The ordinance giving the North American Telegraph company the privilege of putting its wires underground on Michigan street, from Sixth avenue west to Third avenue west, was given a second reading and passed, Alderman Harwood alone dissenting, and doing so in a speech about Millionaires Bennett and Mackay, and the interests of the poor people. He also showed the unusual presence of mind to back up his remarks by voting against the ordinance.

What's the use of wasting time with inferior cooking materials? Dr. Price's baking powder saves time and money.

AMUSEMENTS.

"Il Trovatore."

For weeks and even months the coming of the Marie Tavary Grand Opera company has been anticipated and last evening all expectations found their realization in the magnificent performance given by this accomplished company at the Lyceum. The theater was well filled but it is not creditable to Duluth that it was not packed.

"Il Trovatore" is perhaps more familiar to the people generally than any of the grand operas. The music is tuneful and pleasing, the dramatic action is intense and in several if not all the roles there is a deep sympathy and feeling which communicates itself to the auditors. The choruses are strong and the manner in which they were sung last evening was thoroughly acceptable. Especially good is the male portion of the chorus, the voices all being strong and rich and a grand volume is thrown forth which makes the theater ring. The anvil chorus was finely given. The orchestra has been criticised in other cities but was open to none last evening for the music was correctly and faithfully rendered.

The chief interest centered in the appearance of Madame Tavary and a burst of applause greeted her as she entered. She is a woman of medium height and size and in the prime of life. Her manner is easy and confident and her entire personality is in itself quite taking. When her lips open and the song bursts forth the capture of the audience is complete and all are lost in admiration of her wonderful voice. Her execution is absolutely true and the most difficult staccato runs and trills were perfectly given and as clearly as a bird's. Her range is exceptionally wide and through all her songs there is a great depth of feeling and sympathy. In dramatic ability, too, she is not lacking, although her voice rather throws it in the background especially in the first three acts of the opera. But the "Miserere" scene she sings with a passionate and dramatic intensity which brings admiration for the actress as much as for the singer. Again in the prison at Leonora's death scene she displayed great dramatic fervor. Madame Tavary was recalled again and again during the evening and twice graciously responded to the encores.

Almost not less pleasing was the splendid characterization of Azucena, the gipsy, given by Mme. Helen von Doenhoff. She is a superb contralto and her fine singing was accorded great applause, in fact at one point, Madame Tavary was almost unable to proceed so anxious was the audience to hear Mme. Doenhoff again. Not less prominent than her singing is Mme. Doenhoff's fine dramatic ability. It is an arduous role, but it was carried in an irreproachable manner, the emotional passages being presented in a stirring and artistic manner.

One disappointment must be recorded. Signor Guille, the famous tenor, was expected to sing the role of Manrico and his name was on the program for it, but he did not appear. There was almost as much desire to hear him as Madame Tavary and it is particularly exasperating after having anticipations aroused to be so disappointed. This is the second time a Duluth audience has been denied the privilege of hearing Signor Guille and many are wondering whether he will ever sing here. It is a disappointment which the management ought not to repeat. It also places the person who takes the part in an embarrassing position, for no matter how well he may sing the disappointment of the audience is against him. Payne Clark took the part and sang and acted it well. His voice is a strong and clear tenor but has a nasal ring which mars it somewhat.

William Mertens, the baritone, made an excellent Count di Luni, acting and singing it with force and feeling.

Tonight Bizet's great opera "Carmen" is the bill. Madame Tavary will appear as Michela and Mme. Thea Dorre as Carmen. William Mertens will be seen in his great part of Escamillio and will sing the "Toreador" song which has become synonomous with his name.

ATTORNEYS TO MEET.

They Will Recommend Municipal Judge Candidates to the People.

The attorneys have called a bar meeting for next Saturday evening at the city hall to recommend candidates for the offices of municipal judge and special municipal judge. Their action is, of course, to be non-partisan and they will endeavor to select the best man. H. B. Dibbell is one of the most prominently mentioned candidates. Isaac E. West also has a good following and there are a number of others who would like it. It is anybody's fight as yet, for that matter, and new candidates may be brought forward.

J. C. HUNTER'S DOG.

The "Minnesota Chicken" is Accused of Having Stolen it.

John Ziegel alias George Ziegel and Jean Hanna, alias the "Minnesota Chicken" appeared before Judge Powell this morning on the charge of grand larceny in the second degree. Robert Benson charges that on Dec. 1, the defendant stole a shepherd dog belonging to James C. Hunter, valued at $100. The examination was set for 2 o'clock this afternoon.

John Jackson pleaded guilty to a charge of drunkenness but received a suspended sentence.

James McAvoy Dead.

James McAvoy, who was struck by a car Saturday while walking up the incline, died yesterday at St. Luke's hospital. He was a single man and came here from the East. He has a brother here who is laid up with a broken leg and he was working for the Highland Lumber company in his brother's place when injured.

Y. M. C. A. Annual Meeting.

The Young Men's Christian association will hold its annual meeting this evening at 8 o'clock in the association parlors. The present officers are: President, George W. Stevens, vice president, William S. Woodbridge; treasurer, Dr. John B. Weston: recording secretary, C. P. Grady. The association now has 406 members.

The Library Board.

The library board met last evening. The purchase of 300 new books was authorized and bills to the amount of $1300 were allowed. The new rooms are now open and there was a big rush the first few days. During the first four days 2500 books were taken out; 1300 persons visited the library on the first day and 1400 the next.

Breakers Ahead!

Prudence, foresight, that might have saved many a good ship that has gone to pieces among the breakers, is a quality "conspicuous by its absence" among many classes of invalids, and among none more notably than persons troubled with inactivity of the kidneys and bladder. When these organs fall off in duty, grievous trouble is to be apprehended. Bright's disease, diabetes, catarrh and stone in the bladder, are among the diseases which a disregard of early symptoms confirm and render fatal. That signally effectual diuretic, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, will—and let no one so troubled forget this—remedy the symptoms of approaching renal disease and check its further progress. Equally efficacious is the Bitters for constipation, liver complaint, malarial and rheumatic trouble and debility.

For rheumatism I have found nothing equal to Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It relieves the pain as soon as applied. J. W. Young, West Liberty, W. Va. The prompt relief it affords is alone worth many times the cost, 50 cents. Its continued use will effect a permanent cure. For sale by all druggists.

Ingalls, mortgagor, to Susan T. Willis and Mary P. Dwight, mortgagees, bearing date the 20th day of December, 1892, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of St. Louis, and state of Minnesota, on the 9th day of January, 1893, at 3 o'clock p. m., in Book 67 of mortgages, on page 425.

Said default consists in the non-payment of $52 50, interest on June 20th, 1893; $52.50 on December 20th, 1893, and $52.50 on June 20th, 1894, all of which sums remain unpaid to this date; and

Whereas, default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage duly made, executed and delivered by Iver Wisted and Dorta Wisted, his wife, mortgagors, to Cora P. Ide, mortgagee, bearing date the 20th day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety three, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, on the 21st day of November, A. Whereas, said mortgage and the principal note thereby secured provides that if any default be made in the payment of any instalment of interest thereon, or of any of said coupon notes given therefor, and if such default shall continue for ten days, the holder of said principal note may, at his or her option, and without notice to the makers thereof, declare the said principal sum, as well as any or either of said past due coupon notes as one and payable, and does further, in case of such default, fully authorize and empower the said mortgagees or her assigns to foreclose said mortgage and sell the said premises at public auction and convey the same to the purchaser in fee simple, agreeable to the statute in such case made and provided; and

DRESSMAKER KILLED

Minneapolis Woman Found Dead on a Country Road With a Bullet in Her Head.

She Was Known to Have Secret Meetings With a St. Paul Gambler Who is Suspected.

Russian Farmers, Who Stole Government Buildings from Fort Lincoln, North Dakota, Placed Under Arrest.

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 4.—Miss Catherine Ging, a well known dressmaker, was murdered last night under sensational and as yet mysterious circumstances. She was a young woman of 29 who had built up a good business and was reputed to be worth $10,000. At 11 o'clock last night her body was found in the middle of a country road leading into the city by William Erhart, a Soo baggageman. It was still warm but life was extinct. There was a bullet hole directly through her head, her nose was smashed and broken, and there was a long jagged cut in her lower lip.

The police believe they are close on the heels of the man who committed the murder and they have developed the following facts: Miss Ging had formed an intimate acquaintance with a certain St. Paul man, whose name is known to the police, and who is a gambler. Her meetings with him were clandestine and were concealed from her friends. Sometimes she went to St. Paul and met him at some restaurant, and at other times she hired a livery rig in the evening and picking him up somewhere drove with him. On these occasions she went out and returned alone.

The man was accustomed to send notes to her, and the A. D. T. boy who carried most of them has been found. He sent her a note yesterday which she tore up on reading. In the evening she hired a rig as usual and went out alone. Two hours later the horse returned to the barn with the empty buggy. The cushions were soaked with blood and brains. The police believe that she went out driving with the St. Paul gambler, that they quarreled and that he shot her.

It is thought that the shot was not instantly fatal and that he must have beaten her face with the butt of the revolver, taken her out of the carriage and left her body in the road, driven back to town and, abandoning the horse, fled. The motive of the deed may have been robbery, as she is known to have a large sum in ready cash, or it may have been the result of a lovers' quarrel.

FARMERS UNDER ARREST.

Charged With Carrying off Buildings From Fort Lincoln.

GRAND FORKS, Dec. 4.—A large number of indictments have been found against Russian farmers from Emmons county for stealing and carrying off government buildings at Fort Lincoln, five miles south of Mandan. The depredations, according to Maj. W. C. Gooding, the goverment representative at the fort, have been going on for some time. Russian settlers in that vicinity have been engaged in thieving lumber and outbuildings for some time, making their visits mostly during the night, and all efforts to catch them have failed.

During the past few weeks, however, they have grown bolder, and on Saturday a small army, numbering over 100 put in an appearance with forty-five teams, pick axes and all necessary appliances, ready to clean every inch of lumber from the spot. Maj. Gooding, who has charge of the fort, protested, but the hoodlums drove him away with bricks and stones and continued to demolish the buildings. Even the old Custer house, which the people of the slope have endeavored to preserve, was not spared, but ruthlessly torn to pieces.

Deputy United States Marshals Hennessey, of this city, and Hannah, of Grafton, were at Bismarck and made a raid on the thieves Saturday. Pickets, posted by the thieves, gave notice of their coming and the entire party made an effort to escape, but the deputies succeeded in rounding up eight of them and secured the names of forty others. Five were left in jail at Bismarck and three brought here as witnesses before the grand jury. Of 117 buildings at the fort very few remain, the destruction being almost complete.

TO COVER UP THEIR TRACKS.

Thieves Burn Up a Barn and Seven Horses at Pipestone.

PIPESTONE, Minn., Dec. 4.—Reports reached here that the fine large barn on the Osborne farm, five miles north, occupied by Mike Teaberg as tenant, was completely destroyed by fire last night, nine head of horses and other stock and about 1200 to 1500 bushels of grain were also burned.

It has since been discovered that only seven carcasses of the horses can be found in the ruins and traces are found where some of the grain was stolen and the best span of horses taken away and the barn burned to cover up the thieves' tracks. The total loss is estimated at $2500.

Jim Burns in Jail.

ST. PAUL, Dec. 4.—Ex-County Auditor Burns was unable to secure bail yesterday and spent last night in the county jail and is still there today. His mother-in-law says she will push the case against him.

A LUNATIC RECAPTURED.

He Had Escaped From the State Asylum at Yankton.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Dec. 4.—Dr. L. C. Meade, superintendent of the state insane asylum at Yankton, has just secured Claus Clauson, who escaped from the asylum early last week. Clauson came to this city, walking most of the way, and sought out C. W. Hubbard, for whom the unfortunate man used to work.

He wanted Mr. Hubbard to help him collect from the asylum $300, which he claims that institution owes him for cutting stone. Clauson formerly lived in Potter county, this state. He is not a dangerous person and offered no resistance when taken in charge by Superintendent Meade.

Death of a Millionaire.

LYONS, Iowa, Dec. 4.—At Minneapolis today occurred the death of David Joyce, the millionaire lumberman of Lyons. He was nearly 70 years old. Paralysis caused his death. At his death he was connected with twelve sawmill plants in various parts of the country and has business interests in twenty-two different localities.

Postponement Probable.

ST. PAUL, Dec. 4.—The Hawks bank trial set for tomorrow will probably be again postponed, one of the lawyers for Hawks being sick with typhoid fever.

The faint, sweet odor of apple blossoms is not more delicate than pastry into which Dr. Price's baking powder enters.

GOVERNOR TILLMAN IS OUT.

John Gary Evans Is Inaugurated Governor of South Carolina.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Dec. 4.—Benjamin Ryan Tillman is no longer governor of South Carolina. At 1:30 p. m. today he was succeeded by his chief lieutenant, John Gary Evans. Several thousand persons assembled in the house of representatives, despite a raw and chilly day, to witness the ceremonies of inauguration. As the inaugural procession entered the band played "Hail to the Chief."

Prominent among those on the rostrum were United States Senator Irby, ex-Governor Tillman and the justices of the supreme court. After prayer by the Rev. John A. Rice, the oath of office was administered to Governor Evans by Chief Justice McIver. Governor Evans then stepped forward to address the audience. He spoke distinctly and without tremor. His address consumed about one hour in delivery.

Governor Evans said: "After obtaining the will of the people in three separate elections, I am here today to assume the governorship of the proudest people on the globe. Ten years ago the elevation of a man of my age to the highest honor in the gift of the people would have been regarded almost as unconstitutional. A young man in South Carolina would have not dared to aspire to this honorable position for fear of gaining the odium of that class who, by reason of age or inheritance, considered the offices as their particular property without regard to the popular will.

"There are some who still regard the political revolution of 1890, which gave to us an aristocracy of brains instead of land and money, as an hallucination and as the reign of the demagogue. This gentle slumber will result in good, and the Rip VanWinkles of the state will awaken to find themselves monuments of antiquity surrounded by young sons of modern progress and development who have nothing but love and reverence to give them. It is a matter of congratulation to the people that the effort to stay the course of reform by an appeal to an ignorant and purchaseable vote has been rebuked the second time in a manner unmistakable in terms, and let us hope that in the future there will be found in the state no man so ignoble as to dare to threaten us with a return of the dark days from 1868 to 1876.

"It is unfortunate indeed that the foundation of our social and political institutions is the unity of the white people. This condition was thrust upon us by the emancipation and enfranchisement with one stroke of the unfortunate and ignorant, unfit to govern themselves. Placed in power by the bayonet, forced to govern their former masters, we thus witness a spectacle seldom recorded in history, a government of corruption over wisdom, virtue and honesty. I say here on the threshold of my administration that it is time for our people to come together and be a united people and let the responsibility fall on those of the opposition who insist upon a rule or ruin policy.

"We are fast coming to the plight which Ireland now is experiencing. Our great plantations are becoming merely the hunting preserves of the wealthy and the laborer year by year is being ground to poverty and servitude. The party which has been true to us in the past and to which we must look in the future has suffered defeat from one extreme of the land to the other, and today not a Democratic state is left north of Mason and Dixon line. The Northeast seems to be deaf to our appeals and the 'ray of light' which we had hoped for in the West has proved as fickle as an aurora borealis. South Carolina has led in every great moral and political reform and it remains for us to set the pace for the nation, which will ultimately bring relief to the entire people."

A KENTUCKY OUTRAGE

Two Students at Berea College Were Seized by Masked Men and Threatened With Death.

They Lighted a Fuse Attached to a Dynamite Bomb and Tried to Explode It.

One of the Students Got Free and Thrust the Bomb in a Barrel of Water.

BEREA, Ky., Dec. 4.—Last night W. D. Candee and Walter Lyman, white students at the Berea college, when about to retire were visited by masked men, who overpowered them, tied Lyman to a tree, threatening him with death if he made an outcry and then taking Candee around near the entrance to the college, produced a dynamite bomb and ordered Candee to light it and throw it into the entrance. He refused, whereupon they tied his hands and threw him on a pile of wood.

They then lighted the fuse in his presence, threw the bomb into the entrance and ran. Candee by a superhuman effort freed his hands, rushed to the bomb, seized it and thrust it into a barrel of water. Calling the janitor he released Lyman and examined the premises. Another bomb was found near the woodpile.

The miscreants were traced a short distance today but not found. There has been some feeling because Berea college has admitted both black and white students, but the general feeling is that this attempt to blow up the building is purely malicious.

ENGLAND AND THE COLONIES.

The Earl of Jersey Supports the Colonial Delegates' Views.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The St. James Gazette this afternoon commenting upon the report which the earl of Jersey has submitted to the colonial office upon his mission to the recent inter-colonial conference, at Ottawa, says:

"It appears that on the whole, the earl of Jersey thoroughly supports the views of the colonial delegates on the great question of international mail and cable routes. The earl is also understood to favor a liberal policy in regard to the treatment of colonial questions."

The St. James Gazette, however, disapproves of the plan of assisting a new line of steamers by dividing the subsidy not paid for carrying the mails to New York, adding: "The government is quite rich enough to pay for its bi-weekly service to New York and for a weekly line to Canada as well. The expense would not be great and we should get a new set of splendid steamers which would be available as cruisers.

"The most interesting part of the report relates to preferential trade arrangements among the colonies themselves and between the colonies and Great Britain. The earl of Jersey does not find any valid objection to this and thinks we can, if we like, grant preferential trade advantages to our colonies, though the unlucky Belgian and German treaties prevent us from getting any benefits in exchange which are not shared by Germany and Belgium. Obviously the first thing to do is to get these conventions modified."

The St. James Gazette does not believe that the government is likely to trouble itself in the report, which, it adds, is evidently a mere suggestion as to commercial arrangements for the colonies.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Dec. 4.—[Special to the Herald.]—The statement of the commerce through the canal during the month of November shows quite a large increase over the commerce during the corresponding month of last year. Governor Hogg Determined to Get Rockefeller on His Requisition.

AUSTIN, Tex., Dec. 4.—Some days ago Governor Hogg issued a requisition for the arrest of William Rockefeller and other magnates of the Standard Oil company and Waters Pierce, of the Waters Pierce Oil company, indicted for violations of the Texas anti-trust law.

The requisitions are known to have reached Governor Flower, of New York, and Governor Stone, of Missouri, several days ago but what action they have taken has not been transmitted to the state officials here.

Governor Hogg says that he will follow the gentlemen into every state in the Union, and across the ocean if necessary, to bring them to justice. He asserts that either the governor of Missouri or the governor of Kansas would recognize the requisition, and surrender the men whom he is satisfied will be convicted if he can get them into Texas.

FOUR PEOPLE KILLED.

Fatal Explosion of Dynamite That Was Being Thawed.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 4.—A quantity of dynamite exploded at Hull near this city today killing three men and a boy engaged in laying water pipes. The names of the victims are as follows: N. Martin, aged 36; Henry Lamarch, aged 42; T. Seguin, aged 58, and C. Barbeau, 10 years.

Martin and Seguin were engaged in thawing the dynamite. The woodwork near became ignited, and while engaged in extinguishing the flames the men forgot about the deadly explosive. Soon it was surrounded by flames and in a moment blew up.

Martin was decapitated; Seguin was frightfully disfigured; Lamarch, who was passing by at the time, was disfigured almost beyond recognition; Barbeau, a school boy, had a part of his head blown off, along with one arm. None of those in the vicinity escaped unhurt.

INCREASE OF A MILLION.

The Estimates for Appropriations by Bills for 1896.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The clerks of the senate and house appropriations committee have prepared a joint statement showing the estimates for appropriations by bills for 1896, which is as follows:

Agricultural, $2,400,330; army, $24,605,682; diplomatic and consular, $1,583,118; district of Columbia, $7,217,934; fortifications, $7,357,703; Indians, $6,723,844; legislative, etc., $22,349,101; military academy, $507,048; navy, $30,952,099; pensions, $141,561,547; postoffice, $91,050,283; river and harbor, $1,475,000; sundry civil, $46,383,815.

This is a net increase of $1,035,696 over the estimates for 1895 and of $17,500,762 over the actual appropriations for 1895. The principal increase is in the sundry civil bill, due to the fact that the river and harbor appropriation estimate to meet contracts is included. This estimate amounts to $11,387,115.

The Robbers Got a Tip.

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 4.—A special to the Star from Perry, Okla., says the excitement over the expected train robbery last night was all for nothing, as the train came through all right with twenty-five heavily armed men aboard. Marshall Nix thinks the robbers got wind of the special train or they are waiting till tonight.

Katie Must Have a Hoodoo.

OMAHA, Dec. 4.—One of the strange coincidences of the theater fire last night was the fact that the scenery for Katie Emmet's new play "Killarney," in which she was to have opened here next Sunday, had been placed in the theater only last night, as she could not carry it with her on the small town circuit which she is making this week. It was just a year ago that Katie Emmet was playing in the Farnam street theater here in "The Streets of New York," when that theater was burned and all her property destroyed.

DOINGS OF CONGRESS

The Time Allowed to Survey Canal Routes Through the State of Ohio Was Extended.

Bills for Dedicating Chickamauga National Park and Creating Another Park Discussed by the House.

Several Requests for Information in Regard to International Questions Were Made by Senators.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—There were exactly 100 members on the floor when the house met at noon today. The galleries were almost empty. The Democratic leaders had decided just before the house was called to order to plunge immediately into routine business. On motion of Mr. Storer, of Ohio, a resolution extending the time allowed the board of engineers to survey canal routes through the state of Ohio under the river and harbor bill, was adopted.

Mr. Outhwaite, from the committee on military affairs, called up a bill for the relief of the legal representatives of Arsenus P. Boyd, late of the Eighth United States cavalry, but it was ruled out on a point of order and he called up the bill for the dedication of the Chickamagua and Chattanooga National park. The bill appropriates $20,000.

The date for the dedication was fixed for Sept. 19 and 20, 1895. The bill was passed. He then called up the bill introduced by Mr. Henderson, of Iowa, for the establishment of a military park at the Shiloh battlefield. It carries an appropriation of $150,000.

Mr. Outhwaite yielded the floor to Mr. Henderson, of Iowa, who explained that the matter had been discussed by the G. A. R. and the Army of the Tennessee, and there was an earnest desire on the part of the Western army for a military park on the scene of this great battle. Mr. Black, of Illinois, and Mr. Wheeler, of Alabama, with himself, had undertaken to look after the bill. Options on the land in writing for an average of $12 an acre had been secured, whereas the Chickamauga park had cost an average of $28. The bill provided for a commission of three to be appointed from the armies of the Tennessee, Ohio and Mississippi. After the adoption of an amendment reducing the appropriation to $75,000, the bill was passed.

Mr. Richardson, of Tennessee, then presented the conference report on the printing bill.

The Senate.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—When the senate convened at noon today there were few traces of the confusion attending the opening session yesterday. The usual dignity and serenity of the chamber were restored, there was the usual scattered and shifting attendance in the galleries, and the senators showed their desire to enter without delay upon the real business of the session.

A large number of bills, petitions and memorials were presented, most of them of a local character. Mr. Blanchard offered a resolution reciting the circumstances under which the sugar bounty was cut off after the sugar crop for 1894 was put in. It directed the committee on appropriations to include in the urgency deficiency bill, a sum sufficient to pay the bounty for the present year. The resolution went over for the present.

Mr. Vest offered an amendment to the rules with a view of cutting off protracted debates in the senate. It provides that after a measure has been debated thirty days it will be in order for any senator to move to fix a day for the final vote. This motion is to be put without debate or delay, and if carried the original question is to be voted on at the time fixed. Mr. Vest said he would address the senate tomorrow on the need of this reformatory rule.

Mr. Lodge offered a resolution, which was adopted without dissent, calling on the secretary of the navy for the official letters of Admiral Walker while in command of United States naval vessels at Hawaii.

Mr. Lodge raised another international question by calling on the president for the correspondence concerning Bluefields and for information concerning the attitude of Nicaragua. The resolution was adopted without comment.

Mr. Quay offered resolutions of respect to the memory of Myron B. Wright, late member of congress from Pennsylvania, and as a further mark of respect to the deceased the senate at 12:30 p. m. adjourned.

To get the best is always the cheapest. That is why everyone should use Dr. Price's cream baking powder.

THE ARMENIAN OUTRAGES.

The Sultan Beginning to Accede to the Powers' Demands.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The Times today says it believes that the earl of Kimberly, secretary of state for foreign affairs, has made energetic representations to the porte to the effect that the latter's order to the Turkish commission to make a searching inquiry into the Armenian massacer was not enough, as the report of a purely Turkish commission would not inspire any public confidence.

The Times adds that the sultan has now come to recognize this simple truth and is reported to be ready to admit an independent element to form part of the commission. Continuing the Times says: "In the interests of truth and justice, we trust that this report is well founded."

GOLD FOR THE TREASURY.

The Payment Completed by the Stewart Syndicate.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—The Stewart syndicate has completed the payment of gold into the New York sub-treasury for the new $50,000,000 bond issue, paying in a total of $50,409,425.

The amount paid elsewhere is $8,311,321 of which the principal is due as follows: Chicago, $2,350,000; San Francisco, $2,030,000; Philadelphia, $1,520,000 and Boston $1,250,000.

CONSPIRACY TO STEAL.

Serious Charges Against the Heads of Two Wealthy Concerns.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—The two heads of the Swarts Iron and Metal company, Mark S. Swarts, president, and Seymour S. Swarts, cashier and treasurer, also Barnett Graff, head of the Graff Contracting company, were arrested today on warrants charging conspiracy to steal.

The Swarts company and the Graff company, wealthy and prominent concerns, purchased the debris of the Columbian Intramural railway from the trustees, Jesse and Isaac Seligman of New York. It is charged that their thefts occurred in connection with this deal and that acting in conjunction with W. S. Malone, an Intramural railway employe, under the system of under weighing they secured an immense amount of steel and iron from the World's fair road without payment.

It is claimed by the detectives that Malone, who is said to belong to a prominent Boston family, was forced into the deal through his indebtedness to the Swarts people and that he received very little money for his work.

FINANCIAL LEGISLATION.

Feeling That There Will Be None at This Session.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Representative Cox, of Tennessee, chairman of the banking and currency committee, and Representative Bland, chairman of the committee on coinage, weights and measures, held a conference today and discussed financial measures.

Mr. Cox says his committee will report some kind of a measure during the session but he cannot say whether it will ever pass. Mr. Bland maintains that there is nothing to do but pass a free coinage bill. He voices the sentiment of the free silver men in the house, saying that they will favor no financial measure that does not include free coinage.

In every part of the house today, there was a general expression that nothing more than talk would come out of all the financial propositions at this session of congress.

A culinary poem, a household triumph, food cooked with Dr. Price's cream baking powder.

DID NOT ACCOMPLISH MUCH.

Session of the Senate Committee on Finance Today.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The senate committee on finance was in session for an hour today but did not agree to any course of action on any of the more important financial or tariff bills before the senate. The meeting was largely informal and was devoted in the main to an exchange of views upon the free raw material bills and the president's currency recommendations. Some of Senator Peffer's financial bills were taken up and adverse reports unanimously agreed upon.

It is understood that there was a very free discussion of the sugar tariff bill. The Democratic members expressed a desire to take the bill up in the senate for consideration, but while not making specific objection to the sugar bill, the Republican members of the committee intimated that the majority of the Republican senators would stand against any piecemeal amendments of the tariff bill at present.

Reference was also made to the free alcohol bill with a like result. It appears that the meeting was more important for what it failed to accomplish than for what it did accomplish.

DEMOCRATS IN CAUCUS.

The Democratic Senators Trying to Agree on a Policy.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—A caucus of the Democratic senators was held immediately after the adjournment of the senate today. It is understood that the caucus is called to consider the question of a general program of policy with reference to the various subjects of general interest on the calendar, including the supplementary tariff bills, the Nicaraguan canal, anti-option, bankruptcy and territorial admission bills.

The caucus adjourned at 3:45 p. m. without coming to any conclusion of the matter before it. The entire time was consumed by discussion of a proposition to change the rules. The sentiment seemed to be about equally divided, but the opposition was sufficient to convince a majority of the caucus that no change in the rules would be made.

California Debris Commission.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Secretary Lamont has sent to the house the second annual report of the California debris commission, whose jurisdiction extends to hydraulic mining in the territory drained by the Sacramento and San Joaquin system in California. The total amount of material mined under permits from Oct. 1, 1893 to Oct 1, 1894, is estimated at 1,500,000 cubic yards and the available storage provided and partially and wholly completed for future operations is estimated at 8,500,000 cubic yards.

A Pioneer's Death.

HUNTINGTON, Ind., Dec. 4.—A quantity of dynamite intended for use in the big sewer which is being constructed here, exploded today, resulting in the instant death of two men and the serious injury of several others.

NYE AND THE NURSES

Having Been Sent to the Hospital For a Twenty Days' Term, He Meets a Few.

Made the Recipient of Many Kind Tokens of Affection, But He is Not Grateful.

Went There Owing to a Physician's Analysis, Without Which No One Should Remain Long.

[Copyright, 1894, by Edgar W. Nye.]

I have just been sent to the hospital for 20 days.

My physician did it.

He did it with an analysis.

Anybody who amounts to anything nowadays gets analyzed.

Sometimes you find casts, sometimes you find maple sugar, and sometimes you find acids, oxides, paint oils, varnish, white lead, borax, albumen, lime, hair and cement. In these cases the patient should be placed under a strict diet, or he will in the course of his life become a corpse.

I go into details about this because a false impression got out a few weeks ago to the effect that I came here for another purpose. A reporter came to see me, and I sent word to him that I was then on the operating table in such a position that I could see no one, while an elderly surgeon was engaged in removing a porous plaster received during the war.

I was not serious in saying this, but unfortunately I have the reputation for absolute veracity and seriousness, so that the statement got into the papers as bona fide and caused American securities to go down two points in one day.

I like it here very much.

SATURDAY.—Another little cripple boy named Charlie comes afternoons to play with me. We have a set of building blocks and can make most everything.

Yesterday the Chicago Ladies' Society For the Prevention of Good came to see us and gave me a kiss and a red apple.

The lady who kissed me was the vice president of the society and hurt me when she strained me against her breast-pin. I hate a woman who cannot control herself that way.

I went and took a dose of medicine to take the taste out of my mouth.

Tomorrow we have an operation here in my ward. A large lady from La Salle will be removed from a Hungarian tumor.

The medical students will be here and see the operation. The best student for 1894 who has been neither absent nor tardy will get the tumor.

I have to diet very closely, or I may gradually have a diabetic tendency. I get a slice of toast every day and a thermometer.

The rules are very strict. Patients are requested not to die in the house.

Some of the nursegirls are perfectly lovely. They are very pretty and kind hearted. I like to have one of them hold me up in my little cot while I am drinking my kouniss at night.

SUNDAY, 3 P. M.—An analysis today shows more casts, fibrin, gelatin and some zinc and copper. The chemist also discovers that in 1853 I fell from an apple tree and tore my panties in two places. He also says that I will be unhappy with my third wife. She will be unhappy also.

Last evening we had a concert and operation at the hospital. Yesterday afternoon the North Side Ladies' Society For the Prevention of Good paid us a visit. I crawled under the covers and remained in a rigid attitude, giving them a sort of stiff, as a partially idiotic friend of mine said afterward.

The general secretary spoke as she passed by something about "kissing him for his mother," but as she started to raise the sheet from my face I bit her a little in sportive mood, and she gave a shrill and echoing scream. I do not mind being an invalid, but charitable societies must not press me to their bosoms. It hurts.

I heard a simile the other day that was not half bad, as Matthew Arnold used to say to me. It was made by a temperance lecturer, too, which makes one wonder where he got it, for a man who is strictly temperate has to skirmish pretty hard for anything of that kind. John B. Gough never acquired a good story after his reformation, it is said, but had to use over and over the witty things he got while he was a naughty man.

This temperance man was lecturing in a Chicago church and paying his respects ever and anon to the saloon keeper.

"But, dear friends," said he, "I do not hate the saloon keeper personally. He is a man and a brother. It is not the personality of the saloon keeper that I demur to. I feel opposed to him just as I do to the bedbug—because I don't like the way he gets his living."

Last week J. J. West of this city stepped into a large and prosperous laundry to talk business or politics with the proprietor and all hands. While he was standing around the counter with the air of one who owns what is in sight, a timid little man with a big square market basket with dried gore on the edges, also with a large head of Pefferian whiskers of a rich cherry color and with yarn ravelings in them, stepped up and asked in a little Punch and Judy voice:

"What will you charge me to wash and do up a child's dress?"

"Well," was the reply, "I couldn't do it short of 35 cents and make anything out of it."

"But that's too much, ain't it?" asked the other, with a cough.

"Well, possibly it is," said Colonel West, "but I can't seem to do it for less and make anything out of it. You see, just doing one that way I don't really compete with the laundry people here who are in the business and handling them by the hundred. I always did hate to stop my business to do up a child's dress."

MONDAY, 4 P. M.—Temperature two-fifths of 1 degree above normal. Pulse regular, but sluggish. Have got all my business arranged, even to terms for shipment home. Ate scraped raw beef for breakfast, using rear quarter of Colorado steer, with pepper and salt on same. Acute gastritis seems to be one of the features of disease. I have to eat simple things like raw bullocks and keg oysters.

Another chemical and microscopic analysis was made yesterday of sputum, showing traces of nicotine and other poisons. Adieu, kind friends, I'm going home. A sweet young novice, who is training for a nurse, took my pulse this a. m. Took quite awhile to find it, but I did not murmur or repine. I am trying to learn to love everybody, for to that bourne to which my chemist says that I am going I should carry with me no enmities, no bitternesses. Ta, ta, vain world, begone—

Ah, here comes the other rear breadth of the bullock! Pass me the salt, please, and see that my grave is kept occasionally squirted on during the dry weather. I have left a small fund for that purpose.

The life here at the hospital is delightful, and while I am fading away it is a joy to have loving hands bathing my little hot footies and manicuring my knobby brow.

The Stockyards' Flower mission paid a visit this a. m. and left a big wet cauliflower on each breast.

One large porterhouse lady with a blue badge on her flank laid a big eggplant on my pillow, and when I sang out cheerily, "Cut, cut, cudat cut!" she cursed me bitterly and called me a great coarse thing.

She was right. I ought not to frolic on the crumbling edge of a long dank grave.

Goodby, wicked world. After December you will have to pay your own taxes, so the chemist says, for traces of one lung, also floating island and ice cream, were found in this last analysis. Do not mourn for me, kind friends, and choke and sob and make yourselves sick. It will be vain. Just live as I have done, so that you may come where I am at. Live upright lives and run the lawn mower about every ten days o'er my humble grass during the summer. That is all you can do. Weep not. In me you lost a man who can never be replaced, but never mind—the world will have to drag on somehow. I couldn't be here all the time. Anybody with a particle of sense must have seen that I couldn't live forever.

While penning the above words a messenger boy has come swiftly in with a note from the chemist. He says in this note:

"We regret that an error was made in your case by our assistant, who, in the rush of business here at the college, has got your analysis somewhat confused with that of the justly celebrated race horse Nancy Hanks. We unfortunately got the sputa mixed. On going over your case again we find that, whereas there are signs of glanders in the Hanks analysis, you are, as a matter of fact, almost too healthy. You have phenomenal health and seem free from tendency to pleuropneumonia, thrush and epizootic, while in the Hanks case there are tubercles present and signs of botts.

"Abstain from pie in large quantities and avoid the night air. We hardly know what to suggest for you to use in place of the night air after dark, but you must not use night air. Wear heavy

FADING AWAY.

Norwegian woolen socks during the cold weather, and do not think too much. You are prone to overthink yourself. Go carefully in this direction, and you will live to be a burden to your friends. Wishing you good fortune and regretting the confusion of your case with that of Hanks, we beg to inclose our bill and to wish you well."

So today I leave my kind little nurses in their sweet and neat attire. Goodby, girls. I'm going home, where they know me. No one there will count my fevered pulse in the still watches of the night. No one there will put a nice big hot water bag that feels like a Mexican hairless dog at my feet.

I wring the hand of the superintendent with reluctant haste and leave the hospital with regret at 2 p. m.

Seriously, what a blessing it is when we are weary of work and the gastric functions go out on a sympathetic strike, and the solar plexis goes away and sits down on a stone pile to weep over the situation; when you are in that state of pneumogastric flunk where even you have to threaten your digester with arrest, and your liver sulks in a corner, and Old Man Gastric buttons up the coatings of your stomach and looks sour, what a godsend that one can go to one of these cozy corners, out of the current of whoop and hurrah, and eat raw steak and be sort of made of.

Purely Business.

He stepped out of a doorway on Monroe avenue the other night and confronted a pedestrian to say:

"Time is money, and I will detain you but a moment."

"That's right. What is it?" was the query.

"You have no money for such as me?"

"No, sir. No, sir."

"Because I would make for the nearest saloon and spend it for drink?"

"That's it exactly."

"But, on the other hand, you are a humane man and would not let me want for food?"

"I might be willing to fill you up at a restaurant, but I'm not buying beer for tramps."

"Certainly not. We now come to business. To fill me up at the cheapest restaurant in this town would cost you from $6 to $8, as I have eaten nothing for a week. On the other hand, you can buy me off for 15 cents in cash. Sentiment does not enter into the question. You either pay out at least $6 or only 15 cents. It is for you to say which. Owing to the hard times you"—

"Here's your 15," said the pedestrian as he jingled two coins in his palm.

"Thanks. That's business."

"But as you have consumed 30 cents' worth of my valuable time I'll replace it in my pocket and send you a bill for the balance. Straight business. No sentiment. Good night!"

And the tramp watched him out of sight and heaved a long sigh and whispered to himself:

"That's a horse on me, and I guess I'd better look around for a saddle or harness!"—Detroit Free Press.

Harper's Magazine

In 1895.

"The Simpletons," a new novel by Thomas Hardy, will be begun in the December Number, 1894, and continued to November, 1895. Whoever may be one's favorite among English novelists, it will be conceded by all critics that Thomas Hardy stands foremost as a master artist in fiction, and "The Simpletons" may be expected to arouse enthusiasm not inferior in degree to that which has marked "Trilby"—the most successful story of the year. Among leading features will be the "Personal Recollections of Joan of Arc," by the Sieur Louis de Conte, Her Page and Secretary, under which guise the most popular of living American magazine writers will present the story of the Maid of Orleans. In the January Number will appear a profusely illustrated paper on "Charleston and the Carolinas," the first of a series of Southern Papers.

Northern Africa is attracting more attention than at any other time since it was the seat of empires. The next volume of HARPER'S MAGAZINE will contain four illustrated articles on this region, and three of them will depict the present life there. Julian Ralph will prepare for the MAGAZINE a series of eight stories, depicting typical phases of "Chinese Life and Manners." Besides the long stories, there will begin in the January Number the first chapters of "A Three-Part Novelette," by Richard Harding Davis—the longest work yet attempted by this writer. Complete short stories by popular writers will continue to be a feature of the MAGAZINE.

Send For Illustrated Prospectus.

The volumes of the MAGAZINE begin with the Numbers for June and December of each year. When no time is mentioned subscriptions will begin with the Number current at the time of receipt of order. A YOUNG WANDERER.

Small Boy Who Was Returned to Winnipeg by Capt. Miller.

Some days ago a small, undersized but bright looking boy, claiming to be 13 years old, was picked up on the streets by a police officer and sent in to headquarters. He gave his name as Willie Mackin, said that he had made his way down from Winnipeg, Manitoba, and was looking for a place as bell boy in a hotel. The police cared for him for several days and yesterday Capt. Miller, superintendent of poor, made arrangements for sending the boy back to Winnipeg.

The boy is an orphan and three years ago was sent to Canada from England by an emigration society. For the past year and a half he has been with a farmer some distance from Winnipeg, but tiring of farm life started out on his own hook.

While here a gentleman took enough of an interest in the boy to buy warm underclothes for him and others replenished his purse. So he was quite a gainer by coming here, aside from having the adventures of the trip.

RECEIVER APPOINTED

Pittsburg Iron Company Placed in the Hands of George W. Buck on A. J. Trimble's Petition.

W. H. Adams, M. L. Cormany's Attorney, Has Filed a Lien on the Verdict Against The Herald.

Levine Case Is Bringing Out Nothing Unusual But Occasionally Some Humorous Testimony Is Given.

In Saturday's special term A. J. Trimble's petition for the appointment of a receiver for the Pittsburg Iron company, came up before Judge Lewis, and he took the matter under advisement. This morning his order was filed granting the petition. It is ordered that the stock and property of the company be sequestrated and that George W. Buck be appointed receiver under $10,000 bonds.

He is authorized to take all steps under the direction of the court to make collections and enforce the liability of the stockholders in case the property is not sufficient to satisfy the company's obligations. He is also to conduct all the business of the company, to pay all employes, and conduct all litigation. The officers of the company are ordered to immediately turn over all the company's property to the receiver. Judge Ensign also filed an order in the case making George A. Elder a defendant jointly with the other stockholders.

Lien on Cormany's Judgment.

It will be remembered that a few weeks ago M. L. Cormany sued The Herald for $30,000 for libel, and got a verdict for $502. This morning Cormany's attorney, W. H. Adams, of Minneapolis, filed a lien on The Herald's judgment to the amount of $650 for his fees in conducting the case. The Herald is given notice to pay over the amount directly to him as soon as the judgment is entered.

The Merchants National bank has obtained another attachment on the property of the Great Western Manufacturing company to the amount of $300. The affidavit for attachment sets up that the claim is for a note made by Gude Bros., negotiated by the Great Western and guaranteed by some of its stockholders. All are defendants, but the only attachment is against the Great Western.

P. J. Borgstrom, the newly-elected register of deeds, has filed the first certificate of election in the clerk's office.

Levine Insurance Cases.

The Levine insurance cases were the only objects of interest in the district court this morning. The defendants' case is being heard, and some little sensation was looked for in the testimony of A. C. Rubenack, who was charged by the defense with having agreed to accept tips for testifying for the Levines. Nothing was shown, however, and the alleged sensation died out. He was asked outright by Mr. Draper if he had not agreed that for $25 a day he would remain in Superior or that for $50 a day he would testify for the Levines. An unqualified denial was made, and Mr. Rubenack was excused.

C. Chrisholm testified yesterday on cross-examination by the plaintiff's attorney that when Fred Cowie, the "fire bug terror" was here he had arranged it to get one of the witnesses intoxicated. He then turned him over to Cowie, who took him for a whirl around the tenderloin district with the intention of showing him a good time and incidentally to get information out of him to aid the case against the Levines.

Some amusement was afforded by the testimony of M. A. Bloom, one of the adjusters, in relation to the taking of several small articles from the stock by the adjusters. He was alleged to have taken unto himself a valise.

Custom of Adjusters.

On being questioned in regard to the matter he said that it was the custom for adjusters to take small articles from a damaged stock after the adjustment was made, of course paying for them in some way. Generally they were charged up to total loss.

"Wouldn't that be in the nature of a special compensation from the insurance companies to the adjuster," asked Mr. Draper.

"Well, I don't know that I ever heard any special designation for it," answered Mr. Bloom.

The appraisers also, according to the witness, sometimes help themselves in a similar fashion.

The old wool cases, celebrated by long experience in the district courts, came up again before Judge Lewis this morning. Some years ago some North Dakota sheep raisers shipped some wool to the West Superior Woolen mills. While passing through Duluth it was seized by some of the mill's creditors, and the shippers sued the sheriff to recover the full amount.

In the former cases judgment was entered against the creditors through the sheriff. The new claimant, R. L. Howell, who wanted $250, met with less success, for Judge Lewis ordered judgment for the defendant.

The last jury case besides the Levine cases was continued this morning. The case of John Hinzman against the city was dismissed yesterday on motion of the city attorney.

DEEP MYSTERY.

The Identity of the Murderer of Dressmaker Catherine Ging at Minneapolis is Still Unknown.

Mounted Officer Getchell Claims to Have Caught a Fleeting Glimpse of the Murderer's Face.

Body Was Found About Two Miles From the Spot Where Getchell Saw the Pair.

The Police Believe That Harry Hayward Knows More About the Crime Than He Will Tell.

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 5.—The deep mystery that enshrouds the identity of Catherine Ging's murderous companion in her evening drive night before last is apparently as impenetrable as ever. It is certain that this companion was beyond the preadventure of a doubt her murderer, but thus far there is scarcely the shadow of a clue to his identity. But one man has turned up who ever saw the murderer. This is Mounted Officer Getchell, and his was but a fleeting glimpse of the face in the moonlight.

The officer was making his rounds on Lake street near Portland avenue about 8 o'clock Monday evening. A carriage passed him in which the occupants were loudly quarreling. He glanced at the man and saw that he was thin of face and had a dark, heavy moustache. More he could not see. He now claims that he looked at the rig as it passed sharply and positively identifies it as the Goosman rig which Miss Ging hired and which came back to the stable empty and blood-soaked.

The spot where the body was found is about two miles from the spot where Getchell claims to have seen the pair, but is on a direct road thither. That is up to date the only actual clue to the identity of the stranger. Even at that it is by no means certain that the couple Getchell saw was the couple in question. There is just one other direct clue from which something may yet be learned. This is the note Miss Ging received in the morning and which, after reading, she tore into small bits. Her waste basket is now in the hands of the police who are making an effort to piece the various bits of paper found there together. So far this effort has not been entirely successful. Apparently there are several notes. One signed "R" seems to ask her to meet a friend from St. Louis. The initial at once called to mind Frederick I. Reed, of St. Paul, manager of the Golden Rule store. Reed, it is learned, was once engaged to Miss Ging, and gave her a diamond engagement ring, the one which was found in a small chamois bag inside her corsage. For some reason the engagement was broken more than a year ago. Reed has a thin face and a heavy dark mustache. But he proves that he was at work in the store all the evening with his clerks. The police last night sent word to Reed to come over and enter the sweat box. He declined unless a warrant was issued for him. The police did not feel justified in issuing a warrant.

According to the testimony of all her friends, Miss Ging had entirely broken off her connection with Reed and held no communication with him for over a year. Yet she retained and cherished the ring. Thus far all search for the messenger who carried the note has been futile. An A. D. T. boy has been found who carried a number of notes from a man at the Nicollet house, but he did not carry the note Monday. The man for whom he carried notes, and whose picture was found in Miss Ging's boudoir, was Harvey Axford, a clothing manufacturer's agent with whom and whose wife Miss Ging was friendly. He had no trouble in convincing the police that he had nothing to do with the murder.

Carl J. Warneke, another former intimate of Miss Ging's, was also subjected to the sweat box process, but without result. He satisfactorily explained his former relations with the girl. He is now married. The only other suspect is Harry Hayward, the landlord, friend and creditor of the dead woman. Hayward's admission with reference to his financial relations with the woman constitute the serious part of the case against him. His alibi is perfect and relieves him from direct connection with the crime. It is established that he was at the theater at the time the murder was committed.

Yet he knew more of her business affairs than any known person. He lent her large sums with security that would not be deemed gilt edged. This, he says, he did out of friendship and with confidence in her honesty. His last loan was $7000 cash, and it is pretty certain that she had this amount on her person at the time of the murder, and that the murderer took it from her. Hayward's security for this was Miss Ging's two insurance policies—one an accident policy for $5000 in the Traveler's, and the other a regular life policy for the same amount in the New York Life. These were assigned to him.

The police have enough confidence in the theory that Hayward knows more of the crime than he will tell and that possibly he instigated it, to hold him under close surveillance. Mayor Eustis, who has taken charge of the case, believes that this latter theory is the true one. In this connection an alleged hold-up that occured last April is being recalled. Hayward was out driving with Miss Ging and Miss Vetter, her friend. They were stopped by two men and forced to give up what they had.

It is now claimed that Miss Ging had a large sum of money in ready cash at that time and was supposed to have it on her person, but that as a matter of fact she did not have it with her. It is conjectured that the men knew this fact in some way and expected to get the money. It is even hinted that Hayward gave them the information. But aside from the insurance policies, there is not a scintilla of evidence that Hayward desired the death of Miss Ging, or would profit by it. He was her creditor to a large amount, was very fond of her and stood better in her confidence than any one.

The theory that he instigated the crime is hard to believe. Supposing it to be true, how could he have induced Miss Ging to go driving in so mysterious a way thrice with a hired thug? And how could he have induced her to take with her on the fatal drive so large a sum as $7000. It is evident that there was a peculiar relation not entirely a pecuniary one between Miss Ging and her mysterious companion. And so the investigators of the mystery come around to the point from which they started with the mystery as deep as ever.

Later—Harry Hayward has been released from surveillance by the police, a fact which is taken to mean that they have given up any theory connecting him with the murder. Frederick Reed, in an interview this morning, declared that he had never been engaged to Miss Ging, but was simply her friend. He had not seen her for six months. He declared his willingness to come over from St. Paul at any time and tell the police all he knew of her. The police have not yet summoned him and apparently do not take any stock in any theory that connects him with the affair. The authorities are apparently completely at sea.

JUDGE NELSON AT WINONA.

Cases Disposed of in the United States Circuit Court.

WINONA, Minn., Dec. 5.—The United States circuit court convened in this city yesterday, Judge Nelson presiding. The following are the cases disposed of:

The breach of contract action of the city of Wabasha vs. the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway company was continued by consent of the parties to the action. This suit is brought to recover a bonus given to the road to operate the Zumbrota branch, which it has failed to do. The amount involved is about $60,000. The case of Mary Bailey against the same road was continued and the case of Veronica Millis, also against the Milwaukee road, was dismissed.

The personal injury case of James Thomas vs. Weyland Stedman is being tried. Both parties to the action are from Rochester, and the former, a farmer, walked into the elevator shaft in the store of the defendant and sustained injuries, it is alleged, to the extent of $5000. The court will probably be in session the remainder of this week.

"INDIAN JOHN" IS DEAD.

He Served a Life Sentence at Stillwater for Murder.

STILLWATER, Dec. 5.—The death of John Horse, a Chippewa Indian, occurred at the prison hospital Monday night, Horse, who suffered from consumption, having been confined in the hospital for many months.

"Indian John," as he was familiarly termed by all who knew him about the prison, was received from Pine county in October, 1887, to serve a life sentence for murder. At the time of his incarceration he was illiterate and could not speak a word of English. He learned, however, and was at one time one of the most industrious pupils in the night school.

He was an obedient prisoner, but when he saw that there was no hope of securing a pardon he grew morose and soon began to show symptoms of consumption, which grew rapidly worse, until death came.

A Life Sentence for Three.

GRAND FORKS, N. D., Dec. 5.—In district court yesterday, Judge Templeton sentenced Phillip Myrtle, Charles Reisner and John Murphy to the penitentiary for life. The trio attacked a comrade while riding in a Northern Pacific box car together, knocked him down and took his money, amounting to $7.47, from him. The law fixes the penalty for joint robbery at imprisonment for life, and the judge has no discretion.

Judge Start to Be Banquetted.

WINONA, Dec. 5.—Judge Start will be tendered a reception by the Winona County Bar association on Dec. 27. There will be public exercises, with addresses at the court house in the afternoon, at which time suitable resolutions will be presented to the judge. A banquet will take place at the Winona in the evening for the members of the bar association, their wives and invited guests. A program of toasts will be carried out.

CHATTANOOGA, Dec. 5.—Buddy Woolen, one of the negroes confined here and under sentence of death for the murder of Marion Cross, has made a confession implicating Mapp, the negro sentenced to hang with him, and another negro, who has not yet been arrested. Woolen and Mapp were to have been hanged on Monday last but were respited until Jan. 11

THE REICHSTAG

Emperor William Opened the German Parliament Today with the Usual Speech from the Throne.

Says That a Bill Will Be Submitted to Increase the Protection of Public Order.

Prejudicial Effect of the Abuses of Bourse Speculation Upon National Property Was Alluded To.

In the Death of the Emperor of Russia, He Deplores the Loss of a Friend.

BERLIN, Dec. 5.—Emperor William, wearing a British uniform, visited the prince of Wales and the duke of York this morning and the two latter afterwards returned the visit an hour later. They then started for England. After the departure of the prince of Wales and the duke of York, Emperor William donned a Prussian uniform and prepared to open the reichstag.

The radicals are furious that the monarch does not come to parliament, but that instead his majesty must go to the castle for the ceremony. The course of his majesty, says the Freisinnige Zeitung, shows how modest a part parliamentarism holds in Germany. The session of the reichstag was opened at noon in the rittersaale of the castle instead of in the usual white hall which is being renovated.

Emperor William, in person, read his speech from the throne. It was as follows:

"Honorable Gentlemen: In the name of my exalted allies, I bid you welcome at the beginning of your constitutional work. You will transfer your labors to your new home, which, after ten years of earnest work, is now upon the point of completion, a monument of our national industry. May God's blessing rest upon the house and may the greatness and welfare of the empire be the goal for which all who are called upon to work within its walls will aim with self-denying loyalty. I entertain this wish all the more strongly in view of the economic and social political tasks which must be solved with your co-operation.

"Faithful to the traditions of our ancestors, my exalted allies and myself regard it as our foremost duty to the state to protect the weaker classes and to assist them in attaining higher economic and moral development.

"The duty of the state becomes the more imperative as the struggle for existence upon the part of certain sections of the people grows more serious. The federal governments will continue their efforts to promote feelings of content among the people by mitigating economic and social differences.

"But if these efforts are to succeed it appears necessary to oppose more effectually than hitherto the pernicious conduct of those who attempt to disturb the executive power in the fulfillment of its duty. Experience has shown that legislation does not afford the means required by the federal governments. You will therefore consider measures supplementing our common law and a necessary bill will be submitted to you without delay which, chiefly by extending the present penal provisions, will increase the protection of public order. I entertain the confident hope that you will lend your energetic co-operation to this serious task."

His majesty next alluded to the prejudicial effect of the abuses of bourse speculation upon national prosperity and said that to remedy these evils a bill was being prepared which would probably be submitted during the course of the session. Continuing the emperor said:

"The same is the case in regard to a bill which is intended to protect the trading community against competition which does not scruple to employ unfair means and which will contribute to strengthening confidence in business and commerce.

"In consequence of the change in the financial situation to the disadvantage of the individual states, which, instead of receiving as heretofore surpluses from the imperial revenue, have lately been called upon to contribute to the imperial expenditures, the creation of such sources of revenue has become necessary. This oppressive state of affairs can only be partially remedied by an increase of the stamp tax and the opening of other fresh sources to obtain the revenue indispensible. To this end a bill for the reform of the tobacco taxation will be submitted to you.

"To my lively satisfaction, my confidence in the maintenance of European peace has been further strengthened during the past few years. Faithful to the spirit of our alliances, we cultivate good and friendly relations with all the powers.

"During the course of the last few months two neighboring empires have been deeply stirred by grave events. Germany has sincerely joined in the sympathy which was evinced on all sides and which once more gave evidence of the solidarity of the human feeling and peaceful wishes. In the death of the emperor of Russia, I deplore the loss of a friend and a tried co-operator in works of peace."

Emperor William's delivery of this speech was impressive and was accompanied by gestures. His majesty afterwards went to the reichstag building in order to formally perform the ceremony of laying its cornerstone, which is combined with the dedication of the building and the formal opening of the new session of the reichstag.

Immense crowds of people were gathered along the route and outside the new building and cheered the emperor and

THE CAPITAL GOSSIP

Program for Immediate Action in Congress on the Question of Arbitrating Strikes Being Arranged.

Chairman McGann Says the Prospect of Passing an Arbitration Bill This Session Is Good.

A Solution of the Pacific Roads Debt Question Not Expected by the Present Congress.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Labor Commissioner Wright will have a conference tomorrow with Chairman McGann, of the house committee on labor, Representative Springer, author of the pending arbitration bill, and Representative Erdman, who wrote the favorable report on the bill. They will go over the question of arbitrating strikes, with a view to outlining a program for immediate action in congress.

Mr. Wright's experience in the presidential commission, which recently investigated the Pullman strike, is depended on to give practical form to the plan of national arbitration. It has heretofore been urged theoretically, but the report of the commission, based on inquiry and experience, recommends such federal arbitration as the surest remedy against labor agitations and strikes. It had been hoped that President Cleveland would in his message give specific approval to the plan of arbitration recommended to the strike commission, but he confined himself to an approval of the work of the commission.

Chairman McGann says of the prospects of passing an arbitration bill this session: "I think such a bill will go through the senate and house without difficulty. There seems to be a general feeling without reference to party as to the opportuneness of such a measure. Under ordinary circumstances it would be difficult to get through such an important bill at a short session, but the feeling is so ripe for action that I expect it to pass both houses. The Springer bill, now reported, is almost identical with the recommendations of the presidential strike commission.

"Mr. Wright will be asked for suggestions to perfect the bill, and then there will be a united effort to secure speedy action on the subject."

Briefly the bill provides for the appointment of a permanent board of arbitration, consisting of three persons, one of whom may, in the discretion of the president, be the commissioner of labor for the time being. The term of their office is fixed at six years and their salaries at $5000 a year, and their appointment shall be made by the president, by and with the advice and consent of the senate. The arbitration is secured on the petition of one of the parties to a controversy, and when neither party asks for it there is no compulsory arbitration, but on the application of a state legislature the president may tender the offices of the national commission.

The power of the commission to settle strikes is defined in the bill as follows: "The said national board of arbitration shall have power, when in their discretion the public interests are at stake, to investigate the causes of all controversies and disputes between employes and their employers in the United States as they may occur, and the conditions accompanying them, and the best means of their adjustment, whether such controversies and disputes are submitted for arbitration or not, and to report thereon to the president of the United States, who shall from time to time transmit such reports to congress. Said board shall have power to settle and adjust by conciliation all such disputes and controversies, so far as it may be possible to do so."

It is pointed out that the moral effect of a settlement proposed by the national commission would be sufficient to make it effective, and that this would be better than drastic measures to compel acceptance.

Within the next month the government will be called upon to pay $2,000,000 of Pacific railroad bonds. It will be the first payment made by the government of these bonds issued years ago to subsidize the building of the railroad across the continent. They ran for long terms and these terms are about to mature. The $2,000,000 next month will be followed by another $2 000,000 next November. The railroads are primarily responsible for the payment of the bonds, but as they were issued and guaranteed by the government, congress has anticipated, by its effort to fund or extend the debt, that the government would have to meet the maturing bonds.

Chairman Reilly, of the house committee on Pacific railroads, does not believe that a solution of the Pacific roads debt can be reached at the present short session of congress. The committee labored with the problem throughout the last session and evolved a bill known as the Reilly bill, by which a settlement satisfactory to the government and the roads seemed possible. The bill is now on the calendar but the interests are so vast that Mr. Reilly does not believe they would be passed upon during the hurry of a short session, although he would be glad to have his bill enacted.

It is probable, therefore, that the Pacific roads problem will be inherited by the Republican congress assembling a year hence. It will then be an imperative question which can no longer be deferred, as two issues of bonds will have matured before the next congress opens. It will be necessary, therefore, to arrange a speedy plan of funding or extending the bonds, or else provide for their payment.

It is not impossible that in pursuit of its recently adopted policy towards America, the German government may take some action hostile to our cotton interests. In a report to the state department coming from a round-about way of Pennsylvania, United States Consul General Max Judd states that the German government has recently sent a commission to study the cultivation and manufacture of cotton in the United States. The prime object in view, according to the official report, is to determine whether the cotton produced in the United States meets the needs of the German manufacturer or whether it would be better to buy all or part of the raw cotton used in Germany elsewhere.

CHARGES OF BRIBERY.

Sensation Created at Buenos Ayres by a Newspaper's Charges.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—A special from Buenos Ayres says: The talk of the hour is the revelation made by the El Tiempo which charges that a syndicate has bribed certain members of congress in order to get railroad guarantee bills passed.

El Tiempo says it stands ready to give names if congress makes an investigation and asserts that men high in political circles, as well as railroad men, are implicated in the plot.

The chamber of deputies has appointed a committee which will summon the manager of El Tiempo and will ask him to name the accused members. This was done on motion of the author of the bill, Senor Elma, and was carried by a majority of one. Public opinion is on the side of El Tiempo.

Anti-Toxine Curing Cases of Diphtheria at Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 5.—Local physicians are enthusiastic over the results of using anti-toxine, the new diphtheria remedy, a quantity of which has been received here and put upon its merits. Two doses of the serum were given to an infant child having an advanced case of diphtheria, and in one day the child was pronounced out of danger.

Another case, that of a youth who had been ill nine days with the disease, has shown like results, the patient nearly being cured after two doses had been administered. Further experiments are being made.

It is the opinion that the Mexican servant killed the doctor for the purpose of robbery.

"DOVIE" COMSTOCK NO MORE.

The End of the Strange Career of a Beautiful Woman.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—The death of Mrs. Edith Armstrong, better known as "Dovie" Comstock, in a Kansas jail, ends the strange career of a beautiful and notorious woman. She was the daughter of D. C. Forney, founder of the Washington Chronicle, and a niece of John W. Forney.

All those who knew "Dovie" Comstock in her childhood speak of her dainty beauty. The name was given her because it fitted her. She was a laughing, wayward girl. It seemed natural that she should fall in love with Walter G. Comstock, of Providence, who was rich, handsome and young. His father was very rich. He is a near relative of the Armours and was in the wholesale meat business.

They lived in Providence on Parkis avenue, in the finest house in the aristocratic Elwood section. They plunged at once into the social whirl. It was not long before she gathered about her a coterie of young men, many of them not in the fashionable set. These young men drank quantities of wine. Young Comstock was at first blind to his wife's faults. Then his eyes were opened and he got a divorce.

It is said that the co-respondent was Samuel Post, the man who was killed by Ella Nelson. Some time after the divorce Mrs. Comstock came to New York and lived in various hotels. In July 1890 she moved to No. 344 Smith street, Brooklyn. It was there she met Theodore Larbig, who lost his life through her. He was 43 years of age, a man who had seen life. Constant intercourse with many people, coupled with checkered and valuable experience in California, had given him a certain polish But it was his great strength and self confident manner which attracted Mrs. Comstock. He became a constant visitor to her flat when he was in town.

In May she moved to No. 278 Sackett street and took as a boarder Darwin J. Meserole, son of Gen. Meserole. She had known Meserole several years and had been very intimate with him. On June 27, 1891, Larbig called at the house and began quarreling with Mrs. Comstock. Meserole interfered and a fight ensued in which Meserole shot and killed Larbig. The trial attracted a good deal of attention. The young man was acquitted. William J. Gaynor was counsel for the defense.

Ten months later "Dovie" was married to John L. Watkins and a short time afterward she went West. Being a victim of the opium habit, her downfall was rapid.

A Landmark Disappearing.

BOSTON, Dec. 5.—The Tremont house, the oldest hostelry in the city, has been turned into an auction room and throngs of curiosity seekers and prudent buyers wandered through its corridors looking for bargains among its old furnishings. The cornerstone of the present Tremont house, which is soon to give way to a towering office building, was laid on July 4, 1828.

Suit for a Fortune.

BIDDEFORD, Me., Dec. 5.—Miss Ella Haines, of Biddeford, has brought suit against the estate of the late Luther Bryant, the Biddeford millionaire, for $260,000. She sues to recover a tin box containing $250,000 in government bonds and stocks which she alleges Mr. Bryant gave her before he died, but which she was compelled to give up to the executors of the estate after the millionaire died. The case will be tried in the January term of the supreme court at Saco.

VERY ROMANTIC TALE

Mrs. Persis Anna Hartsig Disappeared From Detroit Eight Years Ago and Was Considered Dead.

A Few Days Ago She Walked Into the Office of Her Son in Chicago.

She Was Demented When She Disappeared and Could Not Remember Anything When She Recovered.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Mrs. Persis Anna Hartsig disappeared in Detroit eight years ago, and a body picked up on the railroad tracks, near that place, horribly mangled, was identified by Mrs. Hartsig's relatives and buried by them. A few days ago the real Mrs. Hartsig walked into the office of her son, E. A. Hartsig, in the Security building.

The story told by Lewis W. Hartsig, a son of the missing woman, is a very romantic one. He says his mother, together with his father and six children, lived in Detroit eight years ago, and that his mother was mentally deranged on account of ill health. The family decided to send her to the Pontiac lunatic asylum, and from this place she escaped twice within two months.

Mrs. Hartsig was not a dangerous lunatic, but the family thought it best to return her to the asylum, as the physicians had hopes that they might finally restore her reason. Mrs. Hartsig discovered what was about to take place, and on the night before her contemplated removal she escaped, and this was the last seen of her by any member of her family until a week ago.

The day following her disappearance the body of a woman was discovered on the tracks of the Detroit and Michigan road, twenty miles from Detroit. The body was in a mangled condition and the clothing was literally torn from the woman's form. The Hartsig family were notified and identified the body as that of their mother. A Detroit dentist also identified the false teeth which were in the mouth of the dead woman as those sold to Mrs. Hartsig. The body was taken in charge by the Hartsigs and given a decent burial.

Mrs. Hartsig owned property in Detroit, which is valued at $5000, and her will was duly probated and the rents of the property have since been collected by James E. Hartsig, her husband.

Mrs. Hartsig, in telling her story to her family, after their happy re-union, said she traveled by rail to Benton Harbor, Mich., and was taken in charge by the police on account of her strange actions. The authorities placed her in a sanitarium at Benton Harbor for twelve months and she was then pronounced cured. But Mrs. Hartsig during her last attack of insanity had forgotten her name and there was nothing about her clothing or jewelry by which she could identify herself. She decided to come to Chicago, secured a situation as nurse in Evanston about seven years ago and has remained in Evanston ever since, and has amassed a small fortune in that city.

Mrs. Hartsig was reading a newspaper a week ago, her son says, and happened to see the name E. A. Hartsig, which was the name of her son. Hartsig has been indicted on a charge of forgery. Mrs. Hartsig at once became possessed of all her faculties. She recognized the name as hers and the initials as those of her son. She went at once to the criminal court and found that E. A. Hartsig had been released on bail.

She secured his address and went at once to the Security building and walked into the office, where she found her son and also her daughter, Rose, who recognized the mother immediately. While in the office another son, Lewis H., entered. There was still another person to whom the strange re-appearance came as a surprise, and this was Mr. Hartsig, the husband. He is 50 years old and thinking his wife dead had married again. He has also one child by the second marriage, and a very complicated state of affairs exists in his household.

Mrs. Hartsig, her son Lewis says, has stated that she would apply for a divorce, so as to cause no embarrassment to the young wife with whom Mr. Hartsig is now living.

Mrs. Hartsig, together with her daughter, Rose, is now on a visit to her aged mother, Mrs. Dowe, who is very wealthy and lives in Savannah, Ill., and Mrs. Hartsig thinks she will take up her residence at that place. Mrs. Dowe could never believe her daughter was dead, and there has been a reward of $1000 out for the past eight years for information concerning the missing woman.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Dec. 5. The Republicans yesterday elected Charles Long for mayor over Samuel Sherwood, (Dem.) by 808 majority. The Democrats gain one alderman. A. P. A. candidates were defeated. Has Deserted Kansas.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 5.—Mrs. Mary Ellen Lease, of Kansas, is in the city. She says she has come to California to purchase a small farm in the San Joaquin valley. She will reside on the property, removing thither upon the expiration of her term as president of the board of trustees of Kansas one year hence. "I am tired of the barren plains of Kansas," she said, in explanation of her desertion of that state.

To Have His Hearing Restored by the Copeland System of Treatment.

When a man has found relief from a distressing condition, he feels like telling of it for the benefit of others who may need the same kind of help. Such are the sentiments of Mr. Herman Bering, of 110 First avenue west. He is connected with the firm of Bayha & Co.

To a reporter, Mr. Bering said: "About six months ago I was treated and cured of deafness by the Copeland Physicians and cannot say too much in praise of the treatment I received. I had been troubled with deafness a long time and had tried many times to get relief from my distressing trouble, and at considerable expense. Hearing so much of the Copeland system of treatment, I decided to see if it would help me, and the result was that I was cured in a short time of deafness that was so bad I could not hear an ordinary voice; people would have to shout in my ear or I could not understand them. But now my hearing is clear and perfect and I am only too anxious to tell others how it all happened. I will also say that the Copeland Physicians only charged me $5.00 for a course of treatment that restored my hearing."

THE OLD-FASHIONED STYLE

of pill gives you a feeling of horror when you see it and when you feel it. Like the "blunderbuss" of a former decade, it is big and clumsy, but not effective. In this century of enlightenment, you have Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, which cure all liver troubles in the most effective way. For Indigestion, Constipation, Bilious Attacks, Sick and Bilious Headache, nothing has been found to equal these pills of Dr. Pierce's invention.

MR. S. BAKER, SR.

Mr. SAMUEL BAKER, Sr., of No. 161 Summit Ave., Phillipsburgh, N. J., says: "There is nothing that can compare with Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, as Liver Pills. They have done me more good than any other medicine I have ever taken."

A WEAPON FOR THE BULLS.

The Amount of Wheat Fed and to Be Fed to Live Stock.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The government report issued this afternoon shows that the total amount of wheat fed to live stock was 46,030,000 bushels. The amount estimated to be fed yet is 29,273,000 bushels, making a total of 75,303,000 bushels.

WHEAT DULL AND LOWER.

Easier Cables and the Expected Government Report Made Dealers Cautious.

Wheat opened dull and ⅝c lower than it closed yesterday for May, at 61¾c, due to generally easier cables, which were said to be caused by yesterday's weakness in American markets. This was discouraging to the bulls and impressed all with the necessity for caution. After the opening weakness, the market gradually reacted ⅝c, and up to noon held fairly steady.

The big export engagements reported from New York—over 1,000,000 bus yesterday, all told—out before Jan. 1—did not apparently have much influence, at least not for a time, as the big stocks and the steady flow of receipts indicated that the outgo would not materially reduce the burden the trade had to carry. But after a time the matter was more seriously considered and the feeling gradually hardened. The fact that the government's special report on wheat feeding is to be out this afternoon, and that it was considered quite important, caused operators to hold off or work with caution in view of the uncertainties as to the conclusions reached by the department.

After noon, May eased off to 61¾c and closed weak. Nearly all the trading was in May. But two trades were reported in December, which started late at ⅛c decline and sold up ⅛c, subsequently losing the advance. There was fair business in cash stuff. The close was ¼c lower than yesterday for cash and December and ⅝c lower for May and July. Following were the closing prices:

Gossip.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, Room 107, Chamber of Commerce.

There were free offerings of wheat at the opening causing a little weakness. Commission houses were well supplied with buying orders that absorbed all the offerings. The short sellers of yesterday covered freely, causing an advance of ½c. The early cables came in a little lower all around. The late closing ones showed Liverpool weak at 1¼d lower while B rlin was strong and 1 mark higher. The tip is out that the government report to be issued this afternoon will say that 40,000,000 bus wheat has been fed to live stock on farms nlone. It is estimated that about 30,000,000 bus was consumed outside of this. Receipts at Minneapolis and Duluth, 603 cars. Clearances aggregated 310,000 bus.

Corn and oats very strong and better demand for cash stuff. Ream was a heavy buyer nearly all day. Provisions dull and unchanged.

WAGNER AND THE DRAMA.

The Highest Expression of "Thoughts Which Lie Too Deep For Human Words."

It is not essential to the true disciple of the Wagnerian drama that he should know the science, texture or structure of the music. No call is made upon him for this special knowledge, and it will not enable him better to understand the tragedy or passion presented to him, though it may add to his admiration for the genius of the author. At first the experienced musician may even find himself at a disadvantage at Baireuth, as his attention may easily be too much occupied with the form, and the first impression of the whole may be somewhat weakened by the study of the detail.

To some people, who look exclusively for pleasure and recreation in music, the mere mention of Wagner's name calls up simply recollections of clashing instruments and loud sounding trumpets—useless noise, as they are pleased to call it. Nevertheless, from a purely musical point of view, the beauties and perfections of Wagner's composition are thoroughly well appreciated by the concert going public, and it is unnecessary to dwell on those qualities which have been fully recognized for some time past. But it is not yet so fully recognized why the Baireuth theater shines like a beacon, leading the German art student to a truer apprehension of national life and character and of the influence which art should have in molding the future destiny of the race.

It is the new musical drama which Wagner has created which is to be the highest expression of "thoughts which lie too deep for human words" and which shall show the "light that never was on sea or land." Those whose chief delight lies in the ideal rendering of beautiful music alone may perhaps be dissatisfied by finding everything here subordinated to the dramatic conception. The true interpretation of the drama must be sought in the greatest possible perfection of the whole through the individual parts, and slight failings in the scenic effects and histrionic action or vocal and musical shortcomings are scarcely perceived by any one who is wholly absorbed in the revelations made to them by performances of such marvelous power.—Nineteenth Century.

ADAM'S ARMORIAL ENSIGNS.

Heraldic Authorities Ascribe to the First Man Two Coats of Arms.

Although heraldic authorities have made no direct attempt to solve the vexed question,

When Adam delved and Eve span,
Who was then the gentleman?

yet they have assigned to Adam two coats of arms. The first, which was borne in Eden before the fall, when he needed neither coat for covering nor arms for defense, consisted of a shield gules, upon which the arms of Eve (a shield argent) were quartered as an escutcheon of pretense, she being an heiress. The second coat, borne after the expulsion from the garden, was "paly tranche divided every way and tinctured of every color."

The use of furs in blazonry is, it has been solemnly asserted, a relic of the garments of skins worn by our first parents. The second man who lived upon the earth, Abel, was, we are told, a true gentleman, a proof that it does not necessarily take three generations to manufacture the article. Cain was "no gentleman" by behavior, but he was the first man who desired to have his arms changed, "so God set his mark upon him."

Nearly all the principal characters in the Old Testament have been accredited with coats of arms. These are, as a rule, highly appropriate, except in the case of Joseph's heraldic coat, which was merely black, tinctured with white—"chequy sable and argent"—whereas something after the pattern of Adam's second coat would surely have been more in keeping with the youthful Joseph's favorite attire. Gideon bore arms, sable, a fleece argent, a chief azuro gutte d'eau; David a harp in a field argent, and Samson gules, a lion couchant, or within an orle argent, semee of bees sable.

Armorial ensigns are supposed to have received divine sanction, for God, when prescribing unto Moses the form of conducting the Israelites in their journey through the wilderness, expressly commanded the use of armorial signs, saying, "The children of Israel shall pitch their tents every man by his own camp and every man by his own standard."—Cornhill Magazine.

The Detection of Forgery.

Dr. P. Frazer is the designer of a system of composite photography whereby the type of a person's writing, and especially the signature, can be so established as to constitute a comparative guide for the detection of forgery. This system, which, since its introduction in 1886, has given valuable results before various courts, has now been modified, and measurement and tabulation, which composite photography formerly established automatically by form, are now determined by figures. By this method a given number of heights, breadths and angles of letters, and spaces between them and between words, are selected and measured in a large number of undisputed signatures. The same elements are then measured in the signature in dispute. The averages of all the elements in the genuine series are then compared with the latter, and the comparison will almost inevitably unable a correct judgment as to the genuineness of the disputed signature to be formed. Every minute variation or peculiarity is recorded systematically in a column of measurements, and the characteristics of individual handwritings are clearly brought out with a degree of accuracy which makes the detection of any imitation an easy matter.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Was It Theosophy?

We have so many contradictory definitions of theosophy nowadays that we are glad to have a true exposition from "one who knows." The followers of Mme. Blavatsky style themselves "theosophists," and we are inclined to associate the word with anything that savors of the occult. We are told, however, that true theosophy is psychological religion. "Theosophy means literally 'wisdom of God,' not wisdom from God, but of God—viz, a wisdom characteristic of God—God's wisdom. Theosophy is a special insight of the divine nature and processes. A true theosophist knows God's plans and purposes as the results of some special intercommunication between God and himself. Such an illumination is promised all Christian believers."—New York World.

Time Shall Reveal It.

He who has seen only the daylight knows nothing of that heaven of stars which all night long hang overhead their lamps of gold. When death has dusted off this body from me, who will dream for me the new powers I shall possess? It were vain to try. Time shall reveal it all.—Theodore Parker.

THE REICHSTAG

the German reigning princes on their way there and upon their arrival.

Prince Hohenlohe, the chancellor, and Field Marshal Blumenthal, chief of the general staff of the Prussian army, who is about 80 years of age, were accorded an especially warm reception.

The imperial carriages arrived at the new reichstag building at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The portions set apart for the imperial and royal princes were alone used. The portal opposite the Column of Victory was conspicuous from the fact that it was decorated with a velvet canopy.

The weather was blustering; but this did not deter the immense crowds of people from gathering everywhere in the neighborhood of the new building.

The dedication ceremonies passed off without a hitch. The scene was most brilliant. A large dais had been constructed for the use of the imperial family and highly favored guests, and over it was a canopy topped by the imperial crowd. Beneath this canopy the emperor and empress and the German princes were gathered. Opposite this structure were the military and other notabilities as well as the members of the diplomatic corps. Prince Hohenlohe, when everything was ready, advanced towards the emperor with agile and springy step and asked his majesty's permission for the ceremonies to begin. The prince spoke in a clear but strident voice.

The ceremony was a tedious affair, all the participants climbing down from the dias to the stone and giving it three taps. At the conclusion of this ceremony, three hochs for the emperor were given, the band played the national anthem, and his majesty and the imperial party retired to an inner chamber of the reichstag building. The crowds then gradually dispersed, while the emperor inspected the building thoroughly under the guidance of Herr Wallot, the chief architect.

The absence of Gen. von Caprivi, the former chancellor, from today's ceremonies was much commented upon.

Reforms in Russia.

There are indications that the new czar of Russia intends to pursue a different policy from that which has characterized the rule of his predecessors. He has imbibed liberal ideas and proposes to put some of them into execution. Among the reforms in the Russian government which the Emperor Nicholas is credited with an intention of introducing, the principal one is the establishment of parliamentary constitution. That this would be a great advance in the direction of popular liberty in Russia will be seen at a glance. From an autocracy to a constitutional monarchy is a long step but there is good reason for believing that the Emperor Nicholas is contemplating such a move and that he will take the necessary action at an early date.

The late Alexander III was popular throughout Europe because he was regarded as the peacemaker of the nations. It was within his power to have plunged Europe into a general war that would have lasted for many years, but he pursued a reasonable foreign policy that repressed any tendency in the direction of war. His domestic policy was a different character. It was ill-advised and unlucky, and throughout his life upon the throne of the czars he lived in constant dread of assassination by the hands of the nihilists. Before his death a project of a constitution was circulating in St. Petersburg, and undoubtedly an attempt would have been made before the lapse of many years to induce the Emperor Alexander to give consideration and grant the demand of the Russian people for parliamentary representation, with all the authority that the term implies. But Alexander is dead, and it is no longer profitable to discuss what he would have done. It is of more interest to consider the attitude which the new czar is to assume towards the general desire for a constitution.

In the current number of the North American Review there is an article on "How the Czar's Death affects Europe," which touches upon this question. The article was written by Sergius Stepniak, at one time a prominent member of the nihilist party, and refers to the project of a constitution noted above. Stepniak quotes from this document, as follows: "Two questions are now before the Russian people: (1) Is a constitution necessary for Russia? (2) Is a constitution possible in Russia? The first of these questions is a question only in form; in fact, it has been already solved in the mind of the czar, whose daily experience reminds him of the necessity of a constitutional government for the regular course of state administration. It is solved in the minds of an overwhelming majority of statesmen in power, and only the inveterate custom of bureaucratic insincerity seals their lips. It is solved in the minds of Russian society and all its representatives, the press, the zemsivo, and town deputies, with only insignificant exceptions. It is solved even in the minds of the uneducated classes of the masses, because the discontent with the existing arbitrary rule, which pays no attention to law, is universal, and the thirst for freedom and justice is growing. And, finally, it is no longer a question for the revolutionists, who in times past denied the importance of constitutional government to the welfare of the people."

Having thus settled the question that a constitution is necessary, the document proceeds to show that a constitution is possible in Russia. Stepniak expresses an opinion, with which all will agree, that autocracy has outlived its age. He claims further that its overthrow is a question of days, the banner of democratic freedom rallying nowadays all that is progressive and truly patriotic in Russia. The great difficulties and dangers of the struggle, the enormity of the distances and scarcity of population, which stand as almost insuperable obstacles to a concerted action, while the government, having at its command railroads, telegraphy, and all the resources of modern industry, has the advantage of tremendous concentration of its forces; the barbarous punishments inflicted upon all who dare to raise their voices against the present form of government—all this may, and does, keep down in a latent state the smouldering discontent, forcing upon the people the habits of hypocritical reticence, which is the greater scourge of tyranny. Still that discontent is there, constituting an enormous hidden force which is more dangerous to the autocracy than all the bombs and all the palace or street insurrections.

The Emperor Nicholas has no doubt observed this state of affairs. In his travels around the world he has seen the beneficial results of a more liberal policy in government. He has seen the progress made by countries where constitutional government prevails, and has observed the popular content produced by giving the people generally a voice in the government of the nation. If it be true that he intends to carry out a reform along these lines, the present generation may see liberal and progressive Russia take a front place among the constitutional monarchies.

Bank Officials' Honesty.

New York banks have been rather unfortunate during the last three years in respect to losses by dishonesty. Here is a list of the amounts which they have lost:

Ninth National bank, by the president, $450,000; National Shoe and Leather bank, by a bookkeeper, $350,000; National Park bank, by the cashier, $95,000; Continental National bank, by the correspondence clerk, $58,000; United States National bank, by a bookkeeper, $43,000; St. Nicholas bank, by the receiving teller, $42,000; American Exchange National bank, by a bookkeeper, $33,000; Harlem River bank, by a bookkeeper, $24,000; Chemical National bank, by the paying teller, $16,000; Tradesmen's National bank, by the discount clerk, $12,000; National Bank of the Republic, by a discount clerk, $5200. Total, $1,132,200.

This is a large total, but it would be a fallacious assumption that bank officials generally are not as honest as people in other lines of business. The fact is that, as a rule, bank officials are scrupulously honest. Yet they are subjected to very great temptation. That so few become dishonest is strong testimony of their integrity as a general rule. The man who has never been tempted and boasts of his honesty has really very little to boast about. It is very easy to be honest when you are not tempted to be dishonest. There is not much credit about being honest under such circumstances.

It is strange that there is not more dishonesty in banks than now exists. The temptations, especially to beginners in the business, are greater than those in any other line of life. Large sums of money are constantly within their reach. It is possible to take some of it, without the loss being detected for a long time. The salaries paid to bank employes are usually much smaller than they should be, taking into consideration the responsibility of their positions and the confidence reposed in them. This makes the temptation greater to use some of the bank's money for speculation in order to add to their small incomes. That but a small number yield to this temptation speaks volumes for the integrity of bank officers generally.

The editor of the Rochester Post-Express, who is fond of athletics, considers football a failure as a game. "It is not pleasant to look at. The players are generally in a confused mass. The mass sways a few feet at a time, one way or another. There is little kicking of the ball, little running, little dodging, little skill of any kind. Sheer strength, courage, endurance, recklessness are all displayed, but not picturesquely displayed. The runner, the oarsman and even the boxer strips to his task and gives full play to every power of his body, but the football player is padded out like a Chinese warrior, looks clumsy and moves clumsily." The fact is that hardly any football is played nowadays. If there was more kicking of the ball, the game would be more interesting and not so dangerous.

The Chicago Times made its appearance yesterday in a new and handsome dress of type and enlarged to sixteen pages, which will be its regular daily size hereafter. Within the last two months the Times has made great strides as a newspaper and in the completeness of its news service and the high character and vigorous tone of its editorial page it now resembles its old self when Wilbur F. Storey was at the helm. The Times is now on an equality with the best newspapers in the country, and promises to improve that position.

There were 37,379 applicants for civil service appointments examined last year, of whom 15,248 failed to pass. It does not follow that 15,248 were unfit for the positions to which they aspired. Some of the fool questions asked at civil service examinations no doubt caused many to be "plucked."

A Boston dispatch today says that the Tremont house, one of the oldest hotels there, has been temporarily turned into an auction room and is filled with people anxious to buy relics. The old house is to be torn down to make room for a modern sky scraper. Boston, without the familiar Tremont, will hardly seem like Boston. It is a landmark that will be missed.

Bourke Cockran, at a dinner in New York the other night, expressed the opinion that Thomas B. Reed will be the speaker of the next congress and will also secure the Republican nomination for president in 1896. But he was careful not to add that he would be elected. Mr. Cockran may think so, but it would not be politic on his part to express such an opinion.

One of the city papers on Monday said that President Cleveland had presented his last message to congress. Not if Grover knows himself. He has more than two years to serve yet, and he will present several messages during that time.

"He did not travel, because Boston and Nahant and Berkshire contented him," writes the editor of the Atlantic Monthly in his article on Dr. Holmes. "The concentration of his power and his affection has had its effect on Dr. Holmes' literary fame. He is another witness, if one were needed, to the truth that identification with a locality is a surer passport to immortality than cosmopolitanism."

Professor S. S. Buckman attempts, in the Nineteenth Century magazine, to prove that we are descended from apes, taking babies as his means of proof. He claims that the furrow in the upper lip of a baby is the trace of a cicatrix, due to the healing of a hare lip in monkeys of old, and that the pouch-like cheeks of a fat baby are derived from monkey storages. The professor must be a crusty old bachelor.

Americans own more vessels that sail under foreign flags than those that fly the Stars and Stripes. This shows that the marine prohibitory registration law does not act as a protective tariff for shipbuilding.

It is expected that the racing legislation this fall will be made the biggest boodle affair that ever struck Albany, N. Y.

Dr. A. Conan Doyle says he is quite well pleased with Niagara Falls. This is gratifying, indeed.

Excellence vs. Cheapness.

Chicago Times: It is our opinion that the public demand excellence rather than mere cheapness, and the slender margin which is left the publishers of a penny newspaper makes it impossible that the paper furnished should be of that high standard which intelligent American readers demand. For a newspaper which the public buys for 1 cent the publishers receive but ½ cent, the remainder going to the newsboy or dealer. It must be entirely evident to anyone who stops to consider that such a price is inadequate.

A Poet's Sad Fate.

Said the editor: "This poem's
Full of fire; don't return it.
No wood to spare,
And coal is dear,
And therefore we will burn it!"

And as he sat and warmed himself—
The bright flames leaping higher,
He briefly wrote
This little note:
"Your verse just teems with fire!"

Opposition to Washburn.

St. Paul Pioneer Press: It is not easy to say how far the editorial comments of the country reflect the views of the legislative delegations from their districts, but it is useless to disguise the fact that they indicate a good deal of opposition to the election of Mr. Washburn.

A Winter Bridge to Park Point.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Now that the council has disposed of the gas and water question, would it not be meet and proper for it to take up some of the minor questions that have been "laid under the table" on account of that all absorbing subject. One of the questions and one of far more importance to the residents of Park Point than the gas and water problem is how to get their wives and children safely across the canal during the winter when high waves and large cakes of ice come rolling in and out, making it extremely dangerous to cross the canal in the small flat boat now provided.

A couple of months ago a petition was presented to the council by the taxpayers of Park Point asking that a cheap temporary bridge be built. It was referred to the board of public works and they sent back to the council a plan for an elaborate suspension bridge and estimated the cost at about $3600 but made no recommendation, and thus the matter ended.

The writer remembers when such a bridge as petitioned for was built across the canal for $290, and served the purpose well, and knows that now such a bridge suitable for the increased travel can be built for $400, or about one-seventh of the board's estimate. World it not pay the city to build such a bridge? It could be used for five months and would cost $400, with about $100 each year thereafter for taking down in the spring and building up again in the fall, while now we pay $200 per month for the present very unsatisfactory winter service. Can you see where the economy comes in? It means a saving of $600 the first year and $900 per year thereafter.

Some of the newer residents of Duluth may wonder why the city should be at this expense, and the only answer is that it is partial reparation for a great injustice done nearly a quarter of a century ago to the people of Park Point. It was then a part of the mainland but in 1871 the digging of the present canal cut them off from all communication with Duluth. Duluth has gained a million-fold by that canal while Park Point has stood still, and it is only right that they should be given a safe passage over what is to them their Nemesis, and has proven to be Duluth's "key to the situation." Truly yours, N. F. HUGO.

D. 1895, at ten (10) o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale, as provided for by law.

AMUSEMENTS.

Tavary Opera Company.

From the attendance at the Tavary company's performances at the Lyceum the only inference that can be drawn is that Duluth people are not educated to the standard of grand opera. The audience last evening was disgracefully small considering the merit of the performance given.

"Carmen" is a pleasing opera, being somewhat lighter and more dashing than most of the grand operas. Nevertheless its music is difficult and a high order of dramatic ability is demanded. Madame Tavary sang the role of Michela and looked well in the costume. Her acting was done with feeling and sympathy and her singing was all that could be asked.

The role of Carmen is most prominent and in it Mme. Thea Dorre was seen and scored a triumph. Her lithe and graceful figure and dashing, impetuous manner were well adapted to the part of the coquettish and fascinating Spanish flirt. The fierce passion, anger and arch coquetry were admirably presented and in facial expression and the bewitching use of her eyes she was wonderful. Her voice is a mezzo soprano of fine quality and attracts no less attention than her acting.

William Mertens was seen in his great character of Escamillio. The "Toreador" song was encored tremendously and he was obliged to repeat it. Payne Clark made a fine Don Jose, both vocally and dramatically, and was rewarded with frequent applause.

The chorus faltered several times in the early part of the performance but recovered and sang splendidly later on. One or two breaks can be charged up to the orchestra also.

This afternoon "I'Pagliacci," and "Cavelleria Rusticana" were sung. Tonight Wagner's great opera "Lohengrin" will be sung and Madame Tavary will appear as Elsa. This is her favorite and best character.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria

LECTURE ON FOOD.

E. B. Worrell Talked to an Audience of Women Yesterday Afternoon.

A lecture on food adulteration and food products was delivered by E. B. Worrell, of Boston, at the Temple yesterday afternoon before an audience of women. He discussed different foods and their composition and explained which elements are necessary for the building up of the tissues of the body. He is in the employ of Walter Baker & Co., the cocoa manufacturers, and devoted considerable time to presenting the superior qualities of cocoa and chocolate as compared with tea and coffee. The latter are only stimulants, he said, while the former produce heat and build up the tissues.

Mr. Worrell went from here to Minneapolis, where he will lecture.

The Charity Ball.

The first annual ball of the National Council for Duluth of Jewish Women will be held on Wednesday evening, Dec. 26, at the Spalding. The sale of tickets is progressing well and arrangements are being made for a brilliant social success. The ball has been announced in another paper for this evening but that is an error.

The Benefit for Finnick.

Tonight at the Parlor theater the farewell benefit to Harry Finnick, the Arkansas Kid, will be given, and it will probably be an event of considerable interest to local sporting men. The event of the evening will be a sparring contest between George Curtis and Harry Finnick, while any number of local pugilists will meet each other in friendly 4-round contests.

CHOICE OF OFFICERS

T. W. Hugo Elected President of the Chamber of Commerce for the Coming Year.

A. Hirsch Selected for Vice President, C. F. Johnson for Secretary, and M. O. Hall for Treasurer.

John Siegel Arrested for Stealing J. C. Hunter's Dog Dismissed Because of Defective Complaints.

The annual election of the chamber of commerce was held this morning between the hours of 10 and 12 o'clock. As a result of the election T. W. Hugo will serve as president for the coming year. Mr. Hugo has been one of the most enthusiastic members of the chamber during the last year and will undoubtedly make an active and progressive presiding officer. George W. Buck was the only other candidate receiving votes.

A. Hirsch was elected vice-president over J. H. Keyes, M. Douglas, G. A. Leland and W. E. Richardson. C. F. Johnson continues as secretary. H. E. Smith was also voted for and M. O. Hall was elected treasurer, J. H. Baker, J. P. Johnson and H. C. Spalding also securing votes.

SIEGEL WAS DISMISSED.

Two of County Attorney Tear's Complaints Knocked Out By the Court.

Tuesday afternoon in the municipal court, John Siegel and Jean Hanna were arraigned on the charge of stealing J. C. Hunter's collie dog. Mr. Hunter refused to make a complaint, so Detective Benson did it on his own responsibility.

When the case was called, C. O. Baldwin secured a dismissal on technical grounds, showing that that the complaint was faulty. The judge ordered that the case be dismissed and that the prisoners be discharged from custody.

"Your honor, order the re-arrest of those men" exclaimed County Attorney Tear.

"I cannot do it," said Judge Winje.

"Arrest those men, I'll issue another complaint," shouted Mr. Tear to Benson.

"All right," said Duluth's city Hawkshaw.

"You boys get out of here," said Attorney Baldwin.

They started, but Benson intercepted them at the door and attempted to take them into custody.

"You arrest those boys and I'll have you defendant in a suit for false imprisonment," said Mr. Baldwin.

Benson in language more emphatic than polite remarked that he did not care and proceeded to collar the boys. Baldwin renewed his warnings and Tear continued his orders and appeals for Benson to take them into custody.

Just then a young woman, about 20 years of age, a sister to Hanna, alias the "Minnesota Chicken," sprang like a tiger cat right into the midst of the fracas. She clawed and scratched and got Benson by the throat. That enabled the "Minnesota chicken" to escape, and he has not since appeared.

A second complaint was issued and this morning, young Siegel was hauled again before Judge Winje. The "Minnesota Chicken" was not there, however, thanks to his sister's good services yesterday.

The dog was there, J. C. Hunter was there and a whole lot of witnesses, Benson and the mother, father and two little sisters of the defendant.

The first thing that C. O. Baldwin did was to pick a flaw in the complaint. He raised the point that the description of the dog was not complete and full enough, or, in place of that, the fact that a further and more complete description was unknown to the complainant. Both sides argued on the points to a considerable length, and Judge Winje seem very much inclined to sustain Baldwin's points and order a dismissal of the case.

Just then Mr. Tear sang out testily: "Your honor, you may dismiss the case," and with his face changing color several times with anger and disgust, the county attorney picked up his hat and walked out.

When young Siegel reached the door on his way out, Benson met him and said:

"Come here, George, I want to see you."

The boy hesitated and Benson repeated his request. The young fellow then obeyed and had reached the threshhold of the door when the mother saw the move and got it into her head that Benson was going to take her son out the hallway and lock him up. She shrieked for Baldwin and he ran out, grabbed George by the arm, pulled him back and said:

"Come here, don't you have anything to do with him."

The boy came back, his mother jeered at Benson and he stood there with a rather sheepish smile on his face, while the crowd howled with pleasure at the performance.

The case of Joseph Ray, charged with using indecent and immoral language on a Woodland street car Saturday night was taken up before dinner and a few witnesses examined. The accused was on hand prepared to make a vigorous defense on the lines that any offense he may have committed was justified by what occurred previously and led up to it.

L. Mendenhall, Manager Warren and Thomas Wood, all of the street railway, were present and Assistant City Attorney Benham conducted the prosecution.

One witness, Miss Erickson, testified that yesterday the defendant offered her $5 to come down and testify in his behalf but Judge Winje declared all that stricken from the records.

The case was adjourned until the afternoon session.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury,

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucuous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them. OF INTEREST TO WOMEN.

Physical Culture Work of the Young Women's Christian Association.

The Young Women's Christian association is now actively pushing a feature of its work in which it hopes to interest every woman in the city—the department of physical culture. This has always been a part of the Y. W. C. A. work, but until recently the Duluth association has not been in a position to so actively prosecute it as was wished. About two weeks' ago M. Zelle Butcher, of the Columbia school of physical culture, of Chicago, arrived and took charge of this department and the association now has every reason to hope and believe that a wide interest will be awakened among the women of the city.

Miss Butcher is an enthusiast and enters heart and soul into the work. "I cannot understand," says she, "how any woman can fail to see the absolute necessity and the great benefit resulting from the training of the body. Our physical, mental and spiritual beings are inseparable and without culture and strength of the body the faculties cannot but be impaired. No one can see it in any other light and it is a mystery to me how women appreciating this, can neglect their physical welfare."

The course of study is founded on the Emerson system and includes movements from the Swedish and German methods. It includes fancy marching and drills with dumb bells, Indian clubs wands and rings. To the practical use of the speaking voice special attention is given. Each one entering a class is given a physical examination, including measurements and corrective exercises suited to individual needs. After the holidays new classes will be organized to to take up gymnasium work more especially. The aim of all instruction is to attain the highest condition of health and beauty through such exercises as are authorized and required by the laws of human economy.

There are several classes one week. On Monday and Thursday, at 4 o'clock, there is one especially for the high school girls. On Tuesday and Friday, at 5:15 p. m., is the business women's hour. The evening classes are held on Tuesday and Friday, at 7 o'clock.

A skating club is to be organized, and in the summer a tennis club will undoubtedly be a feature. Other pleasure clubs will be formed from time to time.

One of the most valuable features of the physical culture work is the health talks given every Monday evening. Last Monday Dr. Lyman gave an interesting discussion of "The Relation of the Brain to the Body." Next Monday Mrs. Elizabeth L. Scoville will talk on "The Pedigree of the Corset." On the following Monday Dr. Mary McCoy will talk and the different physicians of the city will follow from time to time.

On Monday next a musicale will be given in the rooms at 12 o'clock. Miss Margaret McDonald, Miss Butcher and others will assist.

Classes in German, stenography and other subjects are progressing in a satisfactory manner. A tourist club has been organized and at the next meeting Mrs. B. C. Rude will talk on Florida.

THE ASSOCIATED CHARITIES.

Annual Meeting and Election of Officers Held Last Evening.

At the annual meeting of the Associated Charities at Pilgrim church last evening Mrs S. B. Bangs read her report,and Mr. Holt reported on the work of the Friendly Inn, which was in operation in the basement of the Christian church last winter. He said that 300 men were lodged during the winter, and only three disturbances occurred, and that was when some of the men smuggled in liquor and filled up on it. A vote of thanks was extended Mr. Holt for his work and the Christian church for the use of its building.

Mr. Holt, of Minneapolis, gave a short outline of the work of the Minneapolis Associated Charities, and Capt. Miller spoke of the work of caring for the St. Louis county poor.

Following are the officers chosen for the coming year: President, W. W. Dawley; vice president, L. J. Hopkins; treasurer, J. T. Hall; secretary, N. J. Miller. The executive committee consists of W. S. Woodbridge, Bishop McGolrick, Mayor Lewis, Rev. F. C. Southworth and Rev. T. H. Cleland.

Hartman, mortgagee, bearing date the first (1st) day of April, A. D. 1893, and which was duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, on the fifth (5th) day of April, A. D. 1893, at eight (8) o'clock a. m., in Book one hundred one (101) of mortgages, on pages 605, 606, 607 and 608 thereof; which mortgage, and the debt thereby secured, was thereafter duly assigned, for a valuable consideration, by the said A. W. Hartman to Emily H. AMUSEMENTS.

Tavary Opera Company.

From the attendance at the Tavary company's performances at the Lyceum the only inference that can be drawn is that Duluth people are not educated to the standard of grand opera. The audience last evening was disgracefully small considering the merit of the performance given.

"Carmen" is a pleasing opera, being somewhat lighter and more dashing than most of the grand operas. Nevertheless its music is difficult and a high order of dramatic ability is demanded. Madame Tavary sang the role of Michela and looked well in the costume. Her acting was done with feeling and sympathy and her singing was all that could be asked.

The role of Carmen is most prominent and in it Mme. Thea Dorre was seen and scored a triumph. Her lithe and graceful figure and dashing, impetuous manner were well adapted to the part of the coquettish and fascinating Spanish flirt. The fierce passion, anger and arch coquetry were admirably presented and in facial expression and the bewitching use of her eyes she was wonderful. Her voice is a mezzo soprano of fine quality and attracts no less attention than her acting.

William Mertens was seen in his great character of Escamillio. The "Toreador" song was encored tremendously and he was obliged to repeat it. Payne Clark made a fine Don Jose, both vocally and dramatically, and was rewarded with frequent applause.

The chorus faltered several times in the early part of the performance but recovered and sang splendidly later on. One or two breaks can be charged up to the orchestra also.

This afternoon "I'Pagliacci," and "Cavelleria Rusticana" were sung. Tonight Wagner's great opera "Lohengrin" will be sung and Madame Tavary will appear as Elsa. This is her favorite and best character.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria

LECTURE ON FOOD.

E. B. Worrell Talked to an Audience of Women Yesterday Afternoon.

A lecture on food adulteration and food products was delivered by E. B. Worrell, of Boston, at the Temple yesterday afternoon before an audience of women. He discussed different foods and their composition and explained which elements are necessary for the building up of the tissues of the body. He is in the employ of Walter Baker & Co., the cocoa manufacturers, and devoted considerable time to presenting the superior qualities of cocoa and chocolate as compared with tea and coffee. The latter are only stimulants, he said, while the former produce heat and build up the tissues.

Mr. Worrell went from here to Minneapolis, where he will lecture.

The Charity Ball.

The first annual ball of the National Council for Duluth of Jewish Women will be held on Wednesday evening, Dec. 26, at the Spalding. The sale of tickets is progressing well and arrangements are being made for a brilliant social success. The ball has been announced in another paper for this evening but that is an error.

The Benefit for Finnick.

Tonight at the Parlor theater the farewell benefit to Harry Finnick, the Arkansas Kid, will be given, and it will probably be an event of considerable interest to local sporting men. The event of the evening will be a sparring contest between George Curtis and Harry Finnick, while any number of local pugilists will meet each other in friendly 4-round contests.

CHOICE OF OFFICERS

T. W. Hugo Elected President of the Chamber of Commerce for the Coming Year.

A. Hirsch Selected for Vice President, C. F. Johnson for Secretary, and M. O. Hall for Treasurer.

John Siegel Arrested for Stealing J. C. Hunter's Dog Dismissed Because of Defective Complaints.

The annual election of the chamber of commerce was held this morning between the hours of 10 and 12 o'clock. As a result of the election T. W. Hugo will serve as president for the coming year. Mr. Hugo has been one of the most enthusiastic members of the chamber during the last year and will undoubtedly make an active and progressive presiding officer. George W. Buck was the only other candidate receiving votes.

A. Hirsch was elected vice-president over J. H. Keyes, Mr. Douglas, G. A. Leland and W. E. Richardson. C. F. Johnson continues as secretary. H. E. Smith was also voted for and M. O. Hall was elected treasurer, J. H. Baker, J. P. Johnson and H. C. Spalding also securing votes.

SIEGEL WAS DISMISSED.

Two of County Attorney Tear's Complaints Knocked Out By the Court.

Tuesday afternoon in the municipal court, John Siegel and Jean Hanna were arraigned on the charge of stealing J. C. Hunter's collie dog. Mr. Hunter refused to make a complaint, so Detective Benson did it on his own responsibility.

When the case was called, C. O. Baldwin secured a dismissal on technical grounds, showing that that the complaint was faulty. The judge ordered that the case be dismissed and that the prisoners be discharged from custody.

"Your honor, order the re-arrest of those men" exclaimed County Attorney Tear.

"I cannot do it," said Judge Winje.

"Arrest those men, I'll issue another complaint," shouted Mr. Tear to Benson.

"All right," said Duluth's city Hawkshaw.

"You boys get out of here," said Attorney Baldwin.

They started, but Benson intercepted them at the door and attempted to take them into custody.

"You arrest those boys and I'll have you defendant in a suit for false imprisonment," said Mr. Baldwin.

Benson in language more emphatic than polite remarked that he did not care and proceeded to collar the boys. Baldwin renewed his warnings and Tear continued his orders and appeals for Benson to take them into custody.

Just then a young woman, about 20 years of age, a sister to Hanna, alias the "Minnesota Chicken," sprang like a tiger cat right into the midst of the fracas. She clawed and scratched and got Benson by the throat. That enabled the "Minnesota chicken" to escape, and he has not since appeared.

A second complaint was issued and this morning, young Siegel was hauled again before Judge Winje. The "Minnesota Chicken" was not there, however, thanks to his sister's good services yesterday.

The dog was there, J. C. Hunter was there and a whole lot of witnesses, Benson and the mother, father and two little sisters of the defendant.

The first thing that C. O. Baldwin did was to pick a flaw in the complaint. He raised the point that the description of the dog was not complete and full enough, or, in place of that, the fact that a further and more complete description was unknown to the complainant. Both sides argued on the points to a considerable length, and Judge Winje seem very much inclined to sustain Baldwin's points and order a dismissal of the case.

Just then Mr. Tear sang out testily: "Your honor, you may dismiss the case," and with his face changing color several times with anger and disgust, the county attorney picked up his hat and walked out.

When young Siegel reached the door on his way out, Benson met him and said:

"Come here, George, I want to see you."

The boy hesitated and Benson repeated his request. The young fellow then obeyed and had reached the threshhold of the door when the mother saw the move and got it into her head that Benson was going to take her son out the hallway and lock him up. She shrieked for Baldwin and he ran out, grabbed George by the arm, pulled him back and said:

"Come here, don't you have anything to do with him."

The boy came back, his mother jeered at Benson and he stood there with a rather sheepish smile on his face, while the crowd bowled with pleasure at the performance.

The case of Joseph Ray, charged with using indecent and immoral language on a Woodland street car Saturday night was taken up before dinner and a few witnesses examined. The accused was on hand prepared to make a vigorous defense on the lines that any offense he may have committed was justified by what occurred previously and led up to it.

L. Mendenhall, Manager Warren and Thomas Wood, all of the street railway, were present and Assistant City Attorney Benham conducted the prosecution.

One witness, Miss Erickson, testified that yesterday the defendant offered her $5 to come down and testify in his behalf but Judge Winje declared all that stricken from the records.

The case was adjourned until the afternoon session.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury,

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucuous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure and get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN.

Physical Culture Work of the Young Women's Christian Association.

The Young Women's Christian association is now actively pushing a feature of its work in which it hopes to interest every woman in the city—the department of physical culture. This has always been a part of the Y. W. C. A. work, but until recently the Duluth association has not been in a position to so actively prosecute it as was wished. About two weeks' ago M. Zelle Butcher, of the Columbia school of physical culture, of Chicago, arrived and took charge of this department and the association now has every reason to hope and believe that a wide interest will be awakened among the women of the city.

Miss Butcher is an enthusiast and enters heart and soul into the work. "I cannot understand," says she, "how any woman can fail to see the absolute necessity and the great benefit resulting from the training of the body. Our physical, mental and spiritual beings are inseparable and without culture and strength of the body the faculties cannot but be impaired. No one can see it in any other light and it is a mystery to me how women appreciating this, can neglect their physical welfare."

The course of study is founded on the Emerson system and includes movements from the Swedish and German methods. It includes fancy marching and drills with dumb bells, Indian clubs wands and rings. To the practical use of the speaking voice special attention is given. Each one entering a class is given a physical examination, including measurements and corrective exercises suited to individual needs. After the holidays new classes will be organized to to take up gymnasium work more especially. The aim of all instruction is to attain the highest condition of health and beauty through such exercises as are authorized and required by the laws of human economy.

There are several classes one week. On Monday and Thursday, at 4 o'clock, there is one especially for the high school girls. On Tuesday and Friday, at 5:15 p. m., is the business women's hour. The evening classes are held on Tuesday and Friday, at 7 o'clock.

A skating club is to be organized, and in the summer a tennis club will undoubtedly be a feature. Other pleasure clubs will be formed from time to time.

One of the most valuable features of the physical culture work is the health talks given every Monday evening. Last Monday Dr. Lynam gave an interesting discussion of "The Relation of the Brain to the Body." Next Monday Mrs. Elizabeth L. Scoville will talk on "The Pedigree of the Corset." On the following Monday Dr. Mary McCoy will talk and the different physicians of the city will follow from time to time.

On Monday next a musicale will be given in the rooms at 12 o'clock. Miss Margaret McDonald, Miss Butcher and others will assist.

Classes in German, stenography and other subjects are progressing in a satisfactory manner. A tourist club has been organized and at the next meeting Mrs. B. C. Rude will talk on Florida.

THE ASSOCIATED CHARITIES.

Annual Meeting and Election of Officers Held Last Evening.

At the annual meeting of the Associated Charities at Pilgrim church last evening Mrs S. B. Bangs read her report, and Mr. Holt reported on the work of the Friendly Inn, which was in operation in the basement of the Christian church last winter. He said that 300 men were lodged during the winter, and only three disturbances occurred, and that was when some of the men smuggled in liquor and filled up on it. A vote of thanks was extended Mr. Holt for his work and the Christian church for the use of its building.

Mr. Holt, of Minneapolis, gave a short outline of the work of the Minneapolis Associated Charities, and Capt. Miller spoke of the work of caring for the St. Louis county poor.

Following are the officers chosen for the coming year: President, W. W. Dawley; vice president, L. J. Hopkins; treasurer, J. T. Hall; secretary, N. J. Miller. The executive committee consists of W. S. Woodbridge, Bishop McGolrick, Mayor Lewis, Rev. F. C. Southworth and Rev. T. H. Cleland.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE.

Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage, which was duly executed and delivered by Moses Stewart, Jr., and Minnie Stewart, his wife, mortgagors, to A. W. Hartman, mortgagee, bearing date the first (1st) day of April, A. D. 1893, and which was duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, on the fifth (5th) day of April, A. D. 1893, at eight (8) o'clock a. m., in Book one hundred one (101) of mortgages, on pages 605, 606, 607 and 608 thereof; which mortgage, and the debt thereby secured, was thereafter duly assigned, for a valuable consideration, by the said A. ITASCA STATE PARK

Commissioner Brower Reports on the Urgent Necessity of Early Action to Preserve the Park.

Great Destruction of Moose and Deer at Itasca Lake the Past Twenty-four Months.

Remains and Relics of a Lost Village of Prehistoric Mound Builders Have Been Located.

ST. PAUL, Dec. 5.—J. V. Brower, commissioner of the Itasca state park, submitted to Governor Nelson today his report, and accompanying it is a chart which indicates the unsatisfactory condition of the property acquired by the state as a permanent reservation. At the last session of the state legislature an act was passed accepting from the government of the United States a grant of all the lands within the limits of the park not otherwise disposed of. An appropriation was also made to purchase the undisposed of granted lands of the Northern Pacific Railroad company, and the deeds of the same have been placed on record.

"This action," reports Commissioner Brower, "places under state control 10,870 acres and leaves private ownership of lands, not purchased or condemned, to 8823 acres, held by John S. Pillsbury, Thomas B. Walker and the Weyerhauser syndicate. These owners are permitted to cut and market the growing timber on their lands.

"The reservation is a dense forest of Norway, white and banks pine, with a considerable growth of spruce, fir, cedar, ash, oak, elm, basswood and various other kinds of varieties of timber and evergreens. The lands of the state and those of private ownership are closely intermingled and adjoining. As soon as the timber shall have been cut from the lands held by private owners, the whole tract of thirty-five square miles will become a burned, black and denuded waste, the streams and lakes will dry up and partially disappear, and the reservoir dam, necessary to drive the logs through and out from Itasca and Elk lakes into the Mississippi river, will drown out every tree and shrub standing upon the shores of said lakes.

"When the timber standing upon the lands held by the state shall have been burned down and drowned out, the whole purpose and intent of the law will be silenced forever, and half of each year there will be no Mississippi river flowing out from Itasca lake. The only remedy to prevent such a result is the lawful right of the state to acquire by condemnation, or otherwise, the 8823 acres not yet acquired.

"This acquisition, at small cost, will certainly preserve one of the most formidable, picturesque and historic spots in the western hemisphere. Between these two described conditions a choice must now be made. Two years longer delay, and a portion or all of that reservation will be a waste. As to the value of the park as a resort for health, pleasure and recreation, it has a worldwide reputation.

"The responsibility now is shall the source of the Mississippi river be preserved to posterity as a public park, or shall it be destroyed and obliterated forever? The question rests with you and the legislature. The past year I have taken active steps to protect the game and fish within the limits of the reservation, with some success. Much more could have been done if the use of fire arms was entirely prohibited. No portion of the game and fish appropriation was expended there, my application for the same being denied.

"During the season I have personally caused a number of painted notices, warning off all poachers, with good effect, but it must be confessed that white men very much dislike to be denied privileges in hunting and fishing which Indians avail themselves of at every opportunity. A telling destruction of moose and deer has taken place at and beyond Itasca lake the past twenty-four months, regardless of all law. Moose meat has been more plentiful than beef. Sounds have been heard in every direction in the chase, and fish nets have been set promiscuously.

"I caused the arrest of several parties at Park Rapids for illegal hunting and fishing, and upon a criminal complant be me against one Foster, for hunting deer and seining fish at Naiwa lake, Hubbard county, Sheriff Moran took possession of the seines in the month of June last and made no return to the state whatever. Circumstances of this kind do not encourage prosecutions.

"On Oct. 27 last I discovered and located on the shores of Itasca lake the unmistakable remains and relics of a lost village of prehistoric mound builders. Stone and copper implements and a curious and miscellaneous collection of broken pottery were taken from below the surface of the mound upon lot 2, section 2, township 143, range 36, and an adjoining tract on the north end of the lake.

"It would appear that this lost village was nearly a half mile in length, and the fact that deposits of relics is now found below the present surface of the earth several inches seems to justify the belief that this extinct race of men proceeded to, discovered and resided at Itasca lake many centuries ago, but as to the exact date, a further and more extended examination is necessary to determine."

Near it is the Tivoli saloon and some people have gained the idea that the rink is operated by the same people who run the saloon and Mr. Oestreich was, in fact, called upon by a committee of ladies to ascertain whether it was true. This idea is entirely incorrect. The rink is run by an entirely different man than the proprietor of the saloon, and has no connection whatever. The best of order is always insisted upon and nothing else is tolerated. Mrs. Oestreich is always at the rink to attend to the wants of the ladies, and the entire place is conducted in a first-class manner.

California University Students Cruelly Haze a Slender Cripple.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 5.—Disloyalty to the University of California, of which he has until recently been an undergraduate, was the reason given for the hazing of Claud G. Campbell, son of a Methodist minister at Los Angeles, by his fellow students.

Campbell's offense consisted in wearing the Stanford colors and jeering at the University of California because of its defeat by Stanford in the football match Thanksgiving day. He is also accused of having given inside information of the condition and tactics of his university team to the opposing players.

Campbell was caught after midnight, seized and blindfolded. With a dull razor the students shaved one side of his head and cut off his eyebrows and eyelashes. His head was daubed with red ink, Stanford's colors, having been worked into his locks with mucilage. On one cheek was a red "S" for Stanford. On the other was a "T" for traitor. He was stripped and his body covered with the same letters.

Campbell is a slender cripple and explains that he was a former Stanford student, intending to return to that university in January. The faculty will consider the case on its merits.

BEAT THE ELEVATED ROAD.

Novel Race in New York Won by a Livery Hack Horse.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—A livery hack horse beat the Manhattan elevated railroad system last night in a novel race from the Battery to Fifty-ninth street. The match was for $50 a side, Lynwood Palmer, the artist, backing the horse and Frank Elliot, the Canadian gentleman jockey, backing the elevated system. His blind confidence lost him the wager.

The terms of the bet were that Palmer could drive, without police interference, from the Battery to the Central Park riding academy, Seventh avenue and Fifty-ninth street, and cover the route faster than Elliot could travel by train. The start was made from the Battery stairs leading to the elevated station.

Bertie Ashenden was starter and timekeeper, and drove with Palmer, watch in hand. The route was up Broadway and Seventh avenue to the end of the course which was covered in just twenty-nine minutes. The two men were in a run-about wagon pulled by a horse hired from a livery stable. The best time was made on Upper Seventh avenue, where there was no interference from passing vehicles. Elliot arrived ten minutes later.

Best Paper, Best Advertising!

When a contractor is in a hurry to drive a long plank down the side of a new sewer, he sets two men at it. Each with a big maul hits it alternate blows as often and as hard as he can. The strokes come as even as a pendulum swings.

One man and one maul would drive the plank down, but it would take longer.

The bigger the maul, the quicker and easier he will do the work.

Two men, or a dozen, with tack hammers would not get the plank driven in a hundred years.

There's a parallel to this in advertising. If you're in a hurry to drive your business, use two papers and make the advertising maul---the space as big as possible.

If you haven't money enough to buy two big mauls, buy only one---use only one paper, the best, and make the space big enough to be felt.

You'll do more good with one maul than with half a dozen tack hammers. You'll get more benefit from a regular advertisement, of sufficient size, in a paper like The Evening Herald than you will from half a dozen smaller ads in weaker papers.

If you only have one ad, have it right. You don't believe in cutting your store in two, do you?

You don't establish a branch until you feel sure you are doing all you can in the main store.

Be sure you are doing enough in the best paper before you think of adding another.

HAS A TOUGH RECORD.

Dr. Charles W. Jacobs Was Arrested at Milwaukee For a Mock Marriage With a Chicago Widow.

According to the Story Told By the Chicago Police, He Has a Glittering Record.

Dealt in Diamonds Without the Aid of Diamonds and Was in Other Questionable Schemes.

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 5.—Dr. Charles W. Jacobs, under arrest here for his participation in a mock marriage, is not Pietzel, the St. Louis insurance swindler. Jacobs was unable to get a divorce from his legal wife in Kansas City, yet wanted to marry Mrs. Buck, of Chicago. He disappeared, leading his wife to believe that he had been killed. Mrs. Buck refused to live with him until he had secured a divorce, so he got a copy of the Oklahoma territory court papers and forged a judgment of divorce.

Fearing discovery if he had a minister marry him, he conceived the plan of a mock ceremony. The police have released Jacobs, Mrs. Buck and Harvey, the bogus preacher.

Jacobs, according to the police of Chicago, has a glittering record. Jacobs secured his diploma from a Cincinnati medical college and practiced medicine in Omaha and Kansas City. While in Kansas City several years ago he married the daughter of Millionaire David Skelton and, it is claimed, made an unsuccessful attempt last summer to secure a divorce there.

Jacobs' favorite plan for obtaining money was, it is said, the offering of $30 worth of work for a deposit of $5, but the transaction invariably ended, the police say, when he received the deposit. He was also known as a dealer in diamonds, which business was carried on without the aid of diamonds. Jacobs is also said to have received large contributions from Western farmers through divers and questionable schemes.

SMELTER COMBINE FORMED.

It Will Raise Rates as Soon as All Smelters Are In.

DENVER, Dec. 5.—L. Smith, president of the Union Smelting company, which has large works at Leadville, confirms the report that a smelter combine has been formed. The Union smelter is not in the combine, and Mr. Smith says it has been boycotted by the trust.

"We had an invitation to go in," said Mr. Smith, "but because we did not go around begging for terms, the trust is going to discipline us a little. The clearing house feature of the scheme is a good one and if that was all there was to it we would be in favor of it."

"What is the clearing house feature?"

"Why, each smelter registers all of its contracts for ore in the trust clearing house. The ores are delivered to the clearing house and paid for and are distributed to the different smelters in such a way that each claims its share of the ore, but the ores are so distributed that the smelters are all supplied with the kinds of ores they need the most."

"Has the trust attempted to raise rates yet?"

"No, it has not gone that far yet, but that is the main reason for the combine. It must first get all the smelters in. The Utah Smelters are out yet, and we are the only one of any account in this state that is out. Just as soon as they can get things fixed, the plan is to raise the rates."

LINCOLN, Neb., Dec. 5.—Professor B. J. Alexander, of Cotner university, and D. L. Mehan and J. A. Burford were today held to the district court for trial on the charge of grave robbery. The men are alleged to have stolen a body from Wyuka cemetery, and when arrested they were dissecting the cadaver in the medical college.

HIROSHIMA, Dec. 5.—A dispatch from Field Marshal Yamagata, dated Antong, Dec. 5, says that the Japanese scouting party, sent in the direction of Ling Shan Kwan, engaged the Chinese outposts on the summit of Motien Ling, on Nov. 15. One Japanese soldier was killed and three were wounded.

The scouting party was afterwards reinforced and occupied a position at Sokakko, where it was attacked by the enemy at large. Over forty Japanese were killed in this engagement.

A company of infantry sent to reconnoiter Kwan Tien and Saibarhu was attacked by a large force of Chinese on Nov. 20 at Tasikow and was compelled to retreat with the loss of several killed. Field Marshal Yamagata adds that measures have been taken to clear the country around Kwan Tien and Saibashu.

The detachments under Gen. Tachimi and Col. Nissyinia have reached their destinations after meeting with slight resistance. They attacked the enemy at Saikabo on Nov. 13 and compelled the Chinese troops to retire. The two detachments are now returning to Antong.

THE TARIFF ON SUGAR

Senator Quay Offers the Senate an Opportunity to Vote Upon Protection to the Trust.

Amendment to the Sugar Clause, Striking Out All Provisions, Except the One-Eighth Differential.

The House Committee on Rules Decides to Give Right-of-Way to the Pooling Bill.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—There was not a quorum present when the senate met today, but as there was no demand for a quorum business proceeded with a limited attendance. Bills were introduced by Mr. Berry, of Arkansas, to form the territory of Indianola out of portions of the Indian territory; by Mr. Dolph, of Oregon, to exempt from duty foreign exhibits at the Portland, Ore., exposition; by Mr. Hunter, of Virginia, to remit the fines and penalties on the ships Yorktown, Baltimore, Newark and Philadelphia; by Mr. Dolph, to forfeit the unearned public lands granted to railroads; by Mr. McPherson, of New Jersey, for an investigation of the merits of the plan for a unit of labor.

Senator Quay introduced an amendment to the sugar clause in the present tariff bill, striking out all the provisions, except that to remove the one-eighth differential on sugar. The one-tenth differential against bounty exporting countries remains. Senator Quay says he wants to offer the senate an opportunity to vote directly upon the protection to the trust.

The House.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The attendance on the floor was again small when the house met at noon today and the indications pointed to another dull day. Immediately after the reading of the journal Mr. English asked unanimous consent for the consideration of a bill.

Mr. Sayres, Texas, objected, whereupon Mr. English promptly objected to a resolution offered by Mr. Blair, New Hampshire, calling on the president to furnish, is not incompatible with public interest, all correspondence, telegraphic and otherwise, between this country and China, relating to the war between China and Japan. The resolution went to the committee on foreign affairs. Mr. English then demanded the regular order of business.

The committee on rules this morning decided to give the day after the second morning hour each day hereafter, to consideration of the pooling bill, the order, however, not to interfere with the appropriation bills.

Col. Coit Sustained.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 5.—In the Coit court of inquiry today W. B. Hershey testified that Col. Coit did not enter a saloon with him day or night at Washington Court House. This supports Coit. It controverts the testimony of men who say they saw Coit, or "a man pointed out as Coit," drink with Hershey.

Failure at Alexandria.

ALEXANDRIA, Minn., Dec. 5.—Mathew Kotschevor, general merchandise, of Millerville, assigned to Valentine Thoennes, of Effington, with heavy liabilities. Assets not learned. An attachment issuing from a creditor was the cause.

Conspiracy Charged.

Nothing New.

Quixotic is his enterprise, and hopeless his adventure is,
Who seeks for jocularities that haven't yet been said.
The world has joked incessantly for over fifty centuries,
And every joke that's possible has long ago been made.
I started as a humorist with lots of mental fizziness,
But humor is a drug which it's the fashion to abuse,
For my stock in trade, my fixtures and the good will of the business
No reasonable offer I am likely to refuse.
And if anybody choose
He may circulate the news
That no reasonable offer I am likely to refuse.
Oh, happy was that humorist—the first that made a pun at all—
Who, when a joke occurred to him, however poor and mean,
Was absolutely certain that it never had been done at all—
How popular at dinners must that humorist have been!
Oh, the days when some stepfather for the query held a handle out!
The doormat from the scraper, is it distant very far?
And when no one knew were Moses was when Aaron put the candle out,
And no one had discovered that a door could be a-jar!
But your modern hearers are
In their tastes particular,
And they sneer if you inform them that a door can be a-jar!

Harper's Magazine
In 1895.

"The Simpletons," a new novel by Thomas Hardy, will be begun in the December Number, 1894, and continued to November, 1895. Whoever may be one's favorite among English novelists, it will be conceded by all critics that Thomas Hardy stands foremost as a master artist in fiction, and "The Simpletons" may be expected to arouse enthusiasm not inferior in degree to that which has marked "Trilby"—the most successful story of the year. Among leading features will be the "Personal Recollections of Joan of Arc," by the Sieur Louis de Conte, Her Page and Secretary, under which guise the most popular of living American magazine writers will present the story of the Maid of Orleans. In the January Number will appear a profusely illustrated paper on "Charleston and the Carolinas," the first of a series of Southern Papers.

Northern Africa is attracting more attention than at any other time since it was the seat of empires. The next volumes of HARPER'S MAGAZINE will contain four illustrated articles on this region, and three of them will depict the present life there. Julian Ralph will prepare for the MAGAZINE a series of eight stories, depicting typical phases of "Chinese Life and Manners." Besides the long stories, there will begin in the January Number the first chapters of "A Three-Part Novelette," by Richard Harding Davis—the longest work yet attempted by this writer. Complete short stories by popular writers will continue to be a feature of the MAGAZINE.

Send For Illustrated Prospectus.

The volumes of the MAGAZINE begin with the Numbers for June and December of each year. When no time is mentioned subscriptions will begin with the Number current at the time of receipt of order. Cloth cases, for binding, 50 cents each—by mail, postpaid. Title-page and and Index sent on application.

"We beg to call your lordship's attention to the fact that we have within the territorial district of Thunder Bay many thousands of acres of agricultural and mineral lands, at present undeveloped for want of transportation facilities. The only means of furnishing such facilities is through the governments of the countries granting adequate aid toward the construction of railways through the undeveloped portions of the district. FOURTEEN QUESTIONS

The Jury on the Levine Insurance Cases Has Their Many Problems to be Answered.

These Embrace Many Uncertain Points Concerning the Circumstances at the Fire and the Adjustment.

One Question Which the Jury Will Have to Answer is, "Was the Fire Accidental?"

The testimony in the Levine case against the Lancashire Fire Insurance company was all in last evening, and today the attorneys in the case are addressing the jury. The case will probably go to the jury late this afternoon or early in the morning. This is the thirteenth day of the trial, which has been one of the longest ever tried in St. Louis county. There are still about thirty cases more of a similar nature which must be disposed of in some way yet to be determined.

The jury when it goes out will take with it one of the largest tasks presented to a jury in the county for some time. There are fourteen questions bearing on the result of the case, most of which must be answered by yes or no. Following are the issues as framed for the jury:

"Was the arbitrator Morse a disinterested person?

"Would an examination of the books, bills and vouchers of plaintiffs have aided the appraisers in arriving at a correct determination of the value of the good totally destroyed?

"Did plaintiffs offer to furnish the appraisers such documents?

"Did the appraisers refuse to examine and consider them?

"Was the award fairly and honestly made without improper conduct on the part of the Arbitrator Morse and Umpire Turnquist?

"Was the award offered by Arbitrator Morse and Umpire Turnquist the result of partiality, conspiracy and fraud?

"What was the value of the goods totally destroyed by the fire in question?

"What was done to the goods remaining in plaintiffs' store after the fire?

"Was the sum paid by defendant to plaintiffs' a payment in full of all claims under the policy?

"What was the value of plaintiffs' stock Dec. 13, prior to the fire?

"Was the fire accidental?

"Did plaintiffs' immediately after the fire do what they could to save the property that remained from further damage?

"Did they separate the damaged from the undamaged goods so far as possible and put the property in the best possible order?

"Did they immediately after the fire make an inventory of the property which remained, showing quality, cost and damage claimed, and deliver it to defendant or its representatives?"

With that examination to undergo, there is not much possibility that the Levine jury will be seen again very soon after its retirement. The result of the jury's deliberations will be the basis for the court's decision.

Other Court Cases.

Court in the other rooms broke up early because of a misunderstanding in the call which caused the absence of all of the attorneys in the cases on call for the morning. Before Judge Lewis the case of the American Loan and Trust company et al, against James Billings, et al, was continued until Jan. 15, 1895. The suit is a large one, and involves about $100,000. In 1892 Billings gave security for that amount to the American Loan and Trust company, and afterwards made an instrument of revocation. The Trust company sues to have this set aside and to have the securities sold to satisfy its claim.

Before Judge Moer the case of Robert B. Freeman against John Brandt was ordered submitted on briefs, no evidence being submitted in the matter, which is merely a question as to whether a lien was properly made and filed.

The case of the Western Tube company against Elizabeth A. Gammel et al was passed until Dec. 6. Jacob Judinick against Frank Zaie et al was passed until next Friday.

GOING TO EUROPE.

Many Poor People Are Going There for the Winter.

In the last two weeks there has been a great deal of emigrant business out of Duluth for Scandinavian, German, Finnish and Italian points, and probably 150 people have gone from Duluth to their European homes. And these are not blue-blooded tourists, but plain, hard-handed laborers, who will spend their winters cheaply in the old country. A heavy business is being done also out of the Twin Cities.

These laborers find it much cheaper, even including cost of transportation, to winter in Europe than in America, so when cold weather draws on and they have no particular prospects for the winter, they fly away to Europe and spend the time until spring among the old home scenes, when they return to Duluth and go to work.

Some of these rough laborers can boast more trips across the Atlantic than many who pride themselves on being globe trotters. Many of them repeat the performance every winter.

Lindh-Brown Marriage.

Miss Lydia Eugenia Lindh, daughter of Rev. L. O. Lindh, of Vancouver, Wash., and George Brown, were married last evening by Rev. T. H. Cleland, of the First Presbyterian church. Mr. Brown claims a residence of some years in Duluth and is well and popularly known.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

Sheriff-Elect Butchart's Resignation Presented and Accepted.

The county commissioners met at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon for the last regular meeting before the changes resulting from the late election take place, when Messrs. Butchart, Poirier and Bonham go out and Dinham, Morcom and some person at present unknown come in. The only business outside of the usual routine that came up early in the session was the resignation of Sheriff-elect Butchart, which was tendered and accepted. It takes effect on Jan. 1, when Mr. Butchart steps into the capacious shoes of Paul Sharvy.

Mr. Butchart's successor will be appointed by the council probably at next Monday's meeting from among a crowd of likely aspirants for the job of assisting to conduct the county's affairs.

A Tax Decision.

In the matter of the proceedings to enforce the payment of delinquent taxes for 1892, which came up before Judges Ensign and Moer in the June term, a decision in the case against the Duluth Transfer Railway company was filed this morning. The transfer company objected to paying county taxes on the ground that it had already paid the state tax on railroads of a percentage of its gross earnings. This objection is sustained by the court, but judgment is ordered against several parcels of land which cannot be classed as railroad property.

In Duluth For Duluth!

Of course, we are in Duluth and we are very much "In it," when it comes to securing an order if people know a good thing when they see it (and most of them around here do).

Once in a while a person asks if we have any branch stores. We have not and our energies are all devoted right here. It is more particularly a source of congratulation to ourselves that we are not a branch store, and it is in many ways a vast benefit to our customers, for the policy of our business is not dictated by people who don't live here and are not in touch with our conditions. It also spares our customers the disadvantage of having the dead stock of the main store in another city "worked off" on them. We think that any person who will look through our store will concede that we have the cleanest, brightest, newest and freshest stock they have seen in many a day. We have no shop-worn, dingy, smoky, or out of date goods to work off and all Goods are marked in PLAIN FIGURES, which will command attention if you will just look them over before you buy.

We Sell

A Best Quality Plush Bed Lounge, Sold elsewhere for $13.50 to $16.00; For $11.50

Others at $12.50, $13.50, $15.00 and $18.00.

We can show you double the number of patterns shown by any store here. If you are skeptical, come in and see them.

STILL UNSOLVED

No Definite Clue Yet to the Murderer of Miss Catherine Ging, the Minneapolis Dressmaker.

Confirmation Lent to the Theory That the Deed Was One of Passion or Jealousy.

Two Men Are Found Who Believe They Have Looked Upon the Murderer's Face.

It Is Believed Miss Ging Had $7000 to $10,000 on Her Person When Murdered.

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 6.—The Catherine Ging murder mystery is still unsolved. The newspapers and the police have followed up every clue with unremitting energy only to find themselves up against the stone wall of mystery that hides the identity of Miss Ging's companion. The work of piecing the torn note together which Miss Ging received and tore to fragments on the morning of the day she met her death has progressed but is not yet done. The waste basket contained the fragments of a number of business communications, and the puzzle is an intricate one.

A note, however, has been partially filled together on which the words "I will not marry you" are discernable. These works lend confirmation to the theory that the deed was one of passion or jealousy rather than of robbery and that the money on her person at the time of the murder, estimated to have been from $7000 to $10,000, was taken as an after thought to obscure the motives for the deed. Two more men have been found who believe they have looked upon the face of the murderer. One of these is M. D. Wilson, a local liveryman, who lives on Kenwood parkway out toward the scene of the murder. On that night when driving home he noticed the Goosman livery rig and easily recognized it through his familiarity with local horses.

Mr. Wilson heard the voices of two people in the rig, and believes he recognized that of Miss Ging who had often rented horses of him. The glance he had of the man was in the moonlight. It was but momentary, yet Mr. Wilson thought he recognized the man. The next day he visited the morgue. On the way there he told the detectives of his experience the night before. With the incident in his mind Mr. Wilson went and stood over the body for a moment, and on turning around he received a peculiar sensation.

Standing near him was a man whose appearance seemed to correspond with the mental picture he had formed of the male figure in the rig the night before. Mr. Wilson conveyed his impressions to the officers standing near, and since that moment the mysterious person has been under surveiliance. The police have said nothing regarding the incident but although at first glance the incident seemed valueless, it is being worked for all there is in it.

Mr. Wilson in driving to his home kept near the other rig the entire distance from Hennepin boulevard to his home which is not far short of a mile. A portion of the time he was abreast of the "buckskin" horse. Mr. Wilson turned off the boulevard at No. 1904 and saw the other rig proceed on its way out toward the lake. The boulevard winds its way through a beautiful landscape and girts three lakes. So far as is known, this is the last that was seen of the carriage that contained the murderer and his victim until Frank Echart saw the horse coming dashing up the Excelsior turnpike in the darkness about 8 o'clock or an hour afterward. The murderer is the only person who can account for the intervening time.

The second man who thinks he has seen the murderer's face is W.H. Dennis, the architect. He declares that he has seen Miss Ging, whom he knows well, several times lately with a stranger. Mr. Dennis is well acquainted with Minneapolis men and could spot the stranger as readily as anyone. He states that he saw her with this man near Barge's cafe and he also saw the man waiting in front of the Syndicate block about the time Miss Ging was accustomed to leave her work.

Mr. Dennis was in St. Paul last Friday and he states that he met Miss Ging and this stranger coming out of Magee's restaurant. He is positive in this story and also positive that the man did not live in Minneapolis. He does not say that he could not have lived in St. Paul. He decribes the man as being an exceedingly smooth-looking individual, dressed very well and with a one calculated to make an impression on ladies. Mr. Dennis believes that this is the man who killed Miss Ging.

This is perhaps the best thing the detectives have had to work on, and the matter will be thoroughly investigated.

Mrs. Harries was the second wife of Capt. Harries. She was 34 years old and the daughter of W. H. Dunbar, formerly of Caledonia, now deceased.

ST. PAUL, Dec. 6.—Dennis D. Crimmins was today sentenced to state prison on the reformatory plan by Judge Brill for bigamy. BY DIRECT VOTE.

Senator Turpie of Indiana Speaks For a Resolution on Electing Senators By Direct Vote.

Says That All the Talk of Corruption and Fraud Would Thus Be Greatly Lessened.

Large Number of Changes in Composition of Committees Were Announced By Speaker Crisp Today.

Consideration of the Railway Pooling Bill Resumed By the House Under the Special Rule.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Upon the opening of the senate today, Mr. Gorman offered a resolution providing that when the senate adjourn today, it meet on Monday next. Adopted. The president's message, in response to a senate resolution submitting information as to the arrest of an American citizen in Peru, was received.

Mr. Turpie, of Indiana, then took the floor for a carefully prepared speech on the resolution for the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people. Said he:

"When we recall the harsh criminations, the gross charges of pecuniary corruption and of fraudulent combination or intrigue, disgraceful and dishonorable to the whole body, with which a prolonged senatorial contest is accompanied, whether in party conference or in the open assembly, the removal of such a procreant evil should be deemed a prime political necessity.

"It has therefore been said that the Grand Central railroad has chosen a senator in a certain state; that the Grand Central bank has chosen another elsewhere and that the Central association of mining and manufacturers have defeated or elected a third. Nothing is intended to be assumed here concerning the truth or falsity of these assertions or accusations.

"But these malfeasant charges have an existence. The way of this riddance is plain. If the choice of the constituent members of this body were left to the mass of voters in the state, these perilous criminations would be infinitely lessened. They would altogether disappear. No reasonable grounds could be given for their support."

At 1:15 p. m. the senate went into executive session, and at 1:55 p. m. adjourned until Monday. Immediately after the adjournment of the senate today, the Democrats went into caucus.

The House.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—At the opening of the session of the house today the speaker announced that the following members had been relieved from service on the designated committees at their own request:

Mr. Hicks (Rep.) of Pennsylvania, from the committee on levees and improvements of the Mississippi river; Mr. Tate (Dem.), of Georgia, from the committee on military affairs; Mr. Sibley (Dem.), of Pennsylvania, from the committee on expenditures in the navy department, and Mr. Wheeler (Dem.), of Alabama, from the committee on military affairs.

He also announced the following committee appointments: Mr. Wheeler (Dem.), Alabama, ways and means; Mr. Sibley (Dem.), Pennsylvania, appropriations; Mr. Harris (Dem.), Alabama, judiciary; Mr. Tate (Dem.), Georgia, naval affairs; Mr. Little (Dem.), Arkansas, Indian affairs; Mr. Hicks, (Rep.), Pennsylvania, public buildings; Mr. Tracey (Dem.), New York, merchant marine and fisheries; Mr. Bromwell (Rep.), Ohio, railways and canals; Mr. Harter (Dem.), Ohio, private land claims; Mr. Robertson (Dem.), Louisiana, library; Mr. Sorg (Dem.), Ohio, military affairs; Mr. Bromwell (Dem.), Ohio, expenditures in state department; Mr. Griffin (Dem.), Wisconsin, militia; Mr. Ogden (Dem.), Louisiana, levees and improvements of the Mississippi river; Mr. Moore (Dem.), Kansas, militia; Mr. Beckner (Dem.), Kentucky, expenditures in the treasury department; Mr. Coffin (Rep.), Maryland, mileage; Mr. Henry (Dem.), Maryland, expenditures in the postoffice department and pensions; Mr. Ogden (Dem.), Iowa, expenditures in the postoffice department; Mr. Coffin (Rep.), Maryland, private land claims; Mr. Griffin (Dem.), Wisconsin, arid lands, and Mr. Moore (Dem.), Kansas, expenditures on public buildings.

Mr. Livingston (Dem.), Georgia, from the committee on appropriations, reported the fortifications appropriation bill and gave notice that he would call it up as soon as the polling bill was disposed of and Mr. O'Neill (Dem.), Massachusetts, reported the pension appropriation bill.

In the morning hour Mr. McRae (Dem.), Arkansas, called up the bill to protect forest reservations which was under discussion several days during the last session, but by agreement went over until this. The consideration of the railroad pooling bill was resumed under the special rule adopted yesterday.

THE CHIPPEWA PINE BILL.

Senator Washburn and Maj. Baldwin Were Holding a Conference Today.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—[Special to The Herald.]—Senator Washburn and Representative Baldwin had a conference today on Baldwin's bill for the sale of the Chippewa pine and on the result of this conference will depend the future of this bill in the senate. Senator Davis defeated the bill at the last session.

Representative Lynch today introduced a bill providing for the relief of settlers who suffered from the great fires in Minnesota, Michigan and Wisconsin last summer. The measure is important and if it becomes a law will be of great benefit to all homesteaders who lost all they had by these fires.

THE LIVE STOCK MEN.

They Want Congress to Act So that the Foreign Embargo Will End.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 6.—The delegates to the meeting of the National Live Stock exchange arrived today prepared for a session of hard work. The main purpose of the delegates to this meeting, judging from the nature of their expression, is to take action upon the inhibition against American cattle by foreign countries, and especially Germany.

Chicago leads in the number present, and every one of her delegates is aggressive upon the export matter. The exchange was called to order at a little after noon by President W. H. Thompson, of Chicago, and the preliminary work of greeting, appointment of committees, etc., was soon disposed of.

The question of the war upon American cattle by foreign countries came early to the front by the introduction of a memorial to congress with relation to the existing state of affairs. Its reading was met with manifest signs of approval by the entire gathering and from outward appearances seemed to express the concensus of opinion of the delegates. The presenting of the paper was preceded by an explanation of its purposes, viz.: "The obtaining of relief through congress from the unfortunate embargo placed upon a few American products, notably live stock, dressed beef and hog products, on account of the duty imposed by our recent tariff act upon raw and refined sugars from Germany, France, Belgium, Denmark and Austria, thus practically closing those markets to us, a continuance of which means disaster to farming and live stock interests of this country."

REPORT OF ENGINEERS

Estimates of the Special Commission on the Deepening of the Duluth Harbor to Twenty Feet.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—[Special to The Herald.]—Secretary Lamont today sent to congress the report of the special commission appointed under Senator Washburn's resolution to make a survey of the harbor of Duluth with a view to determining the cost of deepening it to a uniform depth of twenty feet.

This commission, consisting of Majs. Poe, Gregory and Sears, estimate that the total cost of this work would be $3,130,353, although they state the cost would be less if the work was done under the continuous appropriation scheme.

The commission took the word harbor to mean all inside of Minnesota Point. They state that they refused to consider petitions from the Duluth Land company and others to extend the harbor beyond what are the city limits at the present time, although they enclose these petitions in their report to the secretary of war.

The estimate made for the work at Duluth is $1,806,667 to complete the project, and $1,323,886 for Superior. Appended to the report is a letter from Capt. McDougall, of Duluth, suggesting various methods of improving the Duluth harbor, which met the approval of these engineers.

TERRORIZED BY SOLDIERS.

Drunken Regulars Scared People on a Chicago Suburban Train.

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—The passengers on a Northwestern railway suburban train were terrorized last night by twenty-five drunken United States soldiers who were en route to Fort Sheridan.

The regulars, all of whom were said to be under the influence of drink, took charge of the train as it left the station and after scaring the home bound suburbanites thoroughly, collected in the smoking car where they engaged in a general fight.

Many of them were badly bruised and one soldier was knocked senseless, but all were able to leave the train at Fort Sheridan. The men were all privates.

Fighting in Morocco.

TANGIER, Morocco, Dec. 6.—An agent of the American consul general arrived at Fez on Nov. 28. The Gharb province, the scene of the present fighting, is fifty miles from Fez. The Sherifian officials are believed to have grossly exceeded their orders. The sultan has dispatched a caid, with a force of cavalry, to quiet the district.

Declares It Is Rot.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—Regarding the statement published in the West that President Cleveland is in a precarious condition, Dr. Joseph D. Bryant, his physician, said today: "It is rot with a dash between each letter. I would not dignify it by talking about it."

Dangerously Ill.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Dr. John Mills Browne, formerly surgeon general of the navy is dangerously ill here as a result of a stroke of paralysis, involving the whole right side. As Dr. Browne is considerably past the prime of life his recovery is doubtful.

Found Dead in Bed.

AT INDIAN AGENCIES.

The Pine Ridge Reservation is Declared By Capt. Penney Fit Only For Stock Raising.

The Agent Believes That Co-education of the Sexes Among the Indians is Not Advisable.

Exemption of the Sissetons' Lands From Taxation Regarded as a Detriment Rather Than a Benefit.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The condition of the Pine Ridge Indian agency, according to Capt. C. G. Penney's annual report, renders the reservation fit only for stock raising. Agriculture cannot furnish a living there because of the altitude and aridity of the section. This condition cannot be remedied by irrigation, and the Indians are beginning to adopt stock raising as a business pursuit.

"The besetting sin of the Indians," said the agent, "is idleness. They are incapable of sustained efforts and are shiftless, lazy and irresponsible. They are still given to wandering and consumed with a desire to go from agency to agency making visits. The discipline is good, but the police force should be increased to 100 men, in order to compel good order, despite the fact that the agent can not at all times restrain and prevent turbulence, disorder and violence among the people. It is a mistake to send children away from the reservation for purposes of education. They get a smattering or turning and return out of touch with their people, speedily losing the accomplishments they have acquired. Co-education of the sexes among the Indians is not advisable."

The feeling of 90 per cent of those on the reservation is outspoken against taking lands in severalty, and the agent says the allotment of their lands, as proposed, would result in the degradation of the people and their speedy extinction.

The Indians at the agency in South Dakota are strongly commended by Agent J. G. Wright, whose report indicates a material advancement in civilization during the year. The practice of issuing full treaty rations, however, is deprecated as preventing greater efforts in the direction of self support. Many, says the agent, would accept money value in lieu of supplies and the change would undoubtedly result in advancement, as the insufficiency of the money allowance would operate toward greater efforts in their own behalf. The construction of a boarding house near the agency proper, on Rosebud creek, is recommended.

The appearance of the reservation of the Sisseton agency is officially characterized as that of a broken down business enterprise. This state of affairs, says Agent Kell in his review of the year, is adjudged a great mistake, since the Sissetons are recognized as more advanced in civilization than most Western tribes and require more care and judgment in the management of their affairs.

The exemption of their lands from taxation is regarded as a detriment rather than a benefit. The few white men now on the ceded lands are now compelled to bear the taxation largely alone, and do not have the proper interest in the welfare of their Indian neighbors. Impositions of all sorts are practiced, crimes are overlooked and no one is anxious to prosecute, because prosecution must be paid by the heavily taxed white men. The boundary lines of their land cause much trouble and a new survey of all disputed land should be, according to the agent's views, ordered by the government.

Civil authorities hesitate to prosecute for offenses because of expense, the agent because of lack of authority, and the result is less fear of punishment for petty crimes. The social welfare for the Indian is declining in many instances on reservations where land is taken in severalty. The total failure of all crops, owing to the dry season, has struck a serious blow to these Indians.

The Yankton tribe in South Dakota is reported in a serious plight on account of the most disastrous crop year experienced since the occupancy of the reservation. Few of the Yanktons are free from disease. The work of the missionaries has resulted in the peaceful and law-abiding spirit shown by the Indians.

THE GEOLOGICAL SURVEY.

Most of the Parties Back in Washington Preparing Their Reports.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Most of the parties from the geological survey who were engaged in government field work during the season have returned to the city. There were twenty-eight geological and thirty-two topographical parties at work during the summer, and most of them have returned and are shaping their notes into reports and charts.

These parties were at work in every section of the country, predominating in the West and especially Colorado. Most of them are delayed in commencing work, owing to the failure of congress to make the necessary appropriations. The remaining parties in the field are expected to return before the beginning of next year.

REVIVAL OF JINGOISM.

Tory Club Men to Give a Reception to the Prince of Wales.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—A special from London says: The arrival of the prince of Wales and the duke of York in London today is to be made the occasion of a big demonstration by Tory West End club men in recognition of the prince's efforts to arrange an Anglo-Russian agreement.

The effect abroad of this display, which is regarded as an insidious revival of jingoism, is awaited with the keenest anxiety by the ministers.

Later—For several days past letters have been appearing in the newspapers urging a demonstration to welcome the prince of Wales back to England as a recognition of his important work in furthering the Anglo-Russian entente. For instance, a letter signed "Old General" urged that space should be reserved at the railroad station in order that loyal clubland might fittingly receive the heir apparent.

The Times and other newspapers had leaders on the subject today. But, when the prince of Wales and duke of York arrived there today, the duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, and duke of Cambridge and a few others composed the throng assembled to greet the princes. Outside the railroad station, it is true, a large crowd was assembled; but, the royal personages were only feebly cheered.

The Star Route Contracts.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The work of opening and arranging the bids for contracts for service in star and steamboat mail routes in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa and Missouri, was commenced at the postoffice department today. About seventy-five of the employes are engaged in the task which will probably occupy two or three weeks. The number of bids submitted is about 100,000, covering over 47,000 miles of route and involving contract sums aggregating about $1,000,000.

Schaefer Beaten Again.

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—Schaefer met defeat for the third time last night in his billiard match with Ives and is now so far behind that it seems impossible for him to win out. He could only make 424 while Ives ran his 600, and the latter had the balls after a run of 281, which enabled him to finish the game last night. The score now stands: Ives, 1800; Schaefer, 1043.

Declined a Reduction.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 6.—Four hundred cloakmakers employed by Strawbridge & Clothier went on a strike today rather than submit to a reduction of wages. The employes have been receiving 75 cents and $1 per garment but were notified by the management of the department yesterday that hereafter they would receive but 50 and 75 cents.

May Be Held for Murder.

WICHITA, Kan., Dec. 6.—Zeb Ward, Bill Bryant, William Hupp and Kid Muldoon, young local toughs, were arrested tonight for robbery and may all be held for murder. Last night they assaulted and robbed Michael Kinny, who stands but few chances of living. Part of the stolen money was taken from the prisoners, all of whom have confessed.

H. A. Chapin III.

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Dec. 6.—H. A. Chapin, the millionaire mine owner of Michigan, has been taken suddenly ill here. Mr. Chapin is 81 years of age. He owns the big Chapin mine in Northern Michigan.

Any one who has children will rejoice with L. B. Mulford, of Plainfield, N. J. His little boy, 5 years of age, was sick with croup. For two days and nights he tried various remedies recommended by friends and neighbors. He says: "I thought sure I would lose him. I had seen Chamberlain's Cough Remedy advertised and thought I would try it as a last hope and am happy to say that after two doses he slept until morning. I gave it to him next day and a cure was effected. I keep this remedy in the house now and as soon as any of my children show signs of croup I give it to them and that is the last of it." Twenty-five and 50 cent bottles for sale by all druggists.

THE AMERICAN BEEF TRADE.

Interesting Report From the United States Consul at Mayence.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Even in view of its back date—Aug. 30, last—there is much interest in a report to the state department from James Smith, United States commercial agent at Mayence, upon American beef in Germany in view of the blight that has been cast upon the trade. He describes the extensive arrangements made in the way of putting on fine new steamers of refrigerators, etc., for an extensive trade in meat, and points out the superiority of American meat over Australian beef as it reaches Germany. He says:

"The agricultural supplement to the Hamburg Correspondent, one of the best known journals of Germany, in comment on this new attempt to introduce American beef and cattle into Germany, say, in substance, that the experience hitherto met with in the importation of cattle for slaughter leaves no room for doubt that in quality and value for slaughtering purposes, foreign beef stands not a whit behind German. On the contrary they excel the German beeves, because as a rule in physical constitution and freedom from disease, the American cattle so far imported into Germany, and especially those which have come to Hamburg, have been singularly free from tuberculosis, which is a matter of serious consideration in view of the widespread existence of this disease among cattle in many parts of Germany, there having been only .115 per cent of the cattle imported from America found to be afflicted with this disease, against a percentage of 1 to 2 per cent on the part of German cattle examined at the slaughterhouses."

Another report from United States Consul Keenan, at Bremen, speaks of the excellent condition of the American stock landed in Bremen. The cattle were perfectly healthy, their lungs and livers were not only fit for use but also of an excellent quality—a condition rarely met with in German cattle.

This consul adds a most important supplement to his report, dated Nov. 13, after notice had been given of the edict of prohibition of our meat of Germany. He says that immediately after the decree a cargo of cattle came from America to Bremen in excellent condition and good prices were realized for their meat. The consul says:

"However, how much fear of Texas fever may have been caused by importing American cattle into Germany and how much people in the United States may think this measure is simply for retaliation, the facts remain that the fear in the one case would be absurd, and the judgment in the other not altogether true."

HAS FLED TO MEXICO.

The Tarring and Feathering of Adjt. Gen. Tarsney Recalled.

DENVER, Dec. 6.—Adjt. Gen. Tarsney has just learned that Joseph R. Wilson, who is alleged to have been implicated in the tarring and feathering outrage upon the adjutant general's person at Colorado Springs last summer and who turned state's evidence, has fled the country.

Wilson is the man whom Gen. Tarsney traced to Missouri and brought back to Colorado for trial. Pending his trial Wilson was locked up in the El Paso county jail. About a month ago he was liberated on a bail bond and is now missing. He is thought to be in Mexico.

He Will Attend the American Federation Meeting at Denver.

DENVER, Dec. 6.—It is announced that Eugene Debs, president of the A. R. U., will attend the convention of the American Federation of Labor in Denver next week and will endeavor to secure an endorsement of his plan to amalgamate labor organizations into one vast federation, known as the "Federation of Workmen."

He will also ask the convention to approve the last summer's strike. This will probably be strongly opposed by Samuel Gompers, president of the federation.

Malarial Poison

Results from atmospheric conditions, unclean premises, imperfect ventilation and more frequently from the deadly SEWER GAS. A general rundown and impoverished condition of the blood ensues, and if not corrected, Catarrh, Bronchitis, and even Consumption may be the result. S. S. S. promptly corrects all these evil effects.

Mr. J. A. Rice, Ottawa, Kan., writes: For three years I was troubled with Malaria, which caused my appetite to fail, and I was so reduced in flesh, that life lost its charms. I tried mercurial and potash remedies, but could get no relief. I then decided to try S.S.S. A few bottles of this wonderful medicine made a complete and permanent cure, and I now enjoy better health than ever.

HILLMAN IS CAUGHT

Claim That John W. Hillman Has Been Found at Salvation Army Camp Near Tucson, Arizona.

His Capture Recalls One of the Most Remarkable Cases in the Annals of Crime.

Asserted That Hillman Murdered a Man Who Resembled Himself in Order to Get $80,000 Insurance.

TUCSON, Ariz., Dec. 6.—Among the Huachucas mountains at Salvation Army camp, about forty miles from Tucson, a man was arrested for whom authorities have been looking for years. He is John W. Hillman, and the capture was made by Sam W. Finley, a deputy collector of customs at Nogales, and Orren Gemmill, under sheriff of La Junta. His capture recalls one of the most remarkable cases in the annals of crime. In 1879 Hillman and two companions, one of them resembling him very closely, took a trip into the Buffalo mountains of Texas to hunt. They were gone several weeks and when Hillman and one companion returned, the man bearing so striking a resemblance to him had failed to accompany them.

It seems that Hillman, who carried an insurance on his life of $80,000, while in the mountains conceived a murderous scheme and killed in cold blood the man who so closely resembled him and returned to the settlement. He took the name of the man whom he murdered and said that Hillman had been accidently shot dead and buried in the mountains. In due time Mrs. Hillman made claim to the life insurance companies, in which her husband had been insured, for $80,000. The insurance people became suspicious and began an investigation.

The remains of the man whom Hillman had murdered were exhumed and it was then discovered that they were not the remains of Hillman. Mrs. Hillman instituted legal proceedings in Topeka, Kan., her home, to recover the amount of insurance. The case was carried from one court to another until finally she secured judgment for the principal, interest and attorney's fees in the supreme court of the United States. According to the order of the court the judgment must be satisfied at the end of this year.

During all this time the insurnce companies have kept detectives on the trail of Hillman, who disappeared shortly after his wife made claim for the insurance. He was followed to Australia and other foreign countries and a reward of $15,000 was offered for his apprehension, dead or alive. On Nov. 4, Under Sheriff Gemmill arrived in this territory from Colorado and interested Finley in the case.

Gemmill having learned that Hillman was in Sonora, he and Finley took the murderer's trail at Magdalena, Sonora, and followed him to Altara, Sonora, thence to Prescott, Ariz., Mexico City, Old Glory camp and then to Salvation Army camp in Huachucas, where he was arrested. Hillman denied that he was the right man when told by the officers what they wanted him for. He was taken to Tombstone, where he is held, pending the arrival of extradition papers from Kansas.

AS TO BANK RECEIVERS.

A Change in the Law Proposed by Congressman Dewitt Warner.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Representative Dewitt Warner, of New York, has introduced in the house a bill to amend the law of June 30, 1875, regarding the appointment of receivers of national banks. It provides that when banking associations are placed in receivers' hands, and when the comptroller of the currency has paid to creditors (not including shareholders, who are creditors) whose claims shall have been proved, the full amount of such claims, and the redemption of circulating notes has been provided for, the comptroller shall call a meeting of the shareholders at which they shall elect an agent.

When the agent has received votes representing at least a majority of the stock in value and number of shares, and when the shareholders have executed a bond for the discharge of all claims thereafter proved against the association, the comptroller and the receiver are to transfer to the agent all the undivided or uncollected or other assets and property of the association then remaining in their hands.

The comptroller and receiver shall thereupon be discharged from all liabilities to the association and to its creditors and shareholders, and the agent is authorized to finally settle and distribute the property in his hands.

WEST DULUTH ITEMS.

Two Young Men Under Arrest on the Charge of Having Robbed Mrs King's Store.

One of Them Confessed the Crime and All the Stolen Goods Were Finally Recovered.

Fine Concert to Be Given This Evening By Duluth Musicians at Great Eastern Hall.

Lieut. Briggs, with the assistance of Detectives Hayden and Benson, has undoubtedly corralled the thieves who stole the cigars and tobacco at Mrs. King's confectionery store on Tuesday night. From the start the work was thought to be that of boys or young men and after watching the actions of several Lieut. Briggs concluded that he was on the right track, and Pete McDonald, the son of John McDonald, the drayman, and Louis Larson, the son of A. H. Larson, who keeps a clothing store on Grand avenue, were arrested. McDonald was incarcerated here and Hayden took Larson to Duluth.

The latter was put on the rack and confessed that he and Pete committed the robbery, and sold the tobacco to an Italian fruit man who keeps a stand near the intersection of Grand and Central avenues. He says that they woke the man up at 4 o'clock in the morning and sold him the whole amount for $18.

McDonald denies Larson's statement, but as he is an old offender the officers take no stock in his denial. It will be remembered that he was associated with a crook named Belanger in a number of burglaries at Hastings, Minn., some time ago. McDonald turned states evidence at the time and his partner is now serving penalty for the crime in the states prison.

The Italians deny having purchased the goods and as there are a half a dozen stands in West Duluth and they seem to be closely related in a commercial way, goods can be interchanged among them so as to baffle the officers in their search. Benson and Briggs worked on the case all morning and about noon Tony Dominick confessed to having the goods and produced them. They were scattered around in different parts of the town, but the whole amount was finally secured.

THIS EVENING'S CONCERT.

Fine Entertainment to be Given at Great Eastern Hall.

The chamber concert at the Great Eastern hall will be given this evening, and the West Duluthians are assured a genuine treat. The music, which is given by a number of Duluth people under the direction of Frederic L. Seixas, includes both popular and classic numbers, and there will be readings and a recitation or two. The people at this end of town will be introduced to George Tyler, the lyric tenor, who was so well received upon his arrival in Duluth; Mrs. Dorwin-Aspenwall, soprano, who took a leading role in Haydn's "Creation;" Mrs. Burt Holcomb, a contralto of unusual merit. Miss Mackay needs no presentation to the people here, having made many friends by her excellent piano work. Nicholas Murphy, too, has entertained the West Duluthians with his baritone, and the presence of his name on the program is sufficient to bring out his friends. Miss Zella Hurd will contribute several numbers in a rhetorical way and is sure to add not a little to the pleasure of the evening. Manager Rown has arranged to furnish the stage appropriately, so as to keep up the chamber idea.

Masonic Lodge Election.

Euclid lodge A. F. and A. M. held the annual election of officers last evening as follows: George Wright, W. M.; Edward Elston, S. W.; L. A. Barnes, J. W.; W. H. Cruikshank, secretary; S. Wells, treasurer. The Royal Arch Masons will hold their annual election of officers next week and the O. E. S. the following week. On Dec. 27, St. John's day, the Euclid lodge, the Royal Arch and the Order Eastern Star will hold installation of officers at the same time to which all Masons and their families will be invited

Christian Endeavor Election.

The Christian Endeavor union of West Duluth, comprising the societies of six churches, held its annual election of officers at the Westminster church on Tuesday evening as follows: Rev. George S. Keithley, president; W. A. Lawson, first vice president; Ruth Merritt, second vice president: Miss E. M. Johnson, secretary, and A. S. Hendricks, treasurer.

West Duluth Briefs.

M. E. Chambers will leave next week for a trip to the Pacific coast.

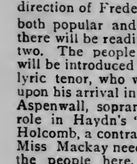

E. Fredell left today for Center City to visit with a brother for several weeks.

The A. P. A. society will hold a basket social on Friday evening at Great Eastern hall.

The Odd Fellows have decided to give their ball at Great Eastern hall Dec. 19.

A KNIFE

in the hand of a Surgeon gives you a feeling of horror and dread. There is no longer necessity for its use in many diseases formerly regarded as incurable without cutting.

The Triumph of Conservative Surgery is well illustrated by the fact that

RUPTURE or Breach, is now radically cured without the knife and without pain. Clumsy, chafing trusses can be thrown away! They never cure but often induce inflammation, strangulation and death.

TUMORS Ovarian, Fibroid (Uterine) and many others, are now removed without the perils of cutting operations.

PILE TUMORS, however large, Fistula and other diseases of the lower bowel, are permanently cured without pain or resort to the knife.

STONE in the Bladder, no matter how large, is crushed, pulverized, washed out and perfectly removed without cutting.

STRICTURE of Urinary Passage is also removed without cutting in hundreds of cases. For pamphlet, references and all particulars, send 10 cents (in stamps) to World's Dispensary Medical Association, No. 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

WHEAT ADVANCED TODAY.

Gossip.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, Room 107, Chamber of Commerce.

Wheat opened at about yesterday's closing prices. Buying against puts and some shorts covering put the price up 56c, only to break it off ¼c, when the late cables came in. The Price Current said that portions of the wheat crop are relieved by rains, but other portions are suffering considerably yet. The government report was very bullish, and it will probably have its effect on the market when a few more of the weak holders have been shaken out. A Liverpool cable said that the continent must draw their supplies from this country until next May. Clearances today aggregated 210,000 bus. We think most of the weak longs are shaken out, and advise buying for a quick turn.

Corn and oats strong and higher on a better demand for cash and a falling off in receipts. Provisions dull and featureless.

Puts, May wheat, 60¾c.
Calls, May wheat, 60¾c
Curb, May wheat, 60¾c.
Puts, May corn, 49¾c.
Calls, May corn, 50¾c.

IRON TRADE REVIEW.

A Good Total of Iron and Steel Trading This Week.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 5.—The Iron Trade Review this week says: Although December is usually marked by halting business and a general waiting for new year developments, its first week has shown a goodly total of iron and steel trading in some sections at least. Chicago seems to lead, the central West has been somewhat less active and the minimum of activity appears in the East.

Reports agree that purchases of foundry irons have been expanding in the last four weeks, and the number of buyers willing to contract far into 1895 has increased as signs have appeared that the tendency will be upward rather than a continuation of the decline that has been practically without interruption in the past two years.

Prices are easy, in spite of the better demand, the strong statistical position of coke iron up to Dec. 1, and the improbability of any appreciable increase for some time in the capacity of coke furnaces active, either North or South.

The situation as to Bessemer iron is not clearly developed. There are some few sales, including January delivery, on a basis of $10.40 and $10.50 Pittsburg, and the coke uncertainty is not to as great an extent a handicap as in the past three weeks.

In the central West some vessel material has been bought and more is hanging fire. Inquiries from car shops have imparted more life to the Western bar iron trade, but the mills seem to have lost all assertion on prices.

LOWER COURTS RESERVED.

Supreme Court Reversed Five Decisions and Sustained One.

ST. PAUL, Dec. 6.—Judge Canty today handed down six decisions and in all except one the judgments and orders of the lower courts are reversed. Chief Justice Gilfillan took no part.

In the case of Pack Thomas and Edwin S. Graham, appellants, versus Peter Hanson and R. J. Mendenhall, respondents, judgment is reversed. The land in controversy is situated within the limits of what was once known as Toombs county. In 1856 the land was patented to one Renville, and four years later he conveyed it by warranty deed to R. J. Mendenhall. The two main questions in the case are whether on March 13, 1862, Toombs county was organized and had a register of deeds, and whether on that day the deed in question was recorded in the latter's office. The trial court held there was nothing to show that Toombs county was even organized and entitled to a register of deeds. Judge Canty is of the opinion that by the act of 1858 the county was not only established, but also organized, and the office of register of deeds created.

Another interesting case in which the order of the lower court is reversed is that of Bernard Schmit, respondent, versus William B. Mitchell, appellant. This was an action for $25,000 for seduction, the plaintiff alleging that his daughter, Maggie, 30 years of age, was seduced by the defendant while in his employ as a domestic. On the trial the defendant demurred to the complaint on the ground that it did not state cause of action. The appeal is from an order overruling the demurrer. Judge Canty holds the complaint does not cite a cause of action.

State of Minnesota, respondent, versus Anna Breland, appellant. Judgment reversed.

Collin Gibb et al, respondents, versus fire insurance company, of the county of Philadelphia, appellant. Judgment reversed.

Helen F. Loveland, respondent, versus Edwin Corley, appellant. Order reversed.

William Grooms, appellant, versus Clarance R. Waterman, et al, respondents. Order affirmed.

ACTIVE TRAINING BEGUN.

Candidates for the Harvard 'Varsity Team Are Numerous.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass, Dec. 6.—The Harvard crew today began active training under the direction of Coach Watson, after several weeks of work on the river. The candidates for the 'varsity are being worked in two crews and have been frequently changed.

There were seventy-five candidates for the freshmen crew seven weeks ago, but this number has been reduced to twenty-four. None of the crews will use the rowing tank this year, rowing machines being used instead.

To Reclaim State Lands.

DENVER, Dec. 6.—The state land board has taken steps to reclaim from delinquents about 32,000 acres, including the 10,000 held by the Colorado Consolidated Land and Water company, J. V. Farwell's Chicago concern, on which about $52,000 has been paid to the state auditor. It is the policy of the board to spare settlers who are in arrears, but to compel speculators to live up to their contracts or forfeit their lands.

A Knights of Labor Row.

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—Master Workman E. J. Lindholm has been expelled from District Assembly 24, Knights of Labor. Financial Secretary W. E. Turner said today that Lindholm was expelled for breaking into a desk, but that Grand Master Sovereign believes that anything Lindholm does is right, and telegraphed to the assembly suspending it. The assembly refuses to recognize a telegram as an official communication.

The Deadly Football.

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 6.—Word has been received here of the death of Stewart Cravens, aged 21 years, at the Culver Military academy, Maxinkukee, yesterday. Cravens' death results from an injury received in a game of football in this city three weeks ago between the cadets of Culver academy and the Indianapolis high school.

TO AGREE ON PEACE TERMS.

Japanese-Chinese Negotiations Are Nearing a Conclusion.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The Japanese minister, was among Secretary Gresham's callers today in answer to a summons from the secretary.

It is believed that through the efforts of the American ministers a preliminary arrangement has been effected opening the way to a specific adjustment of terms of peace between duly accredited representatives of China and Japan.

DISTURBANCE IN THE REICHSTAG.

Socialist Members Refused to Cheer for the Kaiser.

BERLIN, Dec. 6.—A disturbance occurred today in the new reichstag palace upon the occasion of the first sitting of the reichstag. After President Von Levetzow had made a reminiscent speech he called for cheers for the emperor. The cheers were given heartily by all, except the socialists, who remained seated in spite of the excited, angry protests of the other members.

A great disturbance arose and the president amid warm applause censured the conduct of the socialists. Their conduct, he said, was not in consonance with the tradition of Germans or the usages of the house.

Herr Singer made an attempt to justify the action of the socialists and made a bitter attack upon the emperor, which evoked a storm of indignant protests from the other parts of the house. Herr Von Levetzow thereupon called Herr Singer to order.

Shot from Ambush.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Dec. 5.—As Mrs. Theodore Arthur was walking along the highway near her house in Lincoln county last evening she was shot from ambush, the ball penetrating her left lung. She died almost instantly. The gang of murderers who have been committing many crimes in that locality for a year past are supposed to have shot Mrs. Arthur.

U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, DULUTH, MINN., Dec. 6.—An area of unusally low barometer is central to the north of Montana, with a trough of low pressure extending thence southeast to South Dakota. No rain or snow is reported, except a "trace" of precipitation in upper Michigan, but the weather has became generally cloudy and much warmer in the Missouri and Red River valleys and Minnesota.

The temperatures at 7 a. m. today ranged from 14 degrees in the Canadian Northwest to 48 degrees in South Dakota.

Election Contests.

There are indications that many defeated Republican candidates will contest before the Fifty-fourth congress the seats of their successful Democratic rivals. On the lists of contestants are also many Populists. The idea of contesting seats is comparatively new, having received its greatest impetus during the Fifty-first congress, when Mr. Reed was speaker and deemed it necessary to unseat several Democratic members and placed in their seats an equal number of Republicans in order to secure a "working Republican majority." This was a bad example and it is the cause of many of the contests that are now announced.

It is said that already the Republican congressional committee has been notified of thirteen contests by defeated Republicans for Democratic seats, and the number will be largely increased before congress meets. The thirteen contested cases are: Seventh Kentucky district, Denny, Republican, against Owens, Democrat; First Louisiana, Kernochan, Republican, against Meyer, Democrat; Second Louisiana, Coleman, Republican, against Buck; Third Louisiana, Beattie, Republican, against Price; Fifth Missouri, Van Horn, Republican, against Tarsney; Sixth Nebraska, Dougherty, Republican, against Kem, Populist; Second North Carolina, Cheatham, Republican, against Woodward; First South Carolina, Murray, Republican, against Elliott; Tenth Texas, Rosenthal, Republican, against Crowley; First Virginia, McDonald, Republican, against Jones; Second Virginia, Borland, Republican, against Tyler; Seventh Virginia, Walker, Republican against Turner; Eighth Virginia, McCall, Republican, against Meredith. Other contests which the committee understand will be filed are of Thorp, Republican, against McKenny in the Fourth Virginia, Cornet, against Swanson in the Fifth Virginia, Hoge, Republican, against Otey in the Sixth Virginia and Hopkins, Republican, against Kendall in the Tenth Kentucky.

It is not likely that the contestants will receive much encouragement from the next congress, unless they have very convincing proofs that they are entitled to the seats which they claim. Mr. Reed and the Republican congressional committee are now adverse to unseating members on trivial grounds. There is no necessity on the part of the Republican majority to increase its numbers. It is rather too large now and consequently unwieldy. Mr. Reed also has announced that he will not give any encouragement to any effort looking to an indiscriminate unseating of Democrats. The expense will also operate against the encouragement of contests. Every contestant, of course, has the expenses of his contest paid by the government. Just think of the enormous cost of contest on a largescale. The average cost of each contest is $5000. Suppose there are twenty contests—and there will be fully that number—the government will be put to the unnecessary, the useless, expense of $100,000. Mr. Reed and the other leaders will hardly agree to such a large expenditure, and many contests that are now talked about will end in talk. It is a pity that all these contests could not be decided in the courts on their merits. Congress should not be asked to decide them, because almost invariably the members will divide on party lines when considering them.

England and Russia.

According to a London cablegram, the Tory clubmen were proposing to give an enthusiastic reception to the prince of Wales on his return from Russia, on account of his efforts to establish an Anglo-Russian understanding. The "jingo" spirit is strong with the London Tories, and they do not conceal their disgust for the foreign policy which was pursued by Mr. Gladstone and has been continued by Lord Rosebery. Disraeli was their idol. His foreign policy was brilliant and aggressive and stirred the jingoists to a high degree of enthusiasm.

The prince of Wales went to Russia as did other royal personages, to attend the funeral of the late czar, but rumor credits him with having done more. It is said he made a strong friend in the Emperor Nicholas and has paved the way for a complete Anglo-Russian understanding. It is now said that England will, nominally at least, maintain a policy of isolation as regards continental affairs, but her relations with Russia instead of being on the basis of rivalry in Asia and other points, will be those of the closest friendship. The two countries will certainly act together in their policy towards the China-Japan conflict. It is beginning to appear that a definite joint program has already been decided upon. The prince of Wales is credited with having been instrumental in arranging that a joint program should be carried out.

Manchester's White Elephant.

Apropos of the scheme to construct a canal from Lake Superior to the Mississippi river for the benefit of the Twin Cities, the experience of the people of Manchester, England, is interesting. The ship canal, which it took years to construct at a very heavy expense, is a failure as a financial investment, and reports also say that it is a failure in every way, as but a small fraction of the vessels which were expected to make use of it have made their appearance at Manchester. The earnings of the canal for the last eleven months were only $420,000, which 17 per cent less than the working expenses. As the trade of the canal is steadily decreasing, instead of increasing, there is not even a bare prospect of obtaining any return on the $70,000,000 expended in construction. The result is that the stockholders and the Manchester rate payers have an elephant on their hands.

The people who advocate the Lake Superior-Mississippi canal, which would cost a very large sum to construct (even if proven practicable) and which would be expensive to operate, owing to the numerous lockages required, might profitably study the experience of Manchester.

Mrs. Elizabeth B. Grannis, president of the National Christian League for the Promoti on of Social Purity, apropos of Lady Henry Somerset's crusade against the "living pictures," remarks: "There is not a living picture produced in New York today that is half as shocking as those pictures one sees in the boxes of the Metropolitan opera house." Mrs. Grannis is right. There is no display on the stage so absolutely indecent as the exhibition of nakedness made in the boxes of the New York opera houses.

Very curious inventions are offered to the war offices of the world. Among the most peculiar is one lately offered to France—the breeding of horse flies; the same to be fed on blood concealed under the German uniform on lay figures, with certain poisons added on the outbreak of war. The inventor contends that when taken to the front and released, the flies would at once swarm round the familiar German uniforms and kill or rout the armies of the enemy.

The friends of Hon. Joseph M. Markham, of Aitkin will be pleased to learn that the prosecuting attorney of Hennepin county has dismissed all the bribery charges made against him. The county attorney found that he could not make out a case against Mr. Markham. It was evident from the start the charges were largely due to spite work and Mr. Markham's many friends were confident that he would show their falsity.

Fanny Rexler, of New York, had a curious experience on Thanksgiving day. She ate enough turkey to set her yawning herself to sleep and an extra sized gape dislocated her jaw. Her family, a policeman and a doctor failed to reduce the luxation and it was not until a visit to the Governeur hospital and the use of a leave that her turkey trap was restored to order.

The temperance town of Montclair, N. J., has a long list of temperance drinks which may be sold, the whole winding up with "etc." Ten saloonkeepers have construed the "etc." to mean whisky, beer and so forth, and the town council is now wrestling with these three letters, many of its members holding that an "etc." covers anything.

The review of the iron trade for the past week, contained in a Cleveland dispatch in this issue, is encouraging. As compared with the first week of December last year, the trade shows a gratifying betterment. When iron recovers from its depressed condition, every other branch of business will be prosperous.

A sign of the hard times is shown in the national decrease in the consumption of beef. In New York, for instance, there has for years past been a 10 per cent increase in the amount of beef retailed, but this year there has been a decrease of 10 per cent.

At the instigation of her daughter, a Mrs. Harrison, of New York, aged 83, has been taken to an asylum for "leading an immoral life with a man 30 years her junior." This beats the age record, previously supposed to be held by Ninon de L'Enclos.

Duluth should be well represented at the national convention of the Municipal Reform league which will open at Minneapolis on Saturday. The discussion regarding the best form of a city charter will be interesting and instructive.

Russia is reported to have 35,000 men massed at Vladivostok that could be landed in Corea, Japan or China within ten days. The czar may be in favor of peace, but he intends to be ready for war, if it should become necessary.

One of the chief claims made by the supporters of the Baltimore plan is that it would provide an elastic currency. But can an elastic currency be a safe currency? This is a question that deserves careful consideration.

Julius A. Schmahl, of Redwood Falls, has announced that he is not a candidate for secretary of the state senate. One by one the candidates are dropping out and Duluth's candidate, M. A. Hays, may have a walkover.

Sixteen-ounce loaves of bread are now being sold in Philadelphia for three cents, and two-pound loaves for a nickel. Duluth bakers should study these figures.

The Minneapolis murder case is still a mystery, despite the fact that Mayor Eustis has put himself at the head of the detective force. A a rule a mayor does not make a successful sleuth.

When the Pioneer Press admits that there is strong opposition to Senator Washburn's re-election, it must be so. The Pioneer Press has always been a strong Washburn supporter.

It is about time for the United Press to take Pekin. It announced the fall of Port Arthur half a dozen times before it actually did fall into the hands of the Japanese.

What has become of that smoke-consuming crusade which was to be inaugurated by the Duluth health board.

The Barbers' International convention has closed its annual session at St. Paul, "Next!"

He Had no Hard Feelings.

You see that woman coming, Jack, dressed up in pink and grey?
Well, that's a woman whom I loved in times now passed away.
I used to visit her each night and write her every day,
And words of burning, eager love to her I'd often say.
I'd take her out to parties and to many a matinee;
Would send her every week or so a costly big bouquet;
Large sums out of my salary I cheerfully would pay
For buggy rides and such like things, to make our courishin gay;
Well, after all I'd done for her, this same young maid, Miss May,
Although her parents stern had said to such a marriage nay,
Packed up her clothes together, and skipped lightly out one day,
And wedded a young fellow down at Narragansett bay.
Well, good-by, Jack; she's coming, and with her I must stray.
You say that you're astonished that a word to her I'd say;
That I should coldly snub and scorn such a deceitful fay;
But, don't you see, I am the man with whom she ran away?

—Charles J. Colton in New York Sun.

Dubious For Washburn.

St. James Journal: Seventy-five per cent of the exchanges which come to this office are either anti-Washburn on the senatorial question, or are non-committal. It looks rather dubious for Washburn, as these papers reflect to a great extent the sentiments of the legislators from their respective districts.

News While it is News.

St. Paul News-Record: The afternoon newspapers continue to gain in their advantages over their morning contemporaries throughout the land. The newspaper events of the day prove this with stricking regularity. From the president's message to the football game reports the afternoon press gives the real news while it is yet news.

THE BOAT SANK SUDDENLY.

Two Men Were Drowned But One Floated to the Shore.

GENESEO, N. Y., Dec. 6.—An accident occured at Conesus lake last night by which two men, named Campbell and McCurty, residents of this town, lost their lives. They were accompanied by another man, John Falls, who escaped. He says they were all standing up in the boat when it suddenly sank beneath them. He hung on the boat and floated to the shore. The water is very deep where the accident occurred and the bodies have not yet been recovered.

Offers to Assist Mexico.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 6.—The Mexican government is receiving offers of assistance in case of war with Guatemala. The members of the Queretaro legislature have voted to subscribe their pay to a war fund. NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE—

Whereas, default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage which was duly executed and delivered by Charles K. Carlson and Sereua M. Carlson, his wife, mortgagors, to James H. Falconer, mortgagee, bearing date the first (1st) day of February, A. D. 1892, and which was duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, on the seventh (7th) day of March, A. D. 1892, at three o'clock and twenty minutes p. m., in Book one hundred one [101] of mortgages, on pages 293, 294, 295 and 296; which said mortgage and the principal note thereby secured contain provisions that if any default be made in the payment of any installment of interest thereon, or of any part thereof, on the day whereon the same is made payable, and if such default shall continue for a period of ten days, then and in any such case the said mortgagee may elect, without notice, that the whole principal sum thereby secured, and all accrued interest thereon, and all sums paid in accordance with the provisions of said mortgage, shall immediately become due and payable, and may enforce payment thereof by foreclosure, or other legal measures;

And, whereas, default has been made in the payment of the semi-annual installment of interest upon said note and mortgage, due July 1, 1894, amounting to the sum of thirty dollars, the payment of which was secured by said mortgage, and in the payment of seven and 08-100 ($7.08) dollars insurance premiums upon mortgaged premises heretofore paid by said mortgagee, and such defaults have continued for a period of more than ten days after the same became payable, by reason whereof the said mortgagee has elected to exercise said option, and has heretofore duly declared, and does hereby declare, the whole principal sum secured by said note and mortgage, with all accrued interest thereon, and $7.08 insurance premiums heretofore paid by said mortgagee, in accordance with the provisions of said mortgage, to be now due and payable;

And, whereas, there is therefore claimed to be due, and there is actually due, upon said mortgage debt, at the date of this notice, the sum of eight hundred four and 20-100 ($804.20) dollars, principal, interest and exchange, together with said further sum of $7.08 insurance premiums paid and fifty dollars attorney's fees, stipulated for in said mortgage in case of foreclosure thereof;

And, whereas, said mortgage contains a power of sale in due form, which has become operative by reason of the default above mentioned, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof;

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the said power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: All that tract or parcel of land lying and being in the county of St. Louis, state of Minnesota, described as follows to-wit:

All of lot number ten (10), in block numbered four (4), West Park Addition to Duluth, according to the recorded plat thereof on file of record in the office of the register of deeds in and for the said St. Louis County; which said premises, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes (if any) on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on the twenty-ninth (29th) day of December, A. D. 1894, at ten o'clock a. m., of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated November 12th, A. D. 1894.

WAS ALMOST SERIOUS

Accident on the St. Paul & Duluth Road Last Night Which Luckily Ended Without Trouble.

One of Engine Side Rods Broke and Smashed a Hole in the Boiler.

Fireman and Engineer Were Driven Out of the Cab But the Train Was Stopped.

Just this side of Ottawa, an accident which came near developing into a serious matter occurred on the northbound St. Paul & Duluth limited at 5:45 last night. One of the side rods of the engine broke, and swinging around at a frightful speed dislocated other portions of the machinery, and in a minute a hole was broken in the boiler. The escaping steam drove the fireman and engineer out of the cab, and a frightful accident might have occurred had not Conductor McManus applied the air brakes and stopped the train.

The train was pulled into Duluth by a special brought up from St. Paul by President Plough. Fireman Brown was badly scalded, but was able to make the return trip.

SANG FOR MR PRATT.

Several Local Singers Who Exhibited Their Voices for Him.

Yesterday afternoon several local singers sang before Manager Pratt, of the Tavary Opera company, for the purpose of receiving a candid opinion upon their voices and what may be made of them. Among them were Miss Julia Donovan, Miss Anna Farrell and N. S. Murphy. Mr. Pratt spoke highly of Miss Donovan's voice and advised her to pursue its culture, and if possible to study with William Castle, of Chicago. He also spoke of N. S. Murphy as a fine and pleasing singer and one who has a good future.

When Miss Farrell sang he grew enthusiastic and gave her very high praise. In conversing afterward with a number of men, Mr. Pratt said: "We are besieged with amateurs who want us to try their voices, and we have grown to look on it as a kind of bore. But I never have heard an amateur who so completely won me as Miss Farrell. Her volume is grand and she has a voice which, with cultivation and training, will be nothing less than phenomenal. I know by her manner that she can act, too, and she has every attribute necessary to make a magnificent Carmen. She has money in that voice and ought to go on the operatic stage by all means."

THE MUNICIPAL COURT.

Capt. Thompson's Assailant Paid a Fine for Drunkenness.

Drunks and disorderlies seemed to be all the style in police court this morning. O. J. Engstrom paid $12 for a drunk he had and was released. Pat Cosgrove went up ten days for a similar offense. H. E. Kindred and Sadie Ridley got ten days each for disorderly conduct. Albert Peterson paid $10 for the fun he got out of an over indulgence in foamy beer.

S. Severson paid $12 also for the indulgence in a drunken spree. Last evening, Engstrom and Peterson were arrested and locked up. Later on, Severson came in, demanded that his chums be released and when Capt. Sam Thompson refused to comply, Severson pulled out the remnants of an old butcher knife and made a lunge at Duluth's veteran police officer. He dodged the blow, grappled his assailant and after a struggle overpowered him. All of the three are woodsmen.

GRAND LARCENY CHARGED.

"Can Can Bob" Accused of Stealing Nine Dollars in Money.

Yesterday afternoon, before Judge Winje, "Can Can Bob," alias Bob Wayne, was arraigned on the charge of grand larceny. The examination was set for this afternoon and "Can Can Bob" committed in default of bail in the sum of $200. One Anna Percy alleges that on Dec. 4 he stole $9 of her hoarded cash.

Joseph Roy, charged with using profane and indecent language on a Woodland street car Saturday night, was discharged. Judge Winje, after the dismissal remarked: "It is no wonder the man swore, considering the way those on the car treated him."

Sues for Delay.

The Empire Transportation company has filed a libel with the clerk of the circuit United States court against the Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron company. The libellant alleges that last July the coal company neglected and refused to unload a vessel of coal, thereby holding it at the West Superior dock for fourteen days instead of two, twelve days longer than was necessary. The libellant holds the damage to be worth $200 a day, therefore asks damages to the amount of $2400 and cost of the suit.

Fire insurance written in good, reliable companies.

I have let the houses I advertised two weeks ago, but I now have some others which will also go cheap to responsible tenants. It costs nothing to inspect them.

Money to loan at low rates on the usual security. I will take at once any well secured loan.

I did not intend to advertise that I had anything to give away, though the prices at which I can sell excellent properties in desirable parts of Duluth almost justify the inference. It is worth your while to learn what bargains there are in the market, even if you don't want to buy yourself.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury,

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely dorange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure and get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by druggists, price 75c per bottle.

AMUSEMENTS.

The Tavary Company.

The Tavary company closed its engagement last evening at the Lyceum before a good audience. The patronage extended the company, however, has not been such as to make the management yearn for another season of grand opera.

"Lohengrin" was finely snng. The chorus came out strong and full, although there were weak spots in some portions of the opera. "Lohengrin," to have its full beauty and the intent of the composer properly presented requires a great number of people and heavy orchestration. The general effect last evening was thoroughly pleasing, but it would be idle to say that it was above criticism. The orchestra played well but a weakness could be noticed occasionally.

Madame Tavary as Elsa was excellent. It is a strongly emotional part and she presented it with deep sympathy and feeling. Madame Doenhoff was heard as Ortrud and was received with the same enthusiasm as on Monday evening. She has a magnificent voice and divides the honors with Madame Tavary.

Payne Clark was a fine Lohengrin and his singing made the same fine impression as on the two evenings previous. William Mertens as Frederick was excellent, as was also William Schuster as the herald.

In the afternoon "I'Pagliacci" and "Cavalleria Rusticana" were sung. Signor Guille was heard for the first time and was received with enthusiasm. There are few tenors before the public who are his equal. His music bursts from him as though impossible to restrain and its power is tremendous. His diminutive size is against him and his odd manner makes one laugh rather than be impressed with the tragedy he is presenting.

All the characters were well taken. Mme. Thea Dorre as Santuzza was fine. The intermezzo in "Cavalleria Rusticana" was exquisitely played by the orchestra and an encore was given.

THE HUMANE SOCIETY.

Regular Monthly Meeting Yesterday and Hearing of Reports.

Rev. W. W. Dawley, Rev. A. W. Ryan, W. S. Woodbridge and James L. Dow, of the executive committee of the Duluth Humane society, met yesterday afternoon. The report of Henry Haskins was presented. He reported August Johnson as arrested and sentenced for ninety days for unmercifully beating his child. One destitute child was found during the month. Three animals were found to be overloaded, four driven lame and one deprived of shelter.

There is on hand in the treasury, according to the report of W. S. Woodbridge, $543.13. There was received during the month $50 from the city, $25 from the county, $40 in donations and $5 in fines.

August Ericson was appointed assistant agent in West Duluth and will serve without salary.

Township Surveys Filed.

Official plats of survey of the following townships have been filed in the local United States land office: 60 8, 62-5, 68-19, 65-14. The first and second named will be opened for settlement on Jan-17, 1895. 68-19 will be opened Jan. 23, and 65-14 Jan. 22. It is expected that there will be a great squabble and contest for lands in 68-19, as it is filled with squatters, the timber and stone men, because of some valuable timber, have their eye on it and there are a number of Indian allotments will come in for consideration. These lands are up north of Lake Vermilion, a couple of them near the Canadian boundary. 62-5 is a fractional township containing only 300 acres.

Dykeman, druggist, Catskill, N. Y., says that Dr. King's New Discovery is undoubtedly the best cough remedy: that he has used it in his family for eight years, and it has never failed to do all that is claimed for it. Why not try a remedy as long tried and tested. Trial bottles free at Max Wirth's drug store. Regular size 50 cents and $1.

UNIQUE DETECTIVE WORK.

A Portable Telephone Used to Get a Blackmailer's Admission.

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—A peculiar story of alleged blackmail and unique detective work, in which a portable telephone figured prominently, was developed today in the case of Attorney Charles Ioas who was held in heavy bonds by United States Commissioner Wirt, charged with sending objectionable letters through the mails.

The plaintiff, Dr. Peter Janss, a prominent physician, had for a long time, according to his story, been paying Ioas varying sums for the suppression of a disagreeable bit of private history and was finally driven to desperation when his wife received a letter from the lawyer.

Ioas, the doctor said, frankly admitted writing the letter when no witnesses were present, but denied all knowledge of it when others were about. At last, at the advice of Attorney Luther Laflin Mills, Dr. Janss fitted a small telephone in his silk hat, with a slender gold wire trailing behind which connected with a telephone outside the lawyer's office, at which, with two receivers, were stationed a detective and a stenographer.

Entering the lawyer's office, Dr. Jauss declares he easily induced Ioas to again admit that he had written the letter and demand more money. Then Dr. Janss exhibited his telephone, explained to the astounded lawyer that he had been talking through the doctor's hat, and, armed with his evidence, secured the arrest. The case will be tried shortly by the United States authorities.

SIR CHARLES FOR PREMIER.

Tupper to Return From England to Lead the Canadian Tories.

TORONTO, Dec. 6.—The World (Conservative) says: "The Dominion elections will take place in March, but before that many changes in the Conservative party will take place. Sir John Thompson will resign before the elections and be sworn in as a member of the privy council. Sir Charles Tupper, Canada's high commissioner to England, will likely succeed him as leader of the Conservative party and will again try to regain power on the national policy of protection cry."

IRON ORE FROM SPAIN.

A Steamship Chartered to Bring a Cargo to Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 6.—The shipments of Mediterranean iron iron to Philadelphia, which have been entirely suspended for nearly two years owing to the dullness of iron, have been resumed. Cuban ore has to some extent displaced the European product, but the demand of the latter grade to mix with domestic ores has recently shown a decided improvement.

The British steamship Hartington Guild Hall and Baltimore City have been chartered to load full cargoes at Carthagena, Spain, consigned to Samuel Adams, of this city.

Rich Gold Strike.

HERMOSA, N. D., Dec. 6.—Excitement is running high here over the rich gold strike at Keystone, fourteen miles north. The mine is called the Holy Terror. The first thirty-six hours netted $3200 and the next twenty four hours $3500. The rock is increasing in value. Enongh rock is in sight to last two years.

Thinks He Has Murphy.

DENVER, Dec. 6.—Chief of Detectives Leyden believes that Michael Reagan, arrested here as a vagrant, is Thomas Murphy, alias "Kid" of Little Hell, Chicago, who is wanted in that city for the murder of Gus Colliander on election day. Reagan bears a close resemblance to a photograph of Murphy and has a scar on the right side of his chin, which is one of Murphy's distinguishing marks.

Uniform Postage Rates.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Provision for uniform rates of postage for United States mails sent to every portion of the globe, with a few exceptions, is made an order issued by Postmaster General Bissell. The rates are 5 cents for each half ounce of mail, except for Canada and Mexico whose domestic rates of 2 cents an ounce are applicable, or to the postal agency at Shanghai.

The Armenian Outrages.

BOSTON, Dec. 6.—The society of the Friends of Armenian of this city today began to circulate a petition to the president of the United States and to the czar of Russia asking them to interfere to prevent the further slaughter of Armenians by the Turks, and secure reparation for the blood already shed. The paper will be carried to St. Petersburg by special representatives of the society.

Breakers Ahead!

Prudence, foresight, that might have saved many a good ship that has gone to pieces among the breakers, is a quality "conspicuous by its absence" among many classes of invalids, and among none more notably than persons troubled with inactivity of the kidneys and bladder. When these organs fall off in duty, grievous trouble is to be apprehended. Bright's disease, diabetes, catarrh and stone in the bladder, are among the diseases which a disregard of early symptoms confirm and render fatal. That signally effectual diuretic, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, will—and let no one so troubled forget this—remedy the symptoms of approaching renal disease and check its further progress. Equally efficacious is the Bitters for constipation, liver complaint, malarial and rheumatic trouble and debility.

LEVINES VINDICATED

Jury Came in This Afternoon with a Verdict Completely in Their Favor on Every Point.

The Disposition to Be Made of the Other Levine Cases Has Not Been Determined.

Meeting of the County Commissioners Yesterday Afternoon—Appropriation For the Virginia and Eveleth Road.

The Levine jurors went out at 10:30 this morning, taking with them the list of fourteen questions given in yesterday's Herald which they must answer. The jury came in at 3:15 o'clock. The result is a full vindication for the Levines and the complete defeat of the insurance company. To the first questions as to whether Arbitrator Morse was disinterested the answer is "No." The plaintiffs are declared to have offered the appraisers their books and vouchers. The fifth question as to whether the award was fairly and honestly made without improper conduct on the part of Arbitrator Morse and Umpire Turnquist is answered in the negative, and it is declared to have been the result of partiality, conspiracy and fraud.

The value of goods totally destroyed is given as $15,741.72 and the value of the stock is given as $56,151.52 with $22,160.72 damages to the goods remaining after the fire. The fire is declared to be accidental and the plaintiffs are found to have done all they could to save and protect the goods. The other insurance cases were put off until Tuesday, when some disposition will be made of them. It has not yet been decided whether or not the remaining cases will be tried before a jury or not. In case they are a special venire will be necessary, as all the jurymen except those now on the Levine case have been discharged for the term. It is probable, however, that the jury's decision on the points submitted to them will be made the basis of the decisions in the other cases, and that they will be submitted to the court.

THE COMMISSION RULE.

The Real Questions That Confront the Board of Trade Members.

The board of trade members will vote at 11 o'clock tomorrow on the commission rule question. The controversy has attracted considerable attention, and many erroneous stories have been circulated. Many of the published reports have not given a correct view of the trouble. A prominent member of the board today explained the matter as follows:

"The hue and cry about the large firms wanting to crush out the smaller firms is all rot. There is not a member on our board but what is anxious to see the number of traders increased, for the more firms there are drawing business to Duluth, the more business there will be for all; that proposition needs no argument. Neither is there any question but what a commission of 1 cent per bushel is little enough. But the trouble arises from the fact that some of our members feel themselves bound to live up to the rule to which they have subscribed by becoming members of the board, while others feel it a part of their duty to try in every way to evade it, and these are the people who are most active in trying to keep on our books a rule which they know they are themselves violating in every possible way.

"The consequence is that many firms have lost a great deal of their business from country shippers who have transferred their business to other firms simply because better terms are offered. The so-called smaller receivers themselves raised the cry of being crushed out for effect; in the majority of cases they are the ones responsible for the cutting of commissions. There will be no trouble at all when all the members will honestly abide by the rules.

"Another point at issue is the fact that the West Superior firms all advertise to do business for ½ cent per bushel, and it is a serious question for the Duluth board to consider whether they will see business thus diverted which otherwise would come here. These Superior firms are many of them members of our board; they come over here and vote for the cent rule, while they go back home and advertise to do the same business in Superior for one-half what we advertise over here.

"I believe any rule fixing a rate at which a firm shall do business is wrong in principle, but if we are to have a rule every member is in honor bound to abide by it, and when all our members are ready to do this, there will be no further trouble. The directors sent back their recommendation a second time that the rule be abolished, because it is almost universally violated, even by those clamoring for keeping it on our books, and because they do not think it is sound business to give firms across the bay the advantage of soliciting business at a lower rate than we can ourselves. Every resident member of our board should be present tomorrow at 11 o'clock to vote on this question."

THE TOWN IS EXCITED.

George Hillyer Exhibits Gold Ore Which Is Immensely Rich.

George Hillyer, of the Russell-Miller Milling company, of Superior, who with Hugh Steele and others is interested in one of the richest gold mines in the Rainy river district, came down from Rainy Lake today, and he left a trail of the wildest excitement behind all through his trips around town. The cause of the excitement is a grip containing 250 pounds of the richest gold quartz ever exhibited. It is fairly blazing with nuggets of free gold, and Mr. Hillyer says that it will assay $5000 a ton.

Of course no vein of gold on the face of the globe will average that amount right through, but the whole of the Hillyer vein will average at a high rate. The property is north of Shoal lake on Seine river, near the Wiegand-Ray, I. L. Foley and other rich properties, and the vein on which they are now working is one of the richest yet developed. They are down fifty-one feet.

IS PONDERING IT.

Mayor Lewis Does Not Know Whether to Sign or Not.

Mayor Lewis does not know what in the world he will do with the water-works purchase resolution passed Monday night—it's a regular white elephant on his hands. He wants to do just what is the best for the city and what that is he has not yet decided. If he signs he may do something that he will be sorry for later on. At the very least, there's a whole lot of citizens and nearly half of the council that does not want the measure signed in its present form. Then there is a whole lot of people, many of them of influence, who want his honor to sign and sign quick in big black letters.

Then, again, even if he does sign, it is pretty well known and understood that twelve men in favor of issuing bonds cannot be found and it also is most evident that there are not enough men in the council to pass the resolution over his honor's veto. So there you are.

This forenoon was spent by the mayor in his office. For an hour or two he conferred with Alderman Getty, Hale, Howard and Lerch. They were "talking things over" but failed to find a common base to stand upon. The mayor looks grave and occupied and most certainly is spending many wakeful hours and much of his gray matter in the consideration of this momentous question.

PERFECT ALIBIS.

The Hayward Brothers Are Under Arrest at Minneapolis for the Murder of Kittie Ging.

They Are Able to Establish Conclusive Alibis and Another Must Have Done the Deed.

Report That the Authorities Know the Right Man and Have a Warrant for Him.

Harry Hayward Admitted in the Sweat Box That the Murdered Woman Was His Mistress.

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 7.—Although the Hayward brothers are in cells charged with murder in the first degree, it is frankly admitted by the county authorities that they have not yet laid hands on the man who fired the shot which killed Catherine Ging. In fact, while they have made great progress, they are really a long ways yet from solving the mystery as to the identity of the actual murderer. It is believed that a warrant is out for the apprehension of the man, but the authorities will neither affirm nor deny that they know who he is.

From an inside source, however, it is learned that they confidently expect his arrest very shortly, possibly today. The alibis of the Hayward brothers are perfect so far as the time of the actual murder is concerned. An important admission made by Hayward to the authorities while in the sweat box yesterday, which has just leaked out, is that Miss Ging was his mistress. He admitted the liaison, and in the next breath denied emphatically that he desired her death.

It is known, too, that Hayward was very much smitten with the young lady whom he took to the theater on the night of the tragedy, that he was in fact engaged to marry her and that the trousseau had been bought and the day set. The authorities believe that this fact may furnish the additional motive deemed necessary to explain the crime.

It has seemed scarcely possible that so horrible a crime should be committed by Hayward for the $10,000 insurance money which would be obtained, and which he would have to share with the others who were in the conspiracy. Five thousand dollars would be no incentive to a man of Hayward's stamp, who often had more than that in his pocket and was known to stake $1000 on the turn of a card. His approaching marriage and the necessity of ending the liaison with Miss Ging may have furnished a far stronger motive.

The Hayward brothers were formally arraigned in the municipal court this morning and the examination was continued until Thursday. Harry T. Hayward was arrested last evening, and at midnight Adry A. Hayward was taken in charge.

A LARGE LAND DEAL.

Claus Spreckels Buys Forty Thousand Acres and a Sugar Factory.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 7.—Claus Spreckels drew a check for $1,500,000 on the Nevada bank a few days ago, and it is now said that the money was in completion of a large land deal. This included the purchase of 40,000 acres, on which is located the Chino sugar factory.

The deal was engineered by C. H. Phillips, of San Luis Obispo and is said to be the largest real estate transaction in the history of Southern California. The transfer included the townsite of Chino, the Chino Valley railway, a narrow guage road ten miles long, the water system and the contract with the Chino Valley Beet Sugar company.

Used the Mails to Defraud.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 7.—Dr. John H. Durland, president of the Provident Bond and Investment company, was today found guilty on a charge of using the mails to further a scheme to defraud. The case was given to the jury late yesterday afternoon and a sealed verdict was handed in by the jury at 8:30 this morning. Durland's counsel moved for a new trial and Judge Butler will hear arguments on the motion on Monday, Dec. 17.

Crime Among Youths.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 7.—At a meeting of the citizens' committee held at the Mercantile club, resolutions were adopted requesting Governor Stone, of Missouri, to be present and deliver an address at the seventh annual convention of the Boys and Girls' National Home and Employment association, which meets here next Tuesday for the purpose of studying the origin and extent of crime among youth, and suggesting the best remedy for its suppression.

Earl of Oxford Dead.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—The sudden death of the earl of Orford is announced. He will be succeeded by his nephew, Robert Horace Walpole, who, in 1888, married Miss Louise Melissa Corbin, of New York. The succession to the earldom of Orford, recalls the suit for breach of promise brought against the new earl by a German governess, of Constantinople, prior to his marriage to Miss Corbin.

Eugene Kelly Dying.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Eugene Kelly, head of the well known banking house of Eugene Kelly & Co., is in a precarious condition at his home on West Fifty-first street. He was stricken with paralysis Tuesday last. Up to that time he had been in good health. Owing to his extreme age his physicians and friends fear he may not live until night. Mr. Kelly was born in Ireland in 1808 and came to America with $3 in his pocket. He is worth $15,000,000.

MYSTERIOUS MURDER CASE.

Hacked Body of a Man Found in a Shipping Case at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—Evidence of what seems a mysterious and brutal murder were found today when the chopped and hacked body of a man was discovered in a shipping case, lying in an alley, between Sixty-third and Sixty-fourth streets.

The body had apparently been cut up to fit the case and had evidently been shipped from a distant point. The head was not badly mutilated, and the police hope for an identification of the remains which have been placed in the South Side morgue.

The shipping case bears a French stamp, indicating that the body had been shipped from France. The body is that of a man about 40 years old, of refined appearance. The head is partially bald and the face clean shaven except for a long blonde moustache. In the case, carefully wrapped in paper, was found a lock of dark, fine hair, evidently that of a woman. The police are completely in the dark, with no clews upon which to base even a theory.

The box in which the body was found was marked "G. P. Peterson" numbered 2162 and stamped "made in France," Traces of other marks were found but they had been carefully disfigured, making them unreadable. The later investigations of the police and the examination of the body by doctors seemed to disprove the theory that the murder had occurred at a distant point. Doctors said that the man could not have been dead more than two days, and it was thought that the French shipping case was used to divert suspicion.

With the body were found clippings of carpet which were identified as having come from the Pullman palace car shops, the clippings apparently having been used as packing for the body. In the case was found a torn bit of paper bearing the address "R. Y. Titus, 237 West Fifty-seventh street." A portion of a letter was also found but its contents the police refused to make public.

An inquest was held this afternoon, the police advancing the theory that the man was murdered in the vicinity of Chicago and then boxed for shipment, but that the principals, fearing discovery, abandoned their plan and threw the case into the alley while on their way to a railroad station.

Later—This afternoon the body was identified as A. D. Barnes, custodian of the Hiawatha building at 258 Thirty-seventh street. Barnes was the proprietor of several news, book and fruit stands and had been recently divorced from his wife.

TEXAS & PACIFIC ROBBERY.

It is Believed That Very Little Booty Was Secured.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Dec. 7.—The local managers of the Pacific Express company say that it is impossible to say just how much the robbers who held up the Texas & Pacific train west of here last night, got away with, as all the way bills are missing. They got very little booty, however, is their impression, as it was mostly local express matter. The contents of the iron through package box arrived here intact.

A sheriff's posse of fifteen men, led by Deputy William Rea and Police Chief Maddox, have been out with a pack of bloodhounds since last night, and word is received from them that the posse is on a hot trail following the three robbers who are well mounted and armed, and are traveling southwesterly. The safe which the robbers looted was the same one opened in the Gordon robbery a short time ago.

BLOWN OPEN WITH DYNAMITE.

The Vault of a Missouri Bank Entered and $6000 Stolen.

LINNEUS, Mo., Dec. 7.—Sheriff Barton, of this county, has just received word from Marceline that the First National bank of that city, in the southeastern part of Linn county, was broken into Wednesday night and the vault blown open with dynamite. It is stated that the amount stolen was $6000.

The bank officials say they have a good clue to the robbers. Ten thousand dollars burglar insurance had been taken out on the bank a week previous to the robbery.

GEN. GOURKO HAS RESIGNED.

He Did Not Like an Order Issued by the Czar.

POSEN, Germany, Dec. 7.—A dispatch received here from Warsaw, Russian Poland, says that Gen. Gourko, the governor of Warsaw, Tuesday last received a telegram from the Russian minister of the interior, conveying to him an order of the czar not to interfere with the affairs of the Catholic clergy or to impose any orders upon them.

The dispatch adds that Gen. Gourko tendered his resignation Dec. 1 and that the governor general of Odessa, Puschkin, has been designated to succeed him.

Gen. Scammon Dead.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Gen. Elakim P. Scammon died today at his home in Audubon Park. Gen. Scammon was graduated from West Point in 1837 and afterwards served in the military academy as professor of ethics and mathematics and was tutor of Gens. Grant, Rosecrans and Newton and a roommate of Gen. Bragg. Mrs. Walter Lockwood, of Chicago, is a daughter of Gen. Scammon.

The Iowa Travellers.

DESMOINES, Dec. 7.—The Iowa State Travelling Men's association met in annual session today at the Y. M. C. A. building with 900 in attendance. The annual address of the president, and reports of the secretary and treasurer were read. They show the association to be in a gratifying condition.

Revoking a Franchise.

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 7.—The franchise of the Southern Bell Telephone exchange in this city was yesterday revoked by the passage of an ordinance by one of the branches of the city council here. However, if this ordinance passes the board of aldermen and is approved by the mayor, it will not go into effect for twelve months.

WELLS OBJECTS

A Wisconsin Member Vigorously Protests Against the Bill For the Protection of Forest Reservation.

Declared That An Association of Timber Thieves and Land Sharks is Behind the Bill.

Challenged Any Advocate of the Bill to Show a Line to Protect the Forests.

Said the Pine Land Thieves of Michigan and Wisconsin Had Bought Seats in Congress.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—In the house today Mr. McRae, from the committee on public lands, called up the bill to protect forest reservations. Mr. Wells (Dem.), of Wisconsin, opposed the bill in every feature. The attempt to drive this bill through under the whip and spur smelled, he would say savor, if he did not have such high respect for the chairman of the public land committee, of boodle. It was said that the forestry association was behind this bill.

There was another association behind it which had its origin in Maine fifty years ago and had now extended to the Pacific slope. It was an association of timber thieves and land sharks. That association was behind the bill. If these timber thieves were allowed to go into the public forests, they would bribe the agents of the interior department and destroy them.

The pine land thieves of Michigan and Wisconsin, he declared excitedly, had grown rich on their plunder and had then bought seats both in this house and the other. He would not permit the people of this country to be plundered of millions of dollars worth of timber. He appealed to members of the house not to permit these thieves to go into the forests with the disguised purpose of cutting only dead and matured timber. He challenged any advocate of the bill to show a line in it designed to protect and preserve the public forests.

When Mr. Wells took his seat, Chairman McRae arose and indignantly denied that there was any land ring or association behind this bill. He had assumed the responsibility of the bill, and if the gentleman from Wisconsin knew of any hidden power behind it he would yield time to him to make known its nature.

"I said before," replied Mr. Wells hotly, "that I believe in your honesty, but the gentleman is green in the lumber business and I believe the gentleman is being deceived and is being made a tool of."

"I may be green in the lumber business," returned Mr. McRae, "but I take pride in the fact that I represent one of the largest sections of this country. My state, however, is not affected by this bill. There is no interest behind this bill save such as ought to inspire every patriotic citizen—the protection of the forests from devastating fires and timber thieves."

After some further debate by Messrs. Wilson, of Washington; Pickler, of South Dakota, and Coffeen, of Wyoming, the morning hour expired, and in accordance with the terms of the special order, the house proceeded with the discussion of the railroad pooling bill under an agreement to take up the bill under the five-minute rule tomorrow.

M. DE LESSEPS IS DEAD.

Constructor of the Suez Canal and Projector of the Panama Canal Has Passed Away.

PARIS, Dec. 7.—Ferdinand De Lesseps, the eminent engineer, builder of the great Suez canal and projector of the Panama canal which put him under a cloud in his old age, is dead.

Twenty-three years ago the name of Ferdinand De Lesseps was on everybody's lips. He had completed the greatest feat of engineering of modern times—the Suez canal. He had realized his dream and made this gigantic undertaking a success, which brought him the admiration and fame of the whole civilized world. It is impossible to enumerate the honors with which he was overwhelmed from every quarter of the globe. The French government bestowed upon him the greatest honor it can bestow—the grand cross of the Legion of Honor. In England the enthusiasm for De Lesseps was so great that the city council of London decided to confer the rare distinction of making him an "honorary citizen of the city of London." In short he was at the zenith of his fortune and fame, and there was not the slightest shadow of a cloud visible which could darken his evening of life.

And in his old age all this dazzling splendor and glory were ruthlessly swept away, leaving in their stead the heavy pall of darkness and sorrow. The honor of having accomplished one of the most notable works in history nobody can deny to De Lesseps. But the nimbus which formerly surrounded his name departed forever. The wretched fiasco of the Panama undertaking threw him from his height of fame and brought him at the age of 87 years to be arraigned for trial in a court of justice and to be convicted.

Every one was sorry for De Lesseps. The London Times, in a leader, said that the decision of the French government to prefer charges against this man has shocked both France and the civilized world, and adds: "With all his faults De Lesseps is today, perhaps, the greatest living Frenchman. His greatest deeds have had a direct influence on the direction of French politics, and although the Panama undertaking came to a disastrous end, France cannot have forgotten what De Lesseps has done for the honor of his country. It is with great pain and sorrowing hearts that the French would see this 87-year-old man on a felon's bench, accused of embezzlement.

It is now interesting to glance at the former career of Ferdinand De Lesseps. He was born at Versailles in 1805 and enjoyed all the advantages of a splendid education. He evinced a strong inclination toward the diplomatic service, but his father discouraged him as much as possible in his endeavor to receive a government appointment. He, however, carried his point, and through influences stronger than his father's he was appointed consul at Cairo in 1833. While here and in Alexandria as consul general De Lesseps received the cross of the Legion of Honor for humane services rendered during the plague which swept off one-third of the population.

He was transferred to Rotterdam, and then, in 1844 to Barcelona, where he gave great satisfaction to the different nationalities of the latter place at the time of its bombardment by Espartero. The French residents struck a medal in his honor. The Marseilles chamber of commerce presented him with an address; the Barcelona chamber ordered his bust in marble. The princess of Sardinia and the two Sicilies conferred their highest honors upon him. In 1848 he was ambassador to the court of Madrid, and in 1849 represented his government at Rome. Here he displeased his home office on account of his tendency to concessions to the young republic of Rome. "Full of generous ardor and belief in human progress and the rights of man," says M. De Leon, "he remonstrated against the occupation of Rome by the French troops in 1849, and, after a protest against Gen. Oudinot's bombardment and military rule, he retired from a diplomatic career in which advancement was so sure, thus seemingly sacrificing his whole future for principle."

The project of the Suez canal which for years had been his pet idea now received his undivided attention and energy. To cut a new route for the commerce of our day straight across from sea to sea became De Lesseps' one great ambition. He had steadily advocated the widest extension of commerce, swift and close intercourse between remote points where such a thing was possible.

In 1854 he was sent by the French to negotiate with Said Pasha for the construction of the Suez canal, first projected in 1846. His mission was crowned with success, and the necessary concessions were made in November that year. His wonderful power of infusing some of his own enthusiasm into others enabled him, after what seemed insurmountable difficulties, to overcome the bitter opposition of his powerful enemies, to raise with comparative ease the necessary funds. In 1858 De Lesseps had received subscriptions of stock amounting to 200,000,000 francs alone in France, and in 1859 he proceeded to Egypt and planted the Egyptian flag in the harbor of the ancient Pelusium where Port Said now stands.

He again was harrassed by fresh difficulties, chiefly of a political nature. The English press was particularly bitter in its attacks. One leading English journal referred to it as "the monstrous folly of the nineteenth century, never to be complete, or, if finished, to be exhibited as the French folly." However, De Lesseps had both courage and tenacity. Neither the sneers of Stevenson and his associate engineers, nor the heavy broadsides from the "Thunderer," made any impression on the great Frenchman, and the outcome speaks for itself. The first blow struck near Peluse for a new harbor on the Mediterranean shore was on April 21, 1859; the Suez canal opened for the commerce of the world Nov. 17, 1869, and was almost from the day of its opening a splendid success. This was the triumph of an idea adopted forty years ago, and the result of a ten years' indefatigable struggle.

One curious trait of De Lesseps from youth to age was his utter incapacity for concealment of his plans or purposes or indirection of any kind. He always took the world into his confidence and went to his object straight as an arrow to its mark with a conviction of his own success which greatly assisted in his attaining it. The frankness with which he admitted the changes of conviction was the keynote of his character. Speaking of his miscalculations and failures to carry out his highest ambition, he said: "I cannot see why I should be blamed for not having persevered in following up an erroneous appreciation of the situation. No man is infallible, nor is there any representative man who does not find good cause under altered circumcnmstances to rectify his original impressions without incurring the reproach of inconsistency."

ANTI-ANARCHIST LAW.

Mr. Boatner Will Try to Push the Hill Anti-Anarchist Measure Through the House.

He Is Hopeful of Securing the Passage of the Exclusion Bill Before the Holidays.

Many Swiss Who Returned to Switzerland for Work Anxious to Get Back to America.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The effort to prevent anarchists from coming to the United States will be resumed in the house next week if Mr. Boatner, of Louisiana, in charge of the measure, secures the time he expects. This measure provoked an exciting contest at the close of the last session, but its final passage was cut off by adjournment. At that time the government had received official notification from France that a large number of anarchists driven from Europe were enroute to this country.

Secretaries Gresham and Carlisle were specially anxious to secure legislation to cut off this influx of dangerous characters. Senator Hill pushed the anti-anarchist bill through the senate, but it ment opposition from Messrs. Warner, of New York; Goldzier, of Illinois, and others and had to be abandoned for the time being.

Mr. Boatner will now take up the contest where it was left off and is hopeful of securing the passage of the exclusion bill before the holidays. As it has already passed the senate, favorable action by the house will conclude the legislation.

Representative Warner, of New York, referring to the measure, says that the necessity for it has evidently gone by. "There was no suggestion in Secretary Carlisle's report," said Mr. Warner, "as to the need of such a bill. There was much ado at the last session over anarchists about to land, and it was declared the country was in peril. But what has become of these anarchists? They must have been drowned en route. No one has heard of them. It is a singular fact that the men who urge this measure live in the interior far from ports where anarchists might be feared. The New York newspapers, located at the place where anarchists would be most likely to arrive, do not believe in the bill."

Mr. Warner's objection to the bill last session was that it did not define anarchists, but gave government officials a dangerous authority to call anyone an anarchist and then depport him. The anti-anarchist bill as now before the house provides that no alien anarchist shall hereafter be permitted to land at any port of the United States or be admitted into the United States but this shall not be construed as to apply to political refugees or political offenders.

At the hearing of aliens charged with being anarchists, the board of special inquiry shall inquire of the accused as to his antecedents, political opinions, whether he belongs to any society, or association of known anarchists, and he might examine the person for marks indicative of such membership. He may accept evidence of the immigrant's common reputation as an anarchist. On the fact being determined that an immigrant is an anarchist, the secretary of the treasury is empowered to deport him back to the country from which he came. It is also provided that the secretary is to appoint inspectors, to be stationed abroad, to apprehend anarchists embarking for this country.

"If I could only get back home I should be all right. I could earn something at least, but here I shall starve." This is the exclamation of very many Swiss who have returned to Switzerland in search of employment. This is part of an ominous warning that United States Consul Gifford at Basle sends to persons who have emigrated to this country and are now returning to Europe in search of employment."

"Home" in the cases above quoted means the United States, for many of these people are naturalized American citizens and bring with them children born in the United States. They spend all their savings on the return trip, and failing to find employment are reduced to misery and apply to our consuls, who have no means to relieve them or to pay their way back to the United States.

Consul Gifford says that there is hardly enough employment for those already settled in Switzerland. The trades and manufacturers are not specially prosperous and the building trades and day labor are amply supplied by the Italians. Business is duller and wages lower than in America, and the consul advises those who contemplate returning to Europe to refrain and await a complete revival of business in the United States.

ASK THEM Why?

Ask the men who are making imitations of COTTOLENE, the new vegetable shortening, why they give up lard and try to trade on the merits of COTTOLENE? Perhaps you can guess why.

ASK HIM Why?

Ask the grocer who attempts substitution, why he tries to sell an imitation when people call for that pure, palatable and popular vegetable shortening, COTTOLENE? Perhaps you can guess.

ASK YOURSELF Why?

Why should not YOU use COTTOLENE, instead of Lard for all cooking purposes? It has the highest possible endorsement; from Physicians as to healthfulness; from Cooking Experts as to superiority; from housekeepers as to economy. Use COTTOLENE and stick to it.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

THE ARMENIAN COMMISSION.

President Cleveland Refused to be Hoodwinked by the Sultan.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—The Westminster Gazette commenting upon the dispatch to the Daily News from Constantinople saying that the sultan invited President Cleveland to send a delegate with the Armenian commission, and upon the Advertiser's Constantinople dispatch saying that President Cleveland had declined to do so, and that Turkey, in consequence, had requested England to nominate a consul to accompany the Turkish commission, remarks that the invitation of the sultan "looks like pure doggery, and President Cleveland properly refused to be hoodwinked by the sultan's professions of confidence in the upright character of the American diplomats.

"We may regret that circumstances make it impossible to intervene. At the same time, had President Cleveland complied, the susceptibilities of certain great powers might have been touched, and there is no doubt that a consideration of the feelings of Great Britain influenced President Cleveland's action.

TWO BANKS CONSOLIDATED.

The Helena National and the First National Have Been United.

HELENA, Mont., Dec. 7.—The First National and the Helena National banks have consolidated and the new bank will take the name of the First. The First is the great bank that has given Montana prominence in the financial world but the panic caught it and for a few weeks it was closed. It reopened under agreement with depositors to take deferred certificates.

Under the terms of the consolidation the capital stock of the First National will be $800,000 and the undivided profits $200,000. The general balances of the new institution will be little less than $5,000,000. Ex-Governor Hauser will continue to be president, Hon. D. Edgerton will be vice president and general manager, and George F. Cope, cashier.

FORGED BONDS FLOATED.

Bogus American School Bonds Placed in Ireland and London.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—A telegram received here from Belfast says that $30,000 of American school bonds have been placed in Ireland, and that $150,000 of the same securities have been placed in London during the last ten years. A large amount of these securities are believed to have been forged; but the exact proportion is not yet known.

The work of placing these alleged forged securities is said to have been done by a member of an American banking house. One of the partners of this concern is reported to have absconded. The names of the parties concerned are not yet obtainable.

NEW WISCONSIN ROAD.

Road from Duluth and Superior to Lake Michigan's Shore.

SHEBOYGAN, Wis., Dec. 7.—Two weeks ago the Sheboyganer announced that it had information that a new railroad company was being formed to build a railroad from Duluth and Superior to the shore of Lake Michigan.

The Sheboyganer says today: An application will be made at Madison tomorrow for a charter for the new road. In its application the name of the company is the Superior Eastern & Southern Railway company. Its capital is placed at $3,000,000, and its incorporators are Mayor Frank Geele, of Sheboygan; J. D. Cameron, a well-known railroad man of Chicago, and John Hunery, state treasurer of Wisconsin. An election of officers will be held here tomorrow.

The Western Union Appeal.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 7.—The Western Union Telegraph company has appealed from the decision of the United States court for the southern district of California in the case af the Western Union Telegraph company against the Postal Telegraph company. The suit was decided in favor of the Postal in the lower court. It involves the construction of the act of congress by which the Atlantic & Pacific railroad received its franchises. The railway tried to grant its exclusive rights to the Western Union company but the court held that the Postal has equal rights.

Mistaken For a Deer.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Dec. 7.—News reached here last night from Georgetown that twenty miles west of that place, Young Hardeman, son of Gen. Hardeman, of Austin, with a Mr. Tibler, was hunting. They became separated, and Mr. Tibler, mistaking his companion for a deer through the brush, fired and killed him instantly.

THE ANTI-TOXINE REMEDY.

Report on the New Diphtheria Cure is of a Favorable Character.

WASHINGTON, Dec, 7.—Of particular interest at this time is report made to Surgeon General Wyman by Dr. J. J. Kinyoun, the marine hospital surgeon who, at the invitation of Professor Roux investigated the methods employed at the Pasteur institution, Paris, in the preparation of the new diphtheria cure.

Dr. Kinyoun says that he had seen sufficient to enable him to intelligently estimate the value of the discovery. There is, he says, still more to be said in its favor than was claimed for it by Professor Roux on the subject before the international congress of hygiene and demography, held at Buda Pest in September.

The report gives the steps necessary in the preparation of the serum antitoxine, which includes, first, the preparation of the toxines of diphtheria; second, the immunization of animals; third, preservation of and conservation of the serum. The manner of producing immunity in the animal may, the report says, can be performed in one or two ways—by injections of the tox ines or by innoculations of the bacilli.

The former method has been found to be the best and at present is the only one in use. In the experiments of Professor Roux and Dr. Martin, animals of all kinds were used, but now they use the horse as it has been found to be the most satisfactory. It stands the process of immunization better and gives a serum stronger than any other large animal, that is, in the same length of time, besides furnishing a larger amount of serum.

Of the whole number of cases which came under Dr. Kinyoun's observation (eighty-two), three died, about 8 per cent. Statistics show that there has been a gradual diminution of mortality since last May. The report continuing says: "The efficacy of the serum is better shown in the trachetomies than in all others. The mortality under the usual conditions has been, from 1889 to 1894, something frightful to contemplate, fully 35 per cent of the little patients having succumbed. Since the commencement of the serum treatment the death rate has been lowered to less than 17 per cent.

Unfortunately the immunity is not of long duration. The longest time in which it is thought to be protective is six weeks, one injection, from ten to twenty, being sufficient. The future possibilities in this condition cannot be over estimated, as we have in the serum the almost absolute preventive of the epidemics of diphtheria.

MARRIAGE IN A JAIL.

A Pretty Girl Married to a Man Arrested for Robbery.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 7.—In the county jail yesterday with the prisoners in the surrounding cells for witnesses and Justice Krueger for the officiating clergyman, pretty Minnie Brown, aged 16, was married to William Huke, who had been arrested for robbery.

They had been friends from childhood, and when young Huke was arrested a few days ago, charged with grand larceny, she refused to believe he was guilty. To emphasize her confidence in her lover, she prevailed upon her mother to get a license for her. Mrs. Brown finally consented, and the ceremony was performed in the jail. The evidence against Huke is strong and he will likely go to the penitentiary.

Governor Abbett's Funeral.

JERSEY CITY, Dec. 7.—The remains of the late Judge Leon Abbett were removed at 9:30 this morning from the family residence on Montgomery street to Greenwood cemetery. Only the members of the family and a few intimate friends of Judge Abbett accompanied the remains to the cemetery. The funeral service was held last night at the house, Rev. George S. Bennett, of Grace Episcopal church, officiating.

Suit Over a Mine.

DENVER, Dec. 7.—Ex-United States Senator Stephen Dorsey has brought suit in the district court against the heirs of the late Senator Plumb, of Kansas, to compel them to place the title of the Chicago mine in Clear Creek county in the name of the plaintiff. Dorsey said he advanced the money to purchase the property, and until recently supposed that he was the undisputed owner.

Beer Trust to Dissolve.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—Action was taken last evening, dissolving the Chicago & Milwaukee Brewers' association, or beer trust. A war of competition probably will be inaugurated which will cheapen prices and force smaller manufacturers from the field. The disruption was due to several causes, the principal one being that all brewers would not come into the combine.

Contest of Endurance.

DENVER, Dec. 7.—Sixteen men are engaged in this city upon a contest of endurance, a prize of $500 being offered to the one who keeps awake the whole week. The men are in a large room under the eye of watchers. When a contestant is seen to doze a bell is struck. If he fails to wake up he is counted out.

WAR WITH GUATEMALA

Mexico Is Given Cause for Entering Into a Conflict Owing to a Serious Outrage.

A Mexican Colonel Assassinated by Guatemalans and two Assaults Made on the Mexican Troops.

Mexico Will at Once Demand Reparation in a Satisfactory Manner For the Great Outrage.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 7.—The latest reports from the Guatemala frontier are of a more serious character than any which have as yet reached this capital. It is claimed assassination has been made by the Guatemalans of a Mexican colonel, member of the staff of Gen. Lullane, and from unofficial sources it is reported that a company of the Nineteenth battalion of the Mexican forces have had two skirmishes with a force of 400 Guatemalan guerrilas.

The first assault on the Mexican troops was harmless, but the second resulted in the death of two Mexican soldiers. The Guatemalans retreated hastily, and it is not known that they suffered any damage. This particular body of mounted Guatemalans is reported as still hovering about the vicinity of the Mexican troops, but it is believed that after making the attack, they retired to the Guatemalan side of the international line.

Should official information confirm these reports it is highly probable the Mexican government will at once demand reparation in a satisfactory manner for the outrage.

SEAL AND SALMON FISHERIES.

Canadian Minister of Marine and Fisheries Visits Vancouver.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Dec. 7.—Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper, Canadian minister of marine and fisheries, arrived here today. He says his mission is practically connected with the sealing and salmon fisheries. For some time past he has been in correspondence with the sealers regarding the amount of award as compensation for the seizures by the American government, but no satisfactory results have been arrived, so he decided to come and meet the sealers personally.

Mr. Tupper himself considers the award a fair one, but he may change his opinion when he learns further details. He will presently inspect the salmon canneries on the Frazer river and meet the canners to discuss the regulations, and especially the vexed question regarding the disposal of offal.

Another important matter to engage his attention will be to investigate the charges made that American vessels are poaching off the halibut banks in Canadian waters. The question of dyking the Frazer will also be discussed by him.

CALLS IT AN ABSURDITY.

Prof. Barnard on the Chicago Idea of a Huge Telescope.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 7.—Professor E. G. Barnard, of the Lick observatory, arrived here last night. He does not think much of the scheme of a Chicago man for building an enormous telescope near San Diego, which is to have a glass greater than any other in the world. The proposition is, he says, to make it something like the eye of a fly, so as to reflect to a common center, but he says it is entirely impossible.

"This Chicago man is working on the wrong thing," said he. "What he wants is not a great glass of the kind proposed, but to do what has not been done—find a means of quieting the atmosphere. In other words, his proposition is an absurdity."

WILL RACE IN ENGLAND.

Dick Croker and the Dwyers to Transfer Their Racing Interests.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—The World today says: Richard Croker and M. F. Dwyer are contemplating the transfer of their racing interests to England, Mr. Croker has had the matter under consideration for some time.

"Croker and I think racing will not amount to much in this country," Dwyer is quoted as saying, "and as he is anxious to go to England, we think we may make the experiment."

Jockey Sims who has been the Croker-Dwyer rider for two seasons, has been told that he might have to go to England next season. It is not probable that a decision to go would have been reached if the anti-gambling amendment to the constitution had been defeated.

Brooklyn Tabernacle Sale.

BROOKLYN, Dec. 7.—The Brooklyn Tabernacle property in Clinton, Greene and Waverley avenues, was last night sold under foreclosure proceedings. Charles T. Wills, who held a second mortgage on the property, bid $10,000 over and above the amount due to Russell Sage on the first mortgage. As the amount due Mr. Sage is $61,760, Mr. Wills gets the big plot for about $73,000, which is $17,000 less than it cost the Tabernacle.

Cattle Thieves Captured.

HENNESSEY, O. T., Dec. 7.—The posse of farmers who have been following the band of horse and cattle thieves near the Gloss mountains, in Cheyenne and Arapahoe counties, seventy miles west of here, captured three of the thieves and drove the rest away, after wounding several of them. They also recovered several of the stolen cattle and horses. The outlaws will be turned over to the authorities.

WEST DULUTH ITEMS.

West Duluthians Are Not Musical, as the Attendance at the Chamber Concert Would Indicate.

Concert Was Excellent and Deserved the Best Patronage That West Duluthians Could Have Given.

Work of Repairing the Sawmills for Next Year's Cut Has Bugun—An Oneota Concert.

Are the West Duluth people shy of funds, do they not appreciate concert music or are they afraid of water are probably the three leading questions which presented themselves to those taking part in the Chamber Concert company as they faced an audience of about fifty people at Great Eastern hall last evening. Whatever the cause the fact was made public last evening that he who brings a first class enterminment to West Duluth will find the venture a losing one at least from a financial standpoint.

The concert was excellent. Nicholas Murphy quite captured the West Duluthians, his fine barytone voice being heard with great pleasure. George Tyler, the tenor, was well received and his tenor solo was appreciated. Mrs. Derwin-Aspinwall was in excellent voice and sang finely. Mrs. Burt Holcomb was also well received, sharing in the applause of the evening. Miss Zela Hurd sustained her fine reputation as a reader, giving several selections. Miss Mackey was unable to be present through illness and Mrs. Loman supplied her part in the accompaniments.

Sawmill Repairing.

The sawmills are beginning to send in their repair work and the Marinette shops, which do most of such work at the head of the lakes, report a consequent increase in business. Superintendent Pake, of the Mitchell & McClure mill, says that their repairs will be small this year with the exception of the refuse burner. This high stack of iron will be entirely rebuilt, that is fifty feet from the top. The fire brick lining inside will be carried up twenty-five feet higher than before and the whole stack so repaired as to prevent future burning out if possible.

Concert at Oneota.

This evening at the M. E. church of Oneota, the Ladies' Aid society will give an entertainment under the direction of Mrs. F. B. George of Duluth, assisted by members of the Bohemian club, the mandolin club and Miss Carrie Ulamith. The entertainment promises to be a very successful one.

Had Wandered Away.

Mrs. Nellis, living on Seventieth avenue west was taken ill sometime ago and in a state of mental abberration wandered away from home. Yesterday she was brought back to West Duluth by a man from Carleton who said she was found up there and could not account for her presence at that place.

RED LAKE RESERVATION BILL.

Senator Washburn Will Wait Until He Sees Senator Davis.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—[Special to The Herald.]—Senator Washburn and Representative Baldwin had a talk today about calling up Baldwin's Chippewa pine land bill, now pending in the senate. Mr. Washburn appears to favor its passage but will not act upon it until Senator Davis, who opposed it at the last session, returns to Washington.

MOTHERS

and those about to become mothers, should know that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription robs childbirth of its torture, terrors and dangers to both mother and child, by aiding nature in preparing the system for parturition. Thereby "labor" and the period of confinement is greatly shortened. It also promotes an abundant secretion of nourishment for the child.

South Bend, Pacific Co., Wash.
DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.:

Dear Sir—I began taking your "Favorite Prescription" the first month of pregnancy, and have continued taking it since confinement. I did not experience the nausea or any of the ailments due to pregnancy, after I began taking your "Prescription." I was only in labor a short time, and the physician said I got along unusually well.

MRS. BAKER.

We think it saved me a great deal of suffering. I was troubled a great deal with leucorrhea also, and it has done a world of good for me. Sincerely yours,

Gossip.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, Room 107, Chamber of Commerce.

A rehash of some favorable news regarding the Argentine crop sent out from Washington with the official stamp of the department of agriculture on it caused a weak and lower market the first hour or so today. This same stuff was printed in the newspapers six weeks ago. The big traders took all the offerings of long and short stuff thrown over by weak holders and when the pressure to sell out was removed the market bounded back quickly. Both the opening and closing cables were weak at ½ to ¾d lower. Receipts in the Northwest were heavy, 716 car loads, while the clearances aggregated 240,000 bus from the Atlantic coast. Unfavorable reports continue to come in from the growing winter wheat crop. We think wheat is a buy for a quick turn of 2 or 3c.

Corn and oats active and higher on lighter receipts and strong advices from abroad. There will be some lively times in corn within the next two weeks. Provisions featureless.

The Germ Theory.

The purchaser of a tin bracket lamp, which leaked and filled the attic where it was placed with the unpoetic odor of kerosene, took it back to the housekeeping department of the big store whence it had come. "We can't take this back," said the unscientific clerk. "We couldn't sell it again. Customers would be afraid of germs." He was overruled, but his idea of germs in kerosene and tin shows how far the bacillus theory spreads.—Boston Transcript.

THE TINY WHITEBAIT.

Only of Late Years Have They Appeared Upon the Tables of Our Hotels.

It is only of late years that "whitebait" have appeared on the menus at our leading restaurants, or that the tiny fish answering to that appellation could be bought in our markets. For many years we regarded them as distinctly an English dish and made no effort to obtain their equivalent. Every one knows the genuine whitebait of England, which are born and bred and caught in the Thames and are supposed to obtain their peculiarly delicious flavor from London mud and refuse, but whether they are the young of herring, as some people suppose, or whether they are a lilliputian variety of the finny tribe in themselves, no one seems exactly to know.

In this country almost any young fish that are from 1 to 1½ inches in length and are caught in quantities are sold in the markets nowadays as whitebait and are cooked a l'Anglais and served up hot and crisp with thin slices of brown bread and butter, making a delicious dish, whatever they are. The English recipe for cooking whitebait commands that they should be drained on a clean napkin, thoroughly absorbing all the water; then roll them in flour and afterward drop them in some very hot fat. As soon as they become crisp drain them on a sieve, and after drying them a minute or two before the fire sprinkle on them a little salt and send them to the table to be served with cut quarters of lemon, cayenne pepper and slices of thinly cut brown bread and butter.—New York Advertiser.

Overparticular.

Cleanliness is a virtue; but, like other virtues, it may be carried to a vicious excess. So it happened with an old fisherman in Nartle, Devon, who made it one of the chief ends of his life to keep his boat immaculate.

On one occasion a gentleman had hired him to take himself and a young lady out for an afternoon's fishing. The boat could not be brought near enough to the shore for them to step in, so the old sailor removed his shoes and stockings, and taking the young lady in his arms was about to deposit her on board when he caught sight of some mud on her pretty pair of boots.

Instantly he stooped and dipped both her feet up to the ankles in the sea, paddling them back and forward to remove the mud, in spite of the protests of the owner. His only remark as he finally put her on board was:

"Bless yer, miss, salt water won't give yer the snuffles."—Youth's Companion.

The Weather.

U. S. WEATHER BUREAU. DULUTH, MINN., Dec. 7.—The pressure is lowest in Southeast Montana and has increased decidedly, with a cold wave in Alberta.

The weather is much warmer and cloudy or showery in the lake regions and central valleys. It is generally fair and cooler in the Western states, except snows in Montana, and warmer in Southern Montana and Wyoming.

Duluth temperature at 7 a. m. today, 39 degrees; maximum yesterday, 39 degrees; minimum yesterday, 30 degrees; precipitation during twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m. today, .34 of an inch.

DULUTH, Dec. 7.—Local forecast for Duluth and vicinity till 8 p. m. tomorrow: Occasional light showers today and tonight; probably snow Saturday; colder Saturday morning and afternoon; light easterly winds, becoming northwest by Saturday morning.

JAMES KENEALY,
Local Forecast Official.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Dec. 7.—Navigation closed. Report of depth of water in canal discontinued for the season.

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 7.—Observer, Duluth: Hoist cold wave signal. Temperature will fall twenty-five degrees by Saturday morning.
MOORE.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—Forecast till 8 p. m. tomorrow: For Wisconsin: Showers today and tonight, much colder tonight with cold wave in west half tonight; Saturday fair and much colder; southeasterly winds shifting to northwesterly Saturday. For Minnesota: Fair and cold wave tonight; Saturday fair and colder; winds hifting to northwesterly tonight.

The New Diphtheria Cure.

Great interest is being taken in the experiments which are being made with the anti-toxine remedy for diphtheria. All the reports agree that the results so far have been highly satisfactory and that the claims made for this wonderful cure have been fully sustained. A few day ago The Herald published a dispatch telling about successful experiments made in Kansas City with the new remedy, and a Washington dispatch today gives a summary of a report made to Surgeon General Wyman by a marine hospital surgeon who investigated the methods employed at the Pasteur institute in Paris in the preparation of the new cure. The report testifies to the efficacy of the remedy, the reduction in the mortality, which has been frightful under the usual conditions, being very great.

A consignment of the anti-toxine has been received at Milwaukee and it is to be tested there under the auspices of the health department. There is no doubt the test will be successful. Dr. Louis Fischer, of New York, one of the first physicians in the United States to interest himself in Dr. Behning's discovery, announces that he has used the anti-toxine in thirty-four cases of diphtheria, some of which were malignant. Of these cases thirty-three recovered. The child that died was almost at the point of death when the anti-toxine was injected into its system, but the remedy had power enough to prolong its existence ten days. Other tests in New York, as well as those in Paris, Berlin and other cities have been very successful. Diphtheria is of all ordinary diseases the most dreaded by all physicians on account of its obstinacy, particularly in regard to the liability of the poison to at any time cause death by its action upon the heart. It is estimated that the usual mortality from the disease is nearly 50 per cent. Under the treatment with anti-toxine the mortality has been reduced to from 20 to 30 per cent, and in some experiments the mortality has been as low as 7.6 per cent. This great reduction in the death rate leads to the hope that the dread disease may be eventually stamped out wherever it appears, and that it may thus be robbed of much of its terror.

In view of the success which has attended the experiments elsewhere, and of the demonstrated fact that the treatment is founded upon thoroughly scientific principles, the introduction of this great remedy at an early date in Duluth may properly be anticipated.

British Encroachments.

A remarkable state of affairs in South American international relations is disclosed by an article in the December number of the Review of Reviews. It has been known for years that Great Britain has persistently encroached on territory belonging to the little republic of Venezuela, but few Americans have been award of the extent of these encroachments. Dr. Shaw asserts in this article that England is now occupying a vast region which only a few years ago she acknowledged to belong to Venezuela, and that in fact she has no lawful claim to any territory whatever west of the Essequibo river, although she has acquired the coast line as far west as the Orinoco.

The editor's charges seem to be supported by the statements of reliable English publications; the Cyclopedia of Geography, for example, computed the area of British Guiana a few years ago as 50,000 square miles, while the present area is given as 109,000 square miles by all British statistical works, although there have been no cessions to England in that region.

As Great Britain has refused arbitration of the points in dispute, the Review of Reviews advocates the appointment of a joint commission by the United States, Mexico, and the South American republics to investigate Venezuela's claims, that such as may appear well founded be sustained by the united American powers against England.

A Boom For Reed.

A Washington dispatch says that it is very probable that, when the roll of the next Republican national convention is called, Pennsylvania will be found casting her sixty-four votes for Thomas B. Reed. Her first vote will be, in all probability, a complimentary one for Governor Hastings, but the next ballot will mean business. When Senator Cameron returned to Washington just before the reassembling of congress, he was interviewed and very frankly expressed his opinion of the availability of Mr. Reed for the nomination.

Mr. Quay, however, preserved his usual silence until Wednesday last, when a member of the Pennsylvania delegation, who was anxious to get into the right procession, inquired of Quay what the Keystone state might be expected to do at the next national convention. Thereupon Quay, casting aside his reticence, declared that he was for Reed; that he believed that Reed could be nominated and elected, and that, so far as he and Senator Cameron were concerned, Pennsylvania would be for the man from Maine.

This announcement will give added strength to the Maine man's candidacy for the presidential nomination. That he will go into the national convention with a large following is now assured. The entire delegations from the New England states will be solidly for him, while the New York Republicans, if they decide not to present Governor Morton's name, will probably be found in the Reed column. The ex-speaker has many friends in Minnesota who will neglect no opportunity to send a Reed delegation from this state.

While Governor McKinley has many admirers, there is no disguising the fact that the extreme protection ideas which he entertains and which were embodied in what is known as the McKinley tariff law are not shared by the great mass of the Republican voters, especially in the West. For this reason they do not consider Governor McKinley as strong a candidate as others who could be named. Mr. Reed has been more conservative on the tariff question, and this fact gives him strength in many quarters.

Miss Anna Cabot Lowell, who recently died at Roxbury, Mass., at the age of 86 years, was connected with a distinguished family. Her grandfather was John Lowell, first judge of the United States district court for Massachusetts, appointed by President Washington; her father was John Lowell, who founded the Boston Athenaeum; her uncle was Francis Cabot Lowell, a great manufacturer, after whom the city of Lowell was named; her brother, John Amory Lowell, was manager of the Lowell institute, and induced Agassiz to come to this country, and James Russell Lowell, poet, patriot and scholar, was her cousin.

The Anoka Union says: "The latest candidate mentioned for United States senator is Joseph H. Wheelock of the Pioneer Press. Mr. Wheelock would made a good deal better senator than many who have been mentioned." There is no doubt on this point. If Illinois should elect Joseph Medill and Minnesota should elect Joseph Wheelock, the United States senate would get an addition of brains and ability that needs very much.

Some offenders against ordinary decency cannot be reached until they are made to feel. The St. Louis Star-Sayings thinks that the whipping-post and cat-o-nine-tails is the proper corrective for the low-bred ass who spits upon a street car floor.

A high honor has been conferred upon Senator Davis. He has been invited to deliver the principal address at the unveiling of the statue of Daniel Webster, in Memorial hall of the capitol at Washington. It will undoubtedly be a scholarly and eloquent address.

The Russian emperor has included in his proclamation of amnesty the Lutheran clergymen of the Baltic provinces. This is probably due to the influence of his bride, who was a Lutheran until recently.

The New York banks have joined in the appointment of a "protection against crime committee." This is the result of the recent defalcations, but it looks like locking the stable door after the horse has been stolen.

The weather bureau predicts a cold wave. This is to remind us that winter is actually here, even if the present springlike weather does not bear that appearance.

Gen. Daniel E. Sickles may return to congress. His successful opponent at the recent election has died, and Gen. Sickles will probably again be a candidate at the special election. He was beaten last month by a narrow margin and will probably win this time.

Dr. P. J. Gibbons, the electrocuted revivifier, of New York, wants a law passed which will allow a criminal to elect whether or no an attempt shall be made to revivify him, when, in case of success, his sentence shall be commuted to life imprisonment.

Christmas Philosophy.

He is the wisest man who keeps the heart of a boy.
Let him labor and plan, but hold to his power for joy.
Let him smile at his pain and have in his heart no guile,
For the heart of a boy is gain and the lips were made to smile.

What shall the long years give us that shall not pass away?
Wealth and honors shall leave us—they are ours but for a day.
Peril and care and trouble, they shall not always annoy:
We shall count the good things double if we have the heart of a boy.

Hang up the stocking of faith and it shall be filled with cheer,
Though grief and its wraith attend us through every month of the year.
Take the world as it comes and give it as good as it brings.
Welcome the years with drums and the heart of a boy that sings.

The wrecks of life are a doll with the sawdust gone from her legs.
A Punch with nose smashed in and a Judy off her pegs.
What of the hobbies we rode in the days that are far away?
The bugle-blast of a boy in the wantonness of play.

Come, then Nero, and fiddle while your Rome goes down in a blaze.
Draw your pleasantest pictures from the old-time happy days.
Sit in memory's ashes, in the wreck of your broken toys,
And laugh that you're living and loving, with the heart of one of the boys.

—I. M. Gregory in the Christmas Judge.

And the Bride Falls in a Faint.

Kansas City Journal: There is doubtless a great deal of fun in a charivari, up to the time of the shooting.

Gum Chewing a Bar.

Albany Argus: Mrs. Waite says that no woman who chews gum is mentally qualified to vote. That settles female suffrage in this country.

A Good Idea.

Cincinnati Times-Star: Perhaps as a matter of international courtesy Field Marshal Yamagata would send over a detail of Japs to capture the Cook banditi.

Give Reed a Chance.

Chicago Times: There is a theory that reputation for wit is a dangerous thing to a politician, but the growing popularity of Tom Reed seems to suggest that after four years of Harrison and eight of Cleveland the people are thinking of trying a president who has some sense of humor.

Where Space is Valuable.

Kansas City Journal: The Rhode Island farmer who sent President Cleveland a large turkey for Thanksgiving has accomplished two objects. He has gratified an excusable vanity, and he has made more room in Rhode Island.

McKinley on Silver.

Leon, Iowa, Reporter: The open letter which Wharton Barker, of Philadelphia, has just published asking McKinley to define his views on the currency is likely to remain open a long time before McKinley answers it. Indeed, Mr. Barker ought to have known that it is distressingly impolite to an Ohio man this long before the cat is ready to jump.

Obituary Poetry.

Keokuk Gate City: Most obituary poetry is an humiliation. The dead cannot defend themselves against it and their friends hate to seem ungracious to well meaning, but foolish poet friends, and so the newspapers should protect the living and the dead by throwing obituary poetry into the waste basket.

A Window.

A white curtain is obscuring from view a Christmas window under course of construction at Howard & Haynie's that will be a great treat for the children. The concern is going to great trouble and expense to make a new pleasure for the little ones. They have also arranged with Morrison & Smith to furnish a large quantity of candy to be sold in the store the last week previous to Christmas.

AMUSEMENTS.

Ida Van Cortland.

Ida Van Cortland and her fine support will open a two weeks' engagement at the Temple Opera house, commencing Monday, Dec. 10, in Wilkie Collins' famous household story, "The New Magdalen." While the repertoire for the engagement will be of choice and best plays, varying from tragedy to comedy, with interspersed music, singing and dancing, all their work is beautified by Myer's great calcium effects, which will be brought out in all its fine shadings when well-known dramatists' creations such as Wilkie Collins' "New Magdalen," D'Ennery's "Two Orphans," Gilbert's "Pygmalion and Galatea," Merrivale's "Forget Me Not" and other well-known plays by popular authors will be given. Popular prices will prevail throughout the entire engagement.

Procathedral Musicale.

The first of a series of musicales to be given by the procathedral choir this winter was held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Coleman Naughton, 120 West Third street, last evening and was well attended. The program rendered was highly pleasing and artistic. The cathedral quartet sang several fine selections. Miss Lynn gave a piano solo and vocal numbers were sung by Miss Donovan, Miss Kennedy, Miss Lautenschlager, Miss McDonald and Messrs. Schultz, and J. D. Sattler. Mr. Sattler and Mr. Schultz sang a duet and Messrs. Medley and Carlson gave a banjo and guitar duet. Joseph McKinnon recited.

STOCK MARKET REPORT.

T. W. Hugo's Committee Will Submit the Information Obtained.

At the chamber of commerce meeting tomorrow President-elect Hugo will take the office and will announce the committees for the coming meeting.

The committee appointed some time ago to investigate the opportunity for establishing Duluth as a market for the receipt and handling of live stock will probably be presented tomorrow. T. W. Hugo of the committee has taken an active interest in gathering all the facts and figures possible. He consulted vessel men as to the facilities for shipping and the railroads were written to for rates and expressions regarding the feasibility of the idea. All the information gathered will be embodied in the report.

The idea is considered feasible by many well informed men. Thousands of cattle are shipped each year over the Northern Pacific and Great Northern roads through St. Paul and Minneapolis. Last fall the Northern Pacific road was running five stock trains daily over its road from Montana, and the Great Northern about an equal number. It is to divert a portion of this traffic that the committee are seeking.

Rear End Cable Broke.

The rear end cable on the incline cars which steadies them broke last evening and was badly tangled and twisted before the car was stopped. The accident in no way affected the safety of the car but it frightened some people pretty badly for a time. The cable had to be removed and in the meantime the incline was shut down.

About twenty friends were present and congratulated and made merry with Mr. and Mrs. McGhie, who are still hale and hearty. They came here from Scotland about three years ago.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury,

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucuous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. PLUNGED INTO THE SLIP.

A Canine Which Ought to Be Initiated Into the Suicide Club.

A story is told, and it is vouched for by a number of reputable witnesses who stake their reputations for veracity upon its absolute truthfulness, of an attempt at suicide which is almost pathetic. The hero of the story is a large, affectionate, sensitive dog, antecedents and pedigree unknown. The dog was left a few nights ago on one of the Lake Superior and Lake Michigan line boats which is wintering in Duluth. Its only companion was a watchman, against whom for some reason the dog had a deep-seated antipathy.

The dog spent a large portion of the night running around the boat seeking other company than that of the objectionable watchman. Finally finding its search in vain, the poor beast gave it up and retiring to a corner as far away from the watchman as possible, it lay down and brooded over its sorrows, casting frequent resentful glances at its uncongenial companion, the watchman. In a few moments, apparently, its mind was made up. The old, old question, "is life worth living?" was carefully weighed for and against, and the question decided in the negative.

If this poor beast with the bar sinister on his escutcheon could have read Bob Ingeroll's essay on suicide the die would have been cast earlier.

But cast it was, and the dog made up its canine mind to die. With a melancholy howl it ran to the side of the boat nearest the dock. Ice covered the water, and there was no escape from this mortal coil there. On the other side of the boat the ice was broken, and there the misanthropic canine ran.

With a look at the icy waters of the slip, and a farewell bay at the cold unconcerned moon, this sagacious beast jumped into the water. It was fished out a few minutes later by the watchman, a sadder, wiser, and repentant dog. For the waters of the slip, being icy as aforesaid, were cold, and all opinions coincide that warm water is the best to suicide in.

In the morning when the dog's friends appeared it was overwhelmed with delight, and its manner showed that it would never attempt to put an end to its life again.

Relief Committee Meeting.

The local relief committee met yesterday afternoon in the office of Chairman Gridley to discuss the situation. There are still in Duluth thirty-five families embracing 190 souls, and for their care the local committee has $1500 for use until January, when new funds from the state are confidently expected. The state commission will petition the legislature for an appropriation of $100,000 which there will probably be no difficulty in obtaining, to carry the sufferers through the winter. The money now on hand is rapidly diminishing and will probably be gone by Jan. 1.

SITUATION IS QUIET

Open Weather Is Responsible for a Decided Dullness in the Market for Laboring Men.

Large Numbers of Men Are Now in the City Without Work and Looking for It.

Some Reports of Rich Lands Which Are Coming from the Rainy Lake Gold Region.

The open labor situation has not been so dull in a long time as it is just at present, and the open weather, though pleasant enough to the man whose livelihood does not depend upon it, is entirely responsible for the scarcity of jobs. The town is filled with laborers for whom there is no labor. Many of the men who have been employed on the range are down looking for work which is unobtainable just at present.

The open weather in the woods makes it impossible to do any amount of work there, and consequently the employment agencies have no orders for woodsmen. There is plenty of work in the South on government and railroad contracts, but few of the men care to go so far for work. Many of them could not go if they wished on account of the item of railroad fare. The rain of last night has put work in the woods back at least a week wherever it extended.

Just as soon as the snow begins to fall and winter in the woods begins in earnest, however, this state of things will be ended, and there will be work in plenty for all who are willing and able. The cuts of the various lumber companies will be large this winter, and many men will be required for the work. All the standing timber scorched by the fires of the summer just passed must be cut this winter, or its value will be lost.

So when work once fairly begins in the woods there will be jobs in plenty for all the laborers in Duluth and a good many besides, and no man who is not afraid of work need let his family or himself go without bread and even an occasional piece of pie.

RAINY LAKE MATTERS.

Reports Which Prove the Permanency of the Gold Veins.

As an instance of the manner in which the veins in the Rainy Lake country widen as the shafts re sunk, showing their permanency, some extracts from a letter received by J. C. Foley, the purchaser of the Wiegand mine, from the man whom he left in charge of his property, are significant. Shaft No. 3, when Mr. Foley was on the ground, was seven feet down and the vein was two feet wide. Now, at fourteen feet, the vein is six feet, between two well defined walls. Shafts one and two have shown similar increases, and now at twelve and nineteen feet deep respectively the veins are six and five and a half feet wide.

All show more or less visible gold. Sinking is still rapidly going on. A blacksmith shop is being erected on the property, and preparations for the winter are rapidly going on. William Peters, formerly mill man for the Little American, an experienced miner of years of service in the gold mines of the West, lately paid a visit to Mr. Foley's property, and he says that the property is easily worth $75,000 at present. There is enough of it for two companies to work, and divided in that manner it would be worth more.

The new wagon route to Rainy Lake and Seine river and a string of freight wagons is on the road between Tower and the gold fields.

The Rainy Lake Journal of Nov. 29 says that Andy Lunn, proprietor of the Alberton hotel, has sent a crew out to begin work on the development of the Big Canada mine. A shaft of 100 feet will be sunk.

C. B. Morrison, an Appleton, Wis., capitalist, has lately secured several large properties in the Seine district. Thomas Bell and George Webster have given his agent a thirty-day option on an 80-acre tract for $5000. Messrs. Landon, Larkin and Fahey have sold their two-third interest in their Seine river property to the same party. Mr. Scott, of Rainy Lake City, owns a third interest which he will not sell. The surface rock on the property looks well and assays about $16 a ton.

Dan Mosher, owner of Seine river property, talked to the Rainy Lake Journal recently about his district. He said that the "richness of the Incas of South America, the wealth of old King Solomon and the fortune of Croesus won't be in it with the millionaires and nabobs that country will turn out in the near future."

William Blunt got in from the Seine on Friday, says the Journal. He is wildly wild over the prospects there, and swears the Wiegand and Mosher mines are so rich that it is actually possible to pound out $10 per day from quartz in an ordinary druggist's mortar.

The Hillyer property has been named the Lucky Born mine.

The Rainy Lake Journal says that deals are on foot which will result in giving Rainy Lake City electric lights and telephone.

THE SELECTION OF JURORS.

The Question Is Passed Upon by the State Supreme Court.

A St. Paul dispatch to The Herald yesterday announced that the supreme court has reversed the judgment of the Eleventh judicial district court in the case of the State of Minnesota vs. Anna Bresland, who was convicted of keeping an assignation house in Duluth and was sentenced to the state prison at Stillwater. A copy of the syllabus was received today and reads as follows:

"In the impaneling of a jury on the trial of an indictment charging the defendant with keeping a house of assignation, he challenged a juror for actual bias, and in examining the juror on the trial of the challenge, defendant's counsel admitted that defendant kept the house specified at the time charged, and asked the juror if he had heard any statement as to the character of the house from which he had formed an opinion as to its character. The trial court held the question incompetent. Held, error. The juror served, and it did not appear that the defendant exhausted his peremptory challenges. Held, such error was not without prejudice, that it prejudiced defendant in exercising a peremptory challenge, and even though he had no right to any such examination for the mere purpose of peremptory challenge, yet for the purpose for attempting to excuse such error, he must be considered as having a right to the benefit of this examination in exercising his peremptory challenge. State vs. Lawler, 28 Minnesota, 216, and State vs. Kluseman, 53 Minnesota, 541. On the trial of such indictment, held, evidence of the reputation of the house as a house of assignation is competent, at least in aid or corroboration of other evidence. Judgment reversed."

Warning to Expectant MOTHERS.

Many internal remedies are being skillfully and glibly advertised, professing to Shorten Labor, Lessen Pains of Child-birth, etc., and with wonderful inconsistency forget late menstruation. Common sense should teach any woman that a preparation adapted for MENSTRUAL DISORDERS will not prepare the system for Child-birth; on the contrary, internal remedies at this time may imperil her life. We earnestly say BEWARE of all such; they cannot, at this critical period, do any possible good, and their use may prove fatal. It is only by persistent EXTERNAL treatment while enceinte, thus relaxing and softening all the parts, that the hour of Child-birth is robbed of its terror; and no remedy on earth, does this but "MOTHER'S FRIEND." HARBOR COMMISSION

Details of the Report and Recommendations for the Harbor Made to the War Department.

Other Engineers Had Plans Prepared, but Maj. Sears', When Submitted, Was Unanimously Adopted.

Channel Along the Front of Minnesota Point Is Provided For--Full Plans and Estimates.

The department at Washington having given out the report of the harbor commission on the Duluth and Superior harbors as given in last night's Herald, Maj. Sears is now at liberty to make the details public. The commission consisted of Col. Poe, of Detroit; Maj. Gregory, of Milwaukee, and Maj. Sears, of Duluth. They met in Duluth last fall and formulated a plan and project. The other engineers came with plans all prepared but Maj. Sears also had one of his own and when his was submitted it was unanimously adopted.

The report informs the war department that it considered only the waters within the present city limits. Parties interested in New Duluth wanted the report to cover the territory which will be in the city after Jan. 1, 1895, but the commission decided not to.

The project for each harbor—Duluth and Superior—is outlined, and estimates are given as to the amount of dredging to be done and the cost. For Duluth there are ten subdivisions noted as follows:

Estimates for Duluth.

First. Dredging the canal to 200 width and twenty-three feet depth, to enable boats loaded to twenty feet to enter in a heavy sea. Estimated cost, $2100.

Second. Deepening the harbor basin, covering about 104 acres to twenty feet. Estimated cost, $119,525.

Third. Widening the Rice's point channel to 500 feet and deepening to twenty feet. Estimated cost, $262,767.

Fourth. Creation of basins common to both Duluth and Superior at the "Gate" by dredging to twenty feet at the interior angles formed by the crossing of the present channels. Estimated cost, $76,416.

Fifth. Widening the channel west of Rice's Point on the northerly shore of St. Louis bay to Grassy Point, to 400 feet. Estimated cost, $388,570.

Sixth. Dredging a channel 150 feet wide and twenty feet deep in the St. Louis river from Grassy Point to the city limits. Estimated cost, $139,920.

Seventh. Dredging a channel 3600 feet long, 200 feet wide and twenty feet deep from the bend in the main channel above the Northern Pacific bridge northerly to the dock line opposite Twenty-first avenue west to give access to the city docks. Estimated cost, $83,449.

Eighth. If it becomes advisable to permit the Northern Pacific bridge to be remodeled by straightening and making double tracked with one central draw in place of the present on the areas above and below to be dredged to twenty feet. Estimated cost, $220,631.

Ninth. Dredging a channel 200 feet wide and 20 feet deep along the Minnesota Point harbor line, from the harbor basin in Duluth to the basin inside the Superior entrance. Estimated cost, $452,623.

Tenth. Dredging to twenty feet the triangle to the Duluth entrance to this Minnesota Point channel. Estimated cost, $60,666.

The total cost for all Duluth is $1,806,667. For Superior the project and estimates are as follows:

The Superior Estimates.

First. Superior entrance to be dredged to 23 feet and 250 feet wide. Estimated cost, $15,167.

Second—Dredging harbor basin of 93 acres within the Superior bay to 20 feet to give general access to all channels. Estimated cost, $314,414.

Third. Dredging a channel 400 feet wide and 20 feet deep, from the basin to the "gate," along the Superior dock line. Estimated cost, $528,724.

Fourth. Widening to 400 feet and deepening to twenty feet of channel from the "gate" along the southerly side of St. Louis bay to the intersection at Grassy Point with the northerly channel. Estimated cost, $263,083.

Fifth. Deeping the channel at interior angles near the "gate." Estimated cost, $16,333.

Sixth. Dredging channel 400 feet and twenty feet depth from the barbor basin at Superior entry into Allouez for 4500 feet. Estimated cost, $186,165.

The total for Superior is $1,323,886 and the grand total, $3,130,553.

The fact is presented that if the appropriation can be made continuous and the whole contract let at once a great saving can be made, Maj. Sears individual opinion is that he could save 25 per cent. The dredging of the canal and entry will necessitate the putting in of new piers, an expense not reckoned in the report.

THE RULE STILL GOES.

Board of Trade Refused to Abolish the One Cent Commission.

The commission rule of the board of trade still holds but it had a close call. The matter came before the board this morning on a motion to abolish the rule. The board of directors recommended the adoption of the motion. When the matter came to a vote thirty votes were cast for and eighteen against the motion. A two-thirds vote or thirty-two was required to carry the motion and it was consequently lost. A demand will undoubtedly now be made that the rule be strictly enforced.

CASE KNOCKED OUT.

A. L. Newton's Grubbing Contract Was a Decidedly One Sided Affair.

The calendar of court cases in district court is rapidly melting away. The case of A. L. Newton against the Highland Improvement company for $3000 on a grubbing contract was apparently a somewhat complicated one, there being several claims and counterclaims, but on coming to trial the case fell to pieces, resulting in a victory for the Highland Improvement company.

WHY IT WAS UNFINISHED.

She Explained the Delay, and He Was Made Right.

Both were young, and she was fair. He had been calling on her seven evenings and one afternoon a week for six months. Still nothing was settled, although he was in the habit of lingering before jewelers' show windows and asking every young married man of his acquaintance if it really did not cost as much to keep one as two. As for her, she was spending 16 hours a day over the embroidering of table linen, which, instead of dedicating to the family use, she carefully locked away as soon as finished. Meanwhile the sister next in succession was clamoring for the reversion of the parlor, and the younger brothers sat in the seat of the scornful.

One evening he noticed an unusual abstraction in her manner.

"You are not offended with me?" he asked. "I know I didn't get here until 12 minutes past 8, but the car stopped in the tunnel and"—

"Offended? Not at all," and she gazed dreamily into the fire.

"Perhaps you are ill, then. You know you had lost a pound and a half last time we were weighed, and you haven't eaten all the candy I brought yet. You must be very careful of your health."

The absent gaze wandered over his head. "I am quite well, thank you, only a little thoughtful. The serious problems of life must sometimes present themselves to one's mind."

"You can't decide whether to have a jacket or a cape? Or is it whether to have your photographs profile or three-quarter face?"

"Nothing so frivolous! This is really something important."

"You—you don't think of parting your hair, do you? Or is it possible that you contemplate entering a convent?"

"No, no! I can't tell you what it is, but"—

"I see it now—I see it all!" he burst forth. "You are expecting that Miller fellow. Well, I will say good evening. I would not interfere with such a delightful visit."

"I don't see why you say 'that' Miller. I think him a charming fellow."

"So does he. Good evening, Miss Daisy."

"I—why, what is your hurry?"

"You said that you expected Miller and"—

"Why, I said nothing of the kind! He is calling on Julia this evening. I saw his shadow on the blind. No one else has such absurd cars."

"Oh, well, Miller is a very nice fellow! But you haven't told me yet what you are thinking of."

"Oh, I can never tell you! You will think it silly. You are always laughing at it."

"Can it be about the embroidered linen?"

"How clever of you! How did you ever guess? But I can never, never tell you."

"Then I shall think it a joke at my expense. I insist on knowing."

"Oh, it's not a joke at all, but if you insist"—

"I do insist."

"But, Mr. Smiffkins, I really can't. Well, if you will know. I have finished embroidering enough of it—well, enough for a—a small family, and now I don't know what initial to put on it, and it naturally makes me rather thoughtful."

The next day she took her linen down town and had the letter "S" stamped on every piece.—Chicago Tribune.

WOMEN AND NICOTINE

ALL OVER THE WORLD THE GENTLER SEX FANCIES THE CIGARETTE.

Taste and Discrimination Shown by Different Nationalities—Until 1850 Anglo-Saxon Women Did Not Smoke Cigarettes. Now It Is Almost Proper.

Despite the crusade led on the one side by tobaccophobiacs and on the other by enterprising American cigar dealers, the wicked cigarette still keeps on its career of conquering and to conquer. It is made and used in every land, and, according to some German statistician, enough are smoked every year to reach to the moon.

Only of late years has the cigarette been used by women of the Anglo-Saxon race. As late as 1850 it was an unheard of thing for an English or American lady to use the dreaded article. Since then there has been a revolution in every respect. The cigarette is used universally in both Great Britain and the United States and in daily increasing quantities by the women of both countries.

The habit received official sanction in 1882, when the Princess of Wales first put them on the table at a large dinner party given to her own sex, and in this country when the wife of a president served them at a ladies' dinner at the White House. In other countries there is no such prejudice. Women and girls use them alongside of their fathers and brothers. Nevertheless women do not smoke them exactly as men do. They are in the main more delicate and dainty. I spoke to a leading Broadway tobacconist yesterday, and he said: "Men smoke any cigarette that comes along and generally prefer those that are stronger or coarse. Only one man in 20 shows any judgment and chooses the finest varieties in the market.

"When women buy cigarettes, it is just the opposite. Nearly all want tobaccos as fine as those of Turkey or Egypt, and only one in ten cares for the harsher flavor of the American leaf."

"Mme. H. de la Croix, wife of Professor de la Croix, one of the distinguished foreign representatives at the World's fair, has traveled very extensively and given this subject considerable thought. She said to me: 'If you take it the world around, women are much more fastidious in their smoking than are men. In Belgium, where I was born, the women follow the example of their French sisters, but not with the same abandon and grace.

"'In France any number of women dissipate in this fashion. They enjoy a whiff with their coffee after a meal or during a friendly chat or an evening party. They prefer light cigarettes, but, strange to say, do not seem to care for mouthpieces. They have a very pretty kind, which, I think, are bonmarde. They are wrapped in rice paper, but are hardly any thicker than a match. I have seen a few of this sort in Germany, but nowhere else.

"'The Spanish women are inveterate smokers, but confine their choice to the tobaccos of Cuba and Porto Rico. They dislike the manufactured article and almost invariably roll their own. They use a flaky preparation, which can be readily put into proper shape. They also show considerable ingenuity in their selection of paper. Besides the white rice paper and cotton paper they employ tobacco paper and material flavored with chocolate, rose, vanilla, musk and other perfumes.

"'The Portuguese are as much addicted to smoking as the Spaniards. They like the strong, black tobacco of Brazil and annually import of it large quantities. The women are not as delicate in their smoking as are those of Spain and France. The tobacco is so black that it discolors their teeth as well as their fingers and frequently induces the front teeth to decay.

"'Along the African shore, in Algiers and Tunis, both the native and European women indulge in the habit. They have a great variety to choose from. They grow a fair quality of tobacco in that country and make it into very passable cigarettes, and they also mix it with the American, Spanish and Turkish leaves. The native women have a comical way of squatting down in Turkish fashion and making a batch of cigarettes upon one of the low tables in use in that part of the world. They think nothing of rolling 50 or 100 at a single sitting. Some are hard smokers and do away with just as many as they can make.

"'Egypt is devoted to the weed. Strangely enough, although the land grows tobacco, it is of such poor quality as to be used by none save the poorest. That which is employed both for home consumption and exportation to all parts of the globe comes from Roumania and Roumelia.

"'In China the trail of tobacco smoke is everywhere. Almost every Chinaman is well acquainted with the weed, and so are millions of the other sex. A Chinese lady is extremely exquisite in her enjoyment of nicotine. She will not touch the tobacco of her own land or of Japan, Sumatra or Manilla, but wants the finest varieties of American or English manufacture. Instead of rolling it in one paper she does it in two, so arranging the sheets that the lower one becomes a mouthpiece and the upper one a reservoir of the tobacco. She smokes it almost to the last particle and then throws the mouthpiece away. The cigarette itself is very thin and the smoke light and cool. In this way she avoids staining her teeth or her hands. When she smokes, she washes it down with occasional drafts of hot tea, and when finished she employs a tongue scraper, a toothbrush and sachet powders to still further cleanse her mouth. Wealthy Chinese ladies will have quite an outfit. There will be two or three handsome jars for holding the tobacco, a handsome matchbox, an ash cup, a little vase for holding the cigarette papers, a silver urn for the finished cigarettes, two or three small boxes for mouthpieces and a handsome salver of either metal or lacquer upon which all these things are served.

"'The women of Japan are moderate smokers. They use Japanese tobacco, which looks like reddish brown sewing silk and is rather insipid and weak. They roll it, but not with the same grace as the Spaniards, and smoke it under the most incongruous circumstances. One is with the meal and the other when taking a bath. It is no uncommon thing for two Japanese ladies to be bathing in the same room, and to increase the pleasure of the occasion by using cigarettes from the time they enter the room until they leave it. They are exquisitely cleanly, these Japanese women, and bathe so many times a day in hot water that they never carry with them the familiar nicotine perfume.'"—New York Herald.

A WOMAN'S MEETING.

How It Was Organized and Conducted In Defiance of Parliamentary Law.

As a rule, women have no use for parliamentary law and very few ideas of organization. This was humorously illustrated the other day when half a dozen ladies met to organize a church charitable society. After they had sat looking at each other a trifle nervously for awhile one of them said:

"It seems we are here. Now, what are we going to do?"

"Oh, dear," said another, "I don't know, but do let us do something."

What they did was to fall to talking voluminously upon the work they expected to accomplish and the poor folks they knew in the congregation. They spent two hours or more at this and discussed a good many plans. As they were adjourning one of them said:

"Oh, I suppose we ought to have a president."

"Why, of course we ought," the rest assented.

"I don't suppose anybody will object to Mrs. Smith? Let's have her."

"All right, let's," chirruped the rest. And nobody objected to names proposed for secretary and treasurer.

The secretary a few days afterward consulted her husband as to how she should write up the minutes.

"You should begin," said the man, "by saying who was chairman of the meeting."

"Why, we didn't have any chairman," broke in the wife.

"Who, then, put the motions before the meeting?"

"Oh, we didn't have any motions," said the lady, laughing. "Somebody would say she thought such a thing would be nice, and the rest would say they thought so too. That was all."

"In that case," said the man, somewhat perplexed, "you will have to set it down in the minutes that such and such measures were informally approved. But you must state clearly the name of the club, the constitution and bylaws you adopted, and"—

"But," interrupted the lady, "we haven't got any name, and we didn't adopt any constitution and bylaws. What was the use? We all knew what we were there for. Besides we didn't think of it."—New York Herald.

HOLMES' MIDNIGHT MESSAGE.

How the "Autocrat" Was Made a Member of a Bohemian Club.

Years and years ago, when the Bohemian club was in its infancy, in the days when the members met in the old Sacramento street rooms, there was a "Jinks." Now, a Jinks, especially a Jinks in the Bohemian club, is not conducted on strictly temperance principles. This one was no exception to the rule. Tommy Newcomb was president of the Bohemian club in those days, and under his supervision the reins of discipline were drawn but laxly. The subject of the Jinks was the ten famous professors at the breakfast table. One member recited "Old Ironsides," and a moment later another capped it with "The Height of the Ridiculous."

The "Chambered Nautilus" was followed by "The One Hoss Shay." And so it went until some spirit bolder than the rest indited a telegram to the good, gray poet of Boston, informing him of his election to the Bohemian club, with all privileges appertaining thereunto, and sent it before the more sober members could protest.

Now, Boston is three hours nearer the rising sun than San Francisco. The telegram had scarce left the clubrooms before some mathematically inclined member had discovered that it would be midnight or later ere the New England doctor and poet would receive his notification of election.

Judge of the astonishment of the rollicking Bohemian crew when a uniformed messenger of the telegraph company ran up the steps with the following message and asked, "Is dere any answer?"

Message from San Francisco. Whisper low,
Asleep in bed an hour or more ago.
While on his peaceful pillow he reclines,
Say to his friend who sent these loving lines:
"Silent, unanswering, still to friendship true,
He smiles in slumber, for he dreams of you."
OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

Boston, Feb. 23, 1874, Midnight.

And thus was Holmes made a member of the Bohemian club.—San Francisco Examiner.

Obstinate Royal Invalids.

"A king has the right to die, but not the right to be ill," said Louis XVIII to his doctors, forbidding them at the same time to publish the truth about his condition. Alexander I, perhaps in imitation of the Bourbon he had helped to his throne, acted upon the same principle, though he did not embody it in a paradoxical epigram. For more than 48 hours—namely, during Nov. 12 and 13, 1825—he obstinately refused to be bled, notwithstanding the urgent persuasion to that effect of his own physician, James Wellye, and of Stoptingen, the medical attendant of the empress.

On the 14th, toward evening, Wellye, finding all persuasion useless, plainly told the czar that, having refused the aid of science till it was too late, he had no resource left but the aid of religion. "And I have an idea that that will prove a broken reed to you," said the blunt physician, a worthy predecessor of Zacharin. "I am afraid that religion will be of little use to the man whose obstinacy in refusing all medical aid is tantamount to suicide." Thirty hours later the eldest son of Paul I had breathed his last.—Illustrated London News.

A Civilized Gorilla.

At the aquarium in Berlin there is a big gorilla whose habits are a great deal more correct than those of most of his distant relatives. He gets up at 8 o'clock in the morning, takes a bath and uses soap without hesitation. When his toilet is completed, he takes a cup of milk, after which he eats two loaves of bread, with frankfort sausages and smoked hamburg beef, all of which he moistens with a glass of lager beer. At 1 p. m. he takes a bowl of soup, with rice and potatoes and a wing of a chicken. He uses his knife and fork and napkin like a born aristocrat, but when he thinks that his keepers are not observing him he discards the implements of civilization and plunges his muzzle into the bowl, as if to give evidence of the melancholy fact that even a gorilla can be a hog.—London Million.

Cynical.

An Arabian proverb, put in the form of a dialogue, reflects the cynicism of Arab wit. It runs thus:

"Yes, he's indicted, but he'll never be convicted."

"Why not?"

"Nobody to testify against him."

"Why not?"

"Because he hasn't any friends."—Youth's Companion.

Pointed Facts for the People of Duluth!

People are constantly coming into our store, who claim they did not know any such house existed. We think this a very poor excuse, as we have spent many hundred dollars advertising our business before the people, in all of the city papers, and at the present extremely low price o subscription to our daily and weekly papers, we can hardly credit such ignorance on the part of many of our best city people. We opened our retail department for the first time in May last, with the firm conviction that before the year closed there would be, so to speak, a rattling of dry bones in high prices for goods in our line.

Only yesterday, a gentleman said to the writer, never before has Cut Glass been sold within 33 1-3 per cent as low as you are selling it today. Our sale of Decorated Dinner Sets, Saturday, should attract the attention of every person who is thinking of purchasing anything in that line. In our front window you can see a few of the bargains we are offering, and bear in mind we are the only house carrying 16 patterns of Decorated Ware in open stock, and by open stock we mean, we can sell you anything from a Cup and Saucer or single Plate to a 175-piece Dinner Set, and can also match up your set with any odd pieces you may desire, at any time within the next 10 years. There is not a housekeeper in Duluth who does not know the aggravation of buying a Decorated Dinner Set, and not being able to supply pieces, which will get broken from time to time.

Have You Had a Guess on the Big Tea Pot in Our Window?

With each cash purchase of $1.00 or more, you have a guess on its weight, and the first one guessing the nearest its weight, will receive on Jan. 1st, $20.00 in Gold.

In our new department in the corner store next our own, on Monday morning, we will place on sale several hundred dollars worth of Silverware Novelties at a cut of 50 per cent on present prices as asked by Silverware dealers in this city.

On Wednesday, Dec. 12th, we will place on sale $5000 worth of Rogers' best AA Plate Goods at prices which will open your eyes, these prices to continue only during the four remaining days of the week, giving everyone an opportunity to make their Xmas purchases. If you have not sufficient money to pay for entire purchase we will on a small payment down, keep the goods for you until Xmas. But make your selections now, when our stock is full and complete. "Procrastination is the thief of time,' and they who wait until a day or two before Xmas, will have a sorry line to select from, as our goods are melting away very rapidly, and as all factories are far behind on filling orders. when once sold out, we can get no more this season.

THE RETIRED BURGLAR.

His Unpleasant Experience In a Town In Western Pennsylvania.

"One of my most painful experiences," said the retired burglar, "I had in a town in western Pennsylvania. In the course of my customary preliminary walk I had fixed my eye upon a small but trim looking Queen Anne cottage which stood upon a little bit of a knoll in quite a good sized lot, with a grass plot all around it. The cellar windows were good and high and easy, and I selected one at the rear of the house so as to be as far as possible secure from observation, though that seemed on such a night an almost unnecessary precaution. It was one of the darkest nights I ever knew, and nobody could have seen you ten feet off, but then there was the danger of being heard, and so it was sensible, of course, to go in at a rear window. It is always foolish to take any unnecessary risk.

"Well, I found I couldn't unfasten this window from the outside, so I waited for the next thunderclap—there was a thunderstorm coming up; that's what made it so dark—and then I broke a hole in the glass and reached in for the catch. The instant my hand got through that hole it was grabbed by a dog that I knew would hold on till he died. There could be no possible doubt about that. The vigor and dash and power of the grip and the absolutely firm and rigid hold were unmistakable. With the next flash of lightning I saw him, a white bulldog, standing on the head of a barrel under the window, with my hand in his mouth. He'd been roaming around that cellar, on the alert, and he'd heard me from the start. He was on the barrel, no doubt, when I was working at that window on the outside, and all he wanted was to have me get in.

"It was bad to have to do it, but I had to. I couldn't pull away from him any more than I could have pulled my hand out from under a pile driver. So I reached around as well as I could with my left hand and got my gun, and when the next flash of lightning came I fired. I knew I must have hit him, too, but not much more than that, for he didn't let go. He just shut his teeth together tighter—though I wouldn't have thought he could do that, but he did—till I thought the teeth must come together through my hand. It makes me wince now just to think of it. When the next flash came, I saw him again. There was blood trickling down the side of his head from where I'd hit him, but his teeth were set in a hold that I knew I couldn't have broken with a jimmy. There are times when circumstances are agin a man, and this was one of 'em.

"I could hear 'em in the house already. They'd heard the pistol, as I knew they would, and they were coming. The door at the head of the cellar stairs opened, and two young men, with a light, came tumbling down. They saw the dog standing on the barrel, with my hand in his mouth and my arm running out through the window. Well, one of them came out for me, and I was easy, dead easy. He tied me up without any more trouble than if I'd been a bundle of rags, and the man inside got the dog off somehow, I don't know how. Then they took me into the house and sent for a doctor, and I needed one, and then they sent me to a hospital to stay until I was tried. He cost me three years and six months, that dog."—New York Sun.

REASONS OF HIS OWN.

An Imported "Detail Clerk" From Washington is Making the Land Attorneys Pretty Mad.

Decides That Settler Does Not Locate in Good Faith on Lands Seventy Miles From Railroads.

He Delayed His Final Proof For Some Time to Come—Another Case Complained of.

A. W. Stiles who has been occupying desk space at the United States land office for some weeks by virtue of his title and authority as "detail clerk," did not leave for Washington last night as published, but instead he left on a pilgrimage to the land office at St. Cloud. If he gets himself as much disliked over there as in Duluth, he will not be the most popular man in Minnesota.

Col. Stiles, by virtue of the civil service rules, holds a clerkship in the general land department. Some weeks ago he was sent to Duluth, with the title of "detail clerk," to look after fraudulent final proofs and such things. Of course, the colonel knows nothing about homestead and timber claims, nor the life a settler has to lead. He admits as much and even does not deny that he could not follow a turnpike road, to say nothing of trails through woods and swamps and muskeg.

Some days ago the register and receiver got a certain "letter P," bearing date of Nov. 24, from the commissioner ordering them to notify Mr. Stiles when all final proofs came up so that he might be present at the taking. It was further ordered that he be given all facilities in the power of the local officials to help him and upon the filing of a protest or objection to the admission of final proofs, all papers should be forwarded to Washington for action before allowing final proof.

On Wednesday Abram Estey, who has lived on a claim in 67-19 for four years, seventy miles from any railroad, who has the ordinary improvements of a settler came in to offer final proof on a commuted homestead. Col. Stiles objected to the allowance of final proof on the grounds that no one would go seventy miles from a railroad to take a claim in good faith. In support of that the "detail clerk" cited the fact that for two years past Mr. Estey had raised only fifteen bushels of potatoes and half an acre of hay each year. Estey was on hand with witnesses and cash, but he could not go against the Washington expert. So his final proof will probably be held up for six months or a year to his extra expense, inconvenience and disadvantage.

Yesterday Mons Anderson, who has a claim twenty-four miles from Mountain Iron, in 60-20, offered final proof on a commuted homestead. Stiles protested against that on the grounds of bad faith, citing the fact that Anderson had a barn but no pigs, chickens, horses or cattle.

Attorneys Are Hot.

Maybe the land attorneys are not red-hot. Said J. K. Persons: "This man Stiles is greater than congress. That body passed the homestead law and forgot that there were railroads. It did not care whether a man settled seventy or 7,000,000 miles from a railroad. Here's a man sent up here to interpret existing laws. He sets himself up as an arbiter and a maker of law. There ought to be a reform in this special agent service. I'll guarantee that for every acre of land the government has got back it has had to expend $10,000."

An ex-special agent in this city, says that he knew a case in Nebraska where an agent was looking after timber depredations. He spent five or six months and recovered money on cord wood to the value of $400.

Said Capt. W. H. Smallwood: "When I was on the coast as register, the special agents used to come out and attempt to go beyond their power. One tried to ask questions in a contest case I had, but I shut him up by saying, 'You get out of here or I'll see that you are thrown out of the window.' These special agents are not recognized by the president, and give no bonds, yet they come out here and attempt to exceed the powers of the local officers who give heavy bonds and know where they are at besides. They belong to the very lowest grade of civil service clerks, too."

"The tendency of this," said another attorney, "will be to induce the settlers to make final proof before the clerks of the courts in different parts of the district. Now, these two proofs offered by Estey and Anderson were strictly first-class, as I think any experienced land office man will admit, yet they were hung up. At the same time, final proofs made before Wade Blaker at Grand Rapids, were passed without question. Then, too, these agents came out here and send back stories that makes the department think that the whole country is honeycombed with land frauds."

A number of settlers were around the land office yesterday and they were quite indignant over Stiles' action. Mr. Stiles himself remarked that he did not think he would go to Grand Rapids as there seemed to be some feeling shown against him and his work.

R. N. Marble was attorney for Estey and Anderson and he feels pretty sore over the action of the "detail clerk."

Made the Clerks Work.

Talking about land office matters, it is declared that charges have been forwarded to Washington against Register Taylor for making the clerks work by moving on Thanksgiving.

The day before, so it is claimed, Mr. Taylor came in, threw down the proclamation in which the president recommended all to eat turkey and go to church, and ordered all the clerks to be on hand the next day to help move.

"That's the kind of turkey you'll have," he remarked.

The hasty moving was to head off C. P. Maginnis, who was at Washington and who saw success in his efforts to keep the land office in the Temple. No one will be surprised to see a great big fight grow out of that matter and certain men are hotter after Taylor's official scalp than ever.

ADRY CONFESSES

One of the Hayward Brothers Makes a Confession of the Plot to Kill Kittie Ging.

C. A. Blixt, Engineer of the Ozark Flats, is Supposed to be the Actual Murderer.

Adry Hayward Tells of the Plans Which Were Laid for Killing the Unfortunate Woman.

Harry Was Dealing in Green Goods, and She Was Murdered for the Insurance Money.

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 8.—Adry A. Hayward has made a confession. Harry T. Hayward planned the murder of Miss Catherine Ging, and C. A. Blixt, engineer of the Ozark flats, committed the bloody deed. That at least is the theory of the police. Blixt was arrested early this morning and locked up in the central station. After committing the bloody deed, Blixt returned to the city and disposed of some of his clothing to a workhouse prisoner named Erickson.

Ole Erickson left next morning for Iowa Falls, Iowa, where his wife is employed in a hotel and there he had the clothing washed. He returned to Minneapolis and sold some of the clothing to a pawnbroker on Washington avenue south. The remainder of the clothing was undoubtedly burned in the furnace of the Ozark flats. The motive for the crime was the securing of the insurance on Miss Ging's life.

Early last evening the mayor went to the West hotel and repaired at once to a secluded room on the top floor, where he was soon joined by Detective Hoy, who had in charge C. A. Blixt, the engineer of the Ozark flats. For some time the mayor and detective sweated their man persistently, apparently without success, but soon it was evident that they had struck a lead which they expected to develop well, for they sent in hot haste for the county attorney. Then the close conference was resumed.

Blixt's Arrest.

Before long Detective Hoy was sent away in a carriage and returned with Blixt's wife. Then Ole Erickson, who had been hanging around the Ozark and sleeping in the engine room, was introduced into the circle. Then the court of inquisition settled down to business, and during the long session which followed Sheriff Ege and a couple of his deputies and Superintendent Smith put in an appearance.

For a long time no one was seen to come out of the rooms where the investigation was progressing, but at last about 12:30 Sheriff Ege emerged and was pounced upon by the anxious newspaper men. He was not inclined to be very communicative, but said: "We have the man who did the shooting and are going to arrest him in a few minutes. C. A. Blixt is the man."

The sheriff returned up stairs, and within five minutes Detective Hoy had come down, taking Blixt with him in a hack to the lock-up. Upon their arrival there Blixt was locked up on the charge of murder, and Hoy returned to the hotel. Just as soon as he arrived Erickson was taken to the lock-up. The charge of murder was also entered against him. Before leaving the lock-up Detective Howard took a key from Blixt and accompanied by Mrs. Blixt, went to the Ozark flats in search for evidence.

The crime was conceived long ago. The motive was the securing of the life insurance. Levi M. Stewart was a valuable aid to the authorities in making up the case. It appears that the scheme was broached by Harry Hayward to Adry, and that the latter attempted to dissuade his brother from the commission of such a bloody crime. For a time he thought he had succeeded. But finally, when he became convinced that Harry was determined to carry out his scheme, he went to Mr. Stewart, who has been more than a friend to the family and told him of the plot.

Told the Police.

Mr. Stewart took no stock in the story at first, but when he learned of the crime he at once communicated with the authorities and informed them of the story that Adry had told him. Working upon this information, the officers ferreted out the mystery. The details are largely to be worked out. The officers themselves are not entirely satisfied just how the murder was committed. They are, however, satisfied that they have the right parties in custody.

Blixt is said to have been a party to the hold-up in which Miss Ging, Miss Vetter and Harry Hayward were robbed last April. In fact, the police are said to know the name of the party now in possession of the jewelry taken at that time. None of the officers would state this morning their theory as to how Miss Ging was induced to take a carriage ride with a man so low down in the social scale as Blixt. They did not even attempt to explain how it was that she had taken three rides.

Adry Hayward's confession is only as to the events preceding the murder. It is evident that he knew nothing of how it occurred. It is, however, in evidence that he was visited by Harry at his apartments in the Ozark on the evening of the murder, and told that he had better be where he could account for himself during the evening. Adry acted upon this suggestion and at once went to the house of his father-in-law and spent the evening until after the murder had occurred.

Adry's confession shows that prior to the murder Harry had arranged all the details of the loans, the evidence, the life insurance, etc., in such a manner that it would appear to the public afterward that it was all open and above board. Time and time again Harry made personal appeals to Adry, but the latter always told him he could never carry out such a scheme as getting rid of the girl without hanging for it. Harry grew very angry at Adry's repeated opposition and finally threatened to murder him if he resisted.

Warned to Plant Himself.

After this Andry supposed the scheme had been dropped. It was not until three days before the day of the murder that he realized that the plot was still incubating. It was then that he told L. M. Stewart of what he knew. The object of Harry's visit to Adry's apartment on the night of the murder was ostensibly to confer with him regarding a paltry matter of $5. It was in realty to warn him to plant himself so tha the could prove an alibi. This Adry did. Harry's words were: "You better be with your folks. Something may happen."

Adry then went to the residence of his father-in-law and was next visible after the reports of the tragedy had reached the flats. Blixt, the engineer, is said to have been implicated in the burning of buildings in the insurance of which the Haywards were interested. It has developed that Blixt left the flats at 7 o'clock on Monday night and returned at 9:10. Blixt had formerly been a driver of a street car and had a car driver's overcoat. This coat he sold to Erickson, he claims, on Saturday. Erickson was in the city hospital at the time and agreed to pay $5 for it. The money, however, has not yet been paid.

After getting possession of the coat, Erickson left for Iowa Falls and while there had the coat washed. He returned to Minneapolis yesterday morning. It develops, however, that the sale was not made on Saturday. Erickson left the city on Tuesday. Prior to leaving he visited a shop on Washington avenue south, where he inclosed two pairs of pants, a shirt and other wearing apparel in a paper bag which he took with him, and left for Iowa that night. He left Iowa Falls on Wednesday night and returned to Minneapolis, as stated, on Thursday morning.

When he returned, he saw Harry and Blixt talking together in the engine room, and heard Harry give orders not to allow anyone to enter the place. He then went to a pawnshop on Washington avenue and sold the coat for $2. Harry Hayward's apartments, a suite of rooms on the ground floor of the Ozark, facing on Hennepin, were searched early this morning by Sheriff Ege, Chief of Police Smith, and Detectives Hoy and Howard.

Spots of Blood Found.

Several spots of blood were discovered on the floor of a closet adjoining the room in which Harry slept. Sheriff Ege, after scraping one of the spots with a knife, turned to Detective Howard and said: "The bundle of bloody clothes was probably thrown on the closet floor and left there for the time being, until taken away by Erickson the following morning."

Detective John Hoy, who arrested Erickson, stated that he had positive proof that Erickson left Minneapolis the morning after the murder with a neatly wrapped bundle containing the bloody clothes. He stated that he took a train for a point in Iowa, where the clothes were washed. Whether the police have the clothes in their possession could not be learned last night, but it is rumored that they have. The motive in having the clothes washed and brought back to the city, it is claimed, was to evade suspicion, the owner wishing to continue to wear them.

Officials who visited the flats were armed with a search warrant and they first proceeded to search the old gentleman's apartments on the top of the building. Harry and Adry slept on the ground floor, Harry in a front bedroom and his prother in a room in the rear facing on Thirteenth street. In a table drawer Detective Howard found two revolvers belonging to Harry. One was double barreled one of the Derringer pattern and the other a 38-caliber Colts. The latter was found in his trunk. Several boxes of catridges were also confiscated.

Harry's clothes were carefully examined, but nothing startling was discovered. Several notes from lady friends inviting him to meet them at certain places for a "social time" were found neatly tied together in the bottom of the trunk. The officers confiscated a satchel containing a lot of clothes belonging to the engineer, and it is thought that the clothes worn by the murderer of Catherine Ging were among the contents of the satchel.

Adry Taken to St. Paul.

Adry Hayward has been taken to St. Paul for safe keeping. He is expected to make a written confession of the whole plot there. His attorneys are very indignant at the action of the authorities in preventing them from seeing their client. The manner with which his nerve was finally broken and he was induced to confess is sensational.

When Adry was first taken under detention and the sweating process applied he was totally invincible. His course in all of the terrors which were applied to him to induce a confession, and other appeals made, together with confronting him with pretended proofs, which levers were applied by Assistant County Attorney Hall with all the consummate skill he was able to bring to bear, was greatly admired. He stood like a mountain in a storm, absolutely unflinching. This was in the county attorney's office. The scene was most dramatic. Mr. Hall had to guide him, first of all, only the intuitive knowledge he had obtained from a study of the crime.

"I know nothing whatever," Adry reiterated constantly. Finally he exclaimed: "If all you say is true, and I knew aught which would tend to convict Harry, still would I keep my mouth closed; I would not have the blood of my brother on my hands."

Thus matters stood until towards midnight last night, after it was certain that Blixt and Erickson were safely under cover. Blixt and his wife were then under examination in a room in the West hotel. Levi M. Stewart's office is in the Kasota building, one block away, and here Adry was brought in a carriage, Stewart having been requested to be at his office. It was the same room in which Adry had made his statement, three days prior to the murder, that Harry was putting up a job to murder the girl, which fact had been written to the county attorney in Mr. Stewart's letter of Tuesday morning, Dec. 4. Mr. Hall took Adry into Mr. Stewart's office.

How He Weakened.

The moment he was in the presence of Stewart he showed the first signs of weakening but made a great effort to maintain his nerve. As before denials were on his lips, but when Stewart said there was no use quibbling, that he knew of his brother's whole plot, Adry broke down utterly. He turned to County Attorney Hall and said: "I am done. I will tell the whole story."

He did so, and it covered his own knowledge of the plot from near the time it was conceived. The plot was for Blixt and Erickson to be the actual murderers. As Adry understood it Miss Ging was to be decoyed into being delivered over to Blixt's hands and Blixt was to kill her and Erickson assist in hiding the clothes or whatever else was necessary.

No one is permitted to see the Hayward boys except their attorneys and relatives. W. E. Hale was an early caller at the county jail this morning and remained in their cell for a long time. Sheriff Ege and his men were at work all last night and were still on the trail of more evidence this morning. "My theory from the start has been that Blixt was the man that did the shooting," he said. "Blixt is a tough case."

"Was the Blixt the man who went riding with Miss Ging?"

The sheriff looked steadily at his questioner for a moment and then replied: "Blixt is the one who did the shooting."

The sheriff in ransacking the Ozark, found many things that will be of value in bringing the murderer and his accomplice to their deserts. One of these was a white handkerchief, with several imprints of bloody fingers, as if it had been used in wiping up small flecks of blood. The handkerchief was rather small, of quite fine texture, probably belonged to Miss Ging.

Suicide at Hudson.

ST. PAUL, Dec. 8.—A Hudson, Wis., special to the Dispatch says: The body of a man was found hanging by a rope from the limb of a tree just beyond the outskirts of the city yesterday. He was seen on the streets three days before and had been hanging twenty-four hours when discovered. No letters of identity were on his person. He was a man about 35 years of age, apparently a German laborer.

His Neck Was Broken.

ST. PAUL, Dec. 8.—An Anoka, Minn., special to the Dispatch, says: John Palmer, aged 45, was found this morning in the Jackson hotel barn with his neck broken. Yesterday he went to the hay loft to sleep off the effects of drink and fell through the hay chute.

Creditors Excited.

MOORHEAD, Minn., Dec. 8.—Judgments amounting to $12,654 61 against the defunct Merchants bank, filed prior to recording the appointment of a receiver, are believed to be valid. This will reduce the dividend to creditors by reason of the sale of bank property to $6995.39. This has caused much excitement among creditors and legal opinions are being sought in the cities.

New Lumber Company.

ST. PAUL, Dec. 8.—The St. Louis Lumber company of Duluth has filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state. The incorporators are: Albert H. Petrie, William McMillan, of Minneapolis, and Edward Reynolds, of Sturgeon Bay, Wis. The capital stock is $30,000.

Heiress to a Fortune.

ST. PAUL, Dec. 8.—Mrs. Willis Monroe, of St. Paul, was recently the recipient of the agreeable piece of news from New York that she was entitled to $125,000 as the heir of the estate of the late Hon. Sardius Stewart, who died in New York on Wednesday, aged 90.

A Pioneer Gone.

LITCHFIELD, Minn., Dec. 8.—By the death of Capt. James B. Atkinson, which occurred in this city from heart failure yesterday, one of the old landmarks of the county and state has been removed. Mr. Atkinson was a native of Canada, where he was born Nov. 13, 1822. He came to Meeker county in 1857.

CHICAGO MURDER CONFESSED.

Edward Jordan and J. B. Jersey Under Arrest for the Barnes Murder.

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—John B. Jersey today confessed that he with Edward Jordan murdered A. D. Barnes, whose mutilated body was found in a French shipping case yesterday. Both Jersey and Jordan are under arrest, several people having testified to having seen them with the box containing the body.

The men were employes of Barnes and the motive for the crime is thought to have been rivalry between Jordan and Barnes for the chief janitorship of the Hiawatha building, which position the murdered man held, Jordan being his first assistant.

Jordan has exhibited remarkable coolness throughout, having been the first to identify the body. The police for a time refused to make public the nature of Jersey's confession.

CONTAINED A WOODCHUCK.

Maj. Baldwin Has an Objectionable Section Cut Out of a Bill.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—[Special to The Herald.]—Section No. 7 of the McRae forestry bill now before the house, which contained a "woodchuck" so far as Minnesota pine lands are concerned, has been stricken from the bill through the efforts of Representative Baldwin.

This section authorized the secretary of the interior to sell any pine on the public lands and is the provision of law by which the pine land ring have done their stealing in Minnesota and under which they hoped to secure the remaining standing pine in Minnesota.

Representative Haugen, of Wisconsin, has written to the mayor of Superior for information as to the Altamonte project and its relations to Superior. So far as he has been informed, he sees no objection to it.

DANIEL MURPHY VICTORIOUS.

Secretary Smith Reserves a Decision in a Duluth Land Case.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—[Special to The Herald.]—Secretary Smith today reserved the decision of the commissioner in the case of Daniel W. Murphy against William Logan, of the Duluth district, and directed the cancellation of Logan's filing and allowing Murphy's entry to stand, subject to compliance with the law.

PENSIONS TO WIDOWS.

Widows Whose Income From Other Sources Affords Them Comfortable Support Cannot Receive Pensions.

Many of the Congressmen Think a Bankruptcy Law Is Needed to Give People Relief.

Representative Maguire, of California, Will Make Vigorous Opposition to the Pacific Railroad Funding Bill.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—The pension bureau will hereafter refuse pensions to widows whose income from other sources affords them comfortable support. This policy is provided for in a ruling of Assistant Secretary Reynolds, based on the June 27, 1890, act. In his decision the assistant secretary says: "It was evidently the intention of congress to supplement the widow's means of support from her own labor and all other sources by the pension, only when such means were insufficient for her comfortable support. Under ordinary circumstances without intending to lay down an arbitrary and inflexible rule, when a widow is shown to have an income considerably in excess of the pension provided by the third section of the act from sources independent of her daily labor, she does not occupy a pensionable status thereunder.

Judge Reynolds also held in the case of James Keating, Fifteenth regiment United States infantry, that where a soldier died before final action by the bureau of pensions and his claim had been subsequently rejected, the attorney of record has no legal right to appeal from such objection without first obtaining from the widow of the soldier a power of attorney to continue its prosecution.

The bankruptcy bill which the Democratic caucus of the senate has indicated a willingness to consider at the present session is by no means the same measure as that which passed the house, known as the Bailey bill, during the long session. The house bill contained only about four pages, whereas the bill which the senate will be called upon to consider covers eighteen pages. It carries the title of the house bill but retains only the first two sections of the Bailey bill, and even these are amended.

The bill was amended in the senate judiciary committee, and the amendments are understood to have been suggested in the main by Senator George, of Mississippi. The amendments inserted by the senate committee related entirely to matters of detail in making assignment, arranging exemptions, preferring creditors, etc. The main provision in the bill is for the assignment or cession of property by any debtor owing $200 or more which he cannot pay.

The friends of the bill are inclined to urge that the steering committee shall give it preference over other measures selected for consideration by the caucus. They say that a bankruptcy bill is one of the urgent demands of the time on account of the fact that the panic of 1893 left so many persons in a condition of financial distress, who they think should be allowed to begin life over again by disposing of what property they may have and starting in even with the world.

Representative Maguire, of California, will make a vigorous opposition to the effort to take up the Pacific railroad funding bill. He will also contest the measure on the floor if Chairman Reilly succeeds in having Speaker Crisp fix a time for the bill before the holidays.

"There is a good deal of misapprehension about this measure," said Mr. Maguire. "It is true that the bonds are about to mature and the government will have to meet them. But it has been paying interest on the bonds for years, and these payments for interest reach the amazing figure of $50,000,000, while the principal of the bonds is only $27,000,000. There should be no alarm, however, over the payment of the principal when the government has already quietly paid out twice as much as the principal.

"The main objection to the pending bill is that it extends for fifty years the absolute dominion of the Pacific roads over the traffic of the great West. It also limits the security of the government to certain designated roads. It will be better if congress lets the subject alone and makes no adjustment, rather than make one of disadvantage to the government and to the Western development."

Mr. Maguire was asked what the effect would be if congress did not act; whether the Pacific roads would not lapse into government control.

"Undoubtedly they will," said he, "and it would be a practical realization of the government ownership of railways. It would not be necessary for the government to operate them, however, unless the private interests should refuse to carry them on. Their forfeiture to the government would follow the course of any other mortgage forfeiture, and the actual assumption of government proprietorship would come sometime between Jan. 1, 1895, and June, 1899."

The friends of the territorial admission bills feel much relieved over the action of the Democratic senatorial caucus in deciding to place these bills on the preferred calendar. There had been some fear lest the fact that Arizona and New Mexico had elected Republican delegates to congress at the last election would have the effect of causing the Democratic senate to decide against taking the bills up at the present session.

Senator Faulkner, chairman of the territorial committee, has been a persistent advocate of the policy of including these bills in the program for the short session, meeting the arguments of those who would have the bills sidetracked for political reasons with the assertion that the result of the recent election could not be accepted as in any sense a criterion of the permanent political preference of the people of the territories.

GRESHAM'S EASTERN POLICY.

Members of Congress Propose a Resolution of Inquiry.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—Representatives Hitt and Storer, Republican members of the house committee on foreign affairs, have talked over the desirability of a house resolution of inquiry on the attitude of the government in the China-Japan war. Mr. Storer had intended to introduce such a resolution and he may yet do so.

It is felt, however, that the house of representatives has such limited authority over foreign affairs that the inquiry could be more properly conducted in the senate. Moreover, events in the China-Japan war are changing the situation so constantly that there is doubt as to the nature of an inquiry. This doubt is increased by the fact that no information as to the course of this government has yet been given to any of the members of the foreign committee, so that in the absence of foreign information it is difficult to project any inquiry.

It is believed by members of the house that the whole China-Japan question will be gone over in the senate when Senator Lodge's resolution concerning the Chinese execution of the Japanese students under American protection is taken up. Until the senate has had an opportunity to act on the subject, Mr. Storer will hold his resolution in abeyance.

A clear complexion is a woman's crowning glory. Pastry made with inferior baking powders spoils it. Dr. Price's cream baking powder is a surety of health.

Against Non-Citizens.

TALEQUAH, I. T., Dec. 8.—A bill has passed both houses of the Cherokee council prohibiting the employment by merchants and traders of this nation of non-citizens as clerks, bookkeepers or business managers. It has created a great stir among business men of all kinds, nearly all of whom have non-citizens as clerks and bookkeepers, without whom they will find it almost impossible to run their business.

Negotiated the Checks.

NEOSHO, Mo., Dec. 8.—J. M. McClain, who stole 2821 sheep on G. W. Edwards' ranch, twenty miles from Powder Springs, Wyo., and sold them in Kansas City, receiving in payment two cashier's checks on the International bank, has turned up at Indian Springs, Mo., where he traded the checks to D. J. Parish for real estate in Christian county. Parish presented the checks to the Neosho Savings bank where he got cash on one and deposited the other for collection.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 8.—A mining man named W. C. Bennett who came to this state recently from St. Paul, Minn., has been missing to his friends here for several weeks past and they are considerably worried about him. He has of late been operating in the vicinity of Grass Valley, but his enterprises have not been financially successful. In St. Paul Bennett was at one time a prominent man in real estate circles.

Great Irrigation Enterprise.

SAN MIGUEL, Mex., Dec. 8.—The great San Juan irrigation enterprise is complete, and water will soon be turned into the 900 kilometers of canal that has been constructed. This work was done under a government concession and cost $3,000,000 in gold. The water is secured by damming the San Juan river.

SO DEAR A DREAM.

So dear a dream!
Of a quiet, quaint little home nest,
Hid in a garden small,
Where lilacs tall
Lean over the wall,
And the bobolink pours out his song.

So dear a dream!
Of a sweet, little winsome wife
At the door at night
With a smile of welcome
And a kiss of love
After the work of the day is done.

So sweet a dream!
O rosy, lisping, laughing babes,
Held to a loving breast,
Within that little nest,
Happy as some feathered brood
Up under the low, brown eaves.

So dear a dream!
I know not whence it came
Unless from heaven's own gates.
God grant it may abide with me
Nor lose itself save in divine reality.
So dear a dream!

She Was Not the Person He Originally Thought She Was.

"Miss Jackson," he began as he removed his hat and scraped his foot as they met on the street, "I dun hab de happy facility to meet up wid yo' de odder night at de cake walk."

"Yes, sah," she softly replied.

Shakespeare and "Shacks."

I remember that in Oregon, in the time of my boyhood, a very profitable business was carried on in the backwoods where I lived by men who made shakes, or shacks, for the word was pronounced in both ways by the settlers, who brought their language across the plains in the forties from the banks of the Missouri. Although densely wooded, that part of Oregon in which I lived had no sawmills. The only lumber obtainable was that which was split or hewn from the log.

The shake was a board thus split from the fir, cedar or other timber and was used for the roofing, weatherboarding and flooring of the log cabins of the settlers. The houses called shacks on the plains take their name from the shelters built by the trappers and hunters of the Hudson Bay company with timber split in this way. What is the origin of this old English word, lost in the untimbered homeland to be found again in the needs of the wood dweller of the far west? It is not in the Century Dictionary.

Did the family who lived in Arden get their name from some old hamlet or camp, where the shelters were built or roofed with shakes, or shacks, and therefore called Shakesborough? There is a pertinent analogy in the Warwickshire named Shuckborough, still borne, I believe, by a very worthy family there. The contraction of borough to bor is not uncommon. —Notes and Queries.

Afternoon Tea.

They were at an afternoon tea, and each held in her delicately gloved hand a cup of amber fluid, which she sipped daintily with a souvenir spoon, but their technical knowledge of tea would have made a tea expert's hair stand on end.

"I like Fedora best," one of them was saying sweetly.

"Do you?" said the other. "Now I prefer Solong, because there is no nicotine in it."

"Talking of tea brands?" asked a society bride flutteringly. "I just adore Boohoo. It's made in China, you know."

"Well, afternoon tea is good enough for me," warbled a society bud who didn't know anything but real knowledge and wouldn't bother her wavy head with tea kinks.

TWO TRAMPS KILLED.

A Fight Between Tramps in a Baltimore & Ohio Box Car Resulted in a Murder.

Two of the Men Were Killed and Another Was Fatally Injured in the Row.

The Murderers Left the Train and Escaped, and if Caught They May Be Lynched.

FOSTORIA, Ohio, Dec. 8.—In a fight between tramps in a box car on a Baltimore & Ohio train, two were killed and another fatally injured. The fight occurred about midnight last night. The murder was not discovered until the train reached this city. The dying tramp, whose name is Harris, made a statement of the murder, charging it to men who came aboard the train at Auburn. He says the murderers alighted from the train before it reached Fostoria and escaped.

Harris said his home was at Auburn, Ind., and that he was a chimney sweep by occupation. He gave the names of his companions as Lesse and Morgan. He further stated that the men who did the shooting were driven out of Garrett, Ind., yesterday, and that they boarded the train at Auburn. There was no provocation for the shooting. It was solely for the purpose of robbery. Sixteen dollars was stolen from Harris and considerable amounts from his companions.

At Deshler the murderers leaped from the train, but it was not until the train arrived in this city that the tragedy was discovered. There is great excitement here, and if the fugitives are overtaken they are likely to be lynched.

The ghastly find was made by Brakeman Beeber, while looking for tramps who had been on the train. When he found them, two were dead and one had his head pillowed upon the breast of one of his companions, and was still conscious. When the train reached this city the dead men were taken to the undertakers, while the wounded one was conveyed to the American house where medical aid was summoned and everything possible done for him. Under surgical treatment he revived and made the following statement:

"My name is Henry Harris, and my two companions are named Henry Reesh and Arthur E. Brown. We all live at Auburn, Ind., and last night boarded the freight to strike out and look for work. When we got to Deshler, about twenty-five miles west of here, four men boarded our car and made a demand for our money. We had a fight and they commenced shooting, and I was shot down. I think the men left the car at Deshler again. They got $12 in money from me."

Reesh was found to have four bullets in his head, any one of which would have proved fatal. Brown was shot five times in the body and once in the head. Harris had two bullets in his head and one in the left breast. The car in which the shooting was done looks like a slaughter house, and about twenty-five empty shells were found on the floor ranging from 32 to 44-calibre. There is no clue to the murderers, except a description of men given by the marshal of Garrett, Ind., who says he drove five tramps out of Garrett and that they boarded that train.

BAITING A TIGER.

How a Native Hunter Succeeded In Capturing One Alive.

When we had spent 12 nights seeking to lure a tiger into one of the pits or traps and thus capture him alive for the great German dealer, one of our native hunters came in one morning and said:

"Sahib, the trouble is that the tigers have grown tired of the meat of goats and bullocks. They are hungry for human flesh, but they can get none because the villagers refuse to move out by night. We must change our bait."

"But we can't bait a tiger with a human being," I protested.

"Why not? On two occasions I have baited tigers, and tonight I will do it again. Last night a fine tiger prowled around the pit in the path crossing the little valley, but so particular that he would not even strike down the live goat tied to the stake. He has laid up for the day in a thicket only half a mile away, and tonight he shall find me in place of the goat."

The idea at first struck me with a cold chill, but when the man had fully explained himself I realized that it was simply a matter of nerve. Just beyond where a nullah, or creek, crossed a well beaten path used by animals alone we had dug a pit 10 feet long, 4 feet wide and 12 feet deep. We had covered the hole with limbs and grass and dirt, but over the center had a small platform, on which a goat was made fast. A tiger, panther, wolf or hyena springing upon him must break through and fall into the pit. There were no panthers about, and the wolves and hyenas seemed to know that the bait was for his royal highness alone, and they did not bother with it. There were tigers about, but they had either become suspicious or did not come upon the bait until after hunger was satisfied.

What the native proposed to do was to lengthen the pit by three feet and drive down stakes to partition off a space for himself at the far end. In other words, he would plan to have the tiger leap into the pit in making his spring. In lengthening the pit we dug down only four feet. A rough platform with a trapdoor covered this extension. When the man stood in the pit, his head and shoulders were above the platform. He must, as the tiger bounded at him, be quick enough to sink down and close the door.

Not a white man in the whole of India would have taken such a risk, and I doubt if money could have influenced one native in 10,000. In a tree only 20 feet away we erected a platform that we might be spectators of the game. The hunter insisted on this, as he wanted us at hand to shoot the tiger in case there was any miscarriage in his programme.

There were two of us on the platform, and the hunter was in his pit before the sun went down. Twilight had scarcely come when the moon showed herself, and except for an occasional spot we could have traced a mouse creeping along the path. We knew that at least one tiger had his lair in the thicket above, and night after night we had heard him growling as he came down to the nullah to drink his fill before setting out on his hunt. We had been in position about half an hour when we heard him coming. The wind was blowing toward us, and it brought his snarls and growls as he awoke from sleep and yawned and stretched and perhaps menaced a hyena who dared to look at him. Five minutes later and while he was yet hidden from sight by a turn in the path we could hear the thud of his footsteps on the hard path. He must have been very thirsty, for he came trotting along without a look to right or left, and his tail dragged behind him.

"Stop! Wait a minute!" shouted the native when the tiger was within 40 feet of the pit.

Had the animal received an electric shock he could not have been more astonished nor gathered himself more rapidly. In five seconds he was all tiger—eyes blazing, tail switching, ears up and one paw held a few inches from the ground as if to strike. As he saw that he had a man before him he growled in a way to make the blood tingle, and the native pointed at him and shouted:

"I have been waiting for you. Men have told me that you are brave, but I do not believe it. I have come out here all alone to take you by the ears and make you whine like a puppy."

The tiger was furious at hearing the man's voice. He crouched down as if to spring, but gave it up and began to sneak forward, and as he advanced his tail beat the bushes on either side of the path, and his claws grated and clicked on the hard spots.

"Don't fear for me, sahibs," called the native, and then he shook his fists at the tiger and called him names and dared him to come on.

For a long minute the beast stood directly beneath us and only 20 feet below, seemingly suspecting a ruse, and he might have gone off had not the native flung dirt at him and started his temper anew. He crouched down, pulled himself along, and the tapeline showed he was exactly 17 feet away when he made his spring. We had our eyes on him, yet so rapid was the movement that we lost him. As he rose in the air the native dropped down and shut the door. We heard the bang of the door and the drop of the tiger at the same instant. He alighted on the platform, but the boards gave no hold to his claws, and he slid on to the covered pit and went through, with a crash and a roar of rage.

"Sahibs, you see me?" shouted the hunter as he popped up through the door. "I am not hurt, and I do not tremble. I timed him to a second. He thought he would eat a man for a change, but he will have to take a goat instead. Come down, sahibs, come down and let me introduce you to a fine, fat tiger who wants to make a voyage across the ocean."

We had a captive worth $600 at that time. I presented the man with a bag of coins valued at about $2 in American money, and he offered to repeat the trick every night in the week. Two weeks later at a spot 30 miles away he "baited" again, but this time he was a second too late, and the tiger seized him and tore him to pieces before we could fire a shot.

Married Women's Shoes.

A phenomenon of which physiologists have not given as much attention as its importance demands is the fact that the feet of women very often swell after marriage. I have known of a number of ladies who could wear a very small shoe while they were single, and very soon after obtaining a husband took to wearing shoes several sizes larger. A married man of my acquaintance offers the explanation that women are naturally vain creatures, who lose somewhat of their vanity after they have once hooked a husband and go in for comfort. But I am convinced that he is not a physiologist.—Philadelphia Press.

$5 A MONTH, MEDICINES FREE

Is the Offer of the Copeland Physicians to All Who Apply to Them for Treatment Before Jan. 1. Many Are Taking Advantage of Their Liberal Offer Before It Expires.

When a man has found relief from a distressing condition, he feels like telling of it for the benefit of others who may need the same kind of help. Such are the sentiments of Mr. Herman Bering, of 110 First avenue west. He is connected with the firm of Bayha & Co.

To a reporter, Mr. Bering said: "About six months ago I was treated and cured of deafness by the Copeland Physicians and cannot say too much in praise of the treatment I received. I had been troubled with deafness a long time and had tried many times to get relief from my distressing trouble, and at considerable expense. Hearing so much of the Copeland system of treatment, I decided to see if it would not help me, and the result was that I was cured in a short time of deafness that was so bad I could not hear an ordinary voice; people would have to shout in my ear or I could not understand them. But now my hearing is clear and perfect and I am only too anxious to tell others how it all happened. I will also say that the Copeland Physicians only charged me $5.00 for a course of treatment that restored my hearing."

CATARRH OF THE THROAT.

A hearty endorsement of the Copeland system of treatment comes from Charlie Frantz, the genial bookkeeper for The Evening Herald. He says: "I was treated last spring by the Copeland physicians for catarrh of the throat, and I found their system of treatment all that it is claimed to be, mild and pleasant, yet thorough and effective. I was troubled with accumulations of mucus in the throat and the continual dropping of mucus over the soft palate from the back part of the nose. The constant filling up of the throat with mucus caused incessant hawking and spitting. The Copeland treatment put the membrane of my throat in a healthy condition, and it has given me no trouble since. Hence my approval of this popular system of treating catarrh."

AMONG THE DUTCH.

A Peep at the Grotesquely Picturesque Inhabitants of Holland.

What most enchanted me, though, at my first sight of Vlissengen was the group of burlesque peasantry assembled on the pier to watch the coming of the steamboat, says a correspondent of the Boston Herald, writing from Holland. At least, my first thought was that they were burlesquers who had perhaps been stranded in the low countries by the defalcation of an errant manager, for I had never seen such wondrous beings, except upon the burlesque stage, or at Mr. Harrigan's delightful theater in New York, or in the London music halls, but it was soon made manifest that these were not caricature Hollanders, but genuine ones. And, what was more, I soon discovered that the burlesque Dutchman is not nearly so droll as the genuine one.

They wore vast, ungainly breeches, as big as barrels at the hips and tapering down to reasonably small dimensions at the bottoms. They wore short jackets fabulously bedecked with ornamental braids and silver buttons as big as the heels of a policeman's boots. They had big heads, with tiny caps perched on their crowns. Their oakum colored hair was chopped across half way up the backs of their heads, and on their feet they wore the traditional wooden vessels as big as young canoes. The men are certainly the drollest specimens that one ever beheld, but the women are picturesque dears—not lovely, but, as I say, picturesque. They were swathed in skirts as huge as hogsheads. They wore upon their shoulders some sort of lace filigree which evades the descriptive powers of a poor male chronicler. Their heads were set in bands of silver and of gold, these covered, too, with filigree of lace, while fixed into the cap sides and dangling at the temples were marvelous queer ornaments of gold.

These gauds seemed strange enough to me at first, but I am getting used to them now. Yet I can never understand why it is that all the women of Zealand are not cross eyed, for with these pendants dangling at their eyes you would suppose the vision of every south Nederlandische woman would have a twist in it. Buxom are these dames and maidens, but, as a rule, they are not so ruddy cheeked as one expects to find them. But they are brawny armed, and their brawny arms are red with constant exposure to all the winds that blow and to the sun that sometimes shines o'er Holland. If they are vain, these peasant women, their vanity does not concern the female form divine. Except from uncovering their fat arms, they ply all their arts to conceal the lines of the figure. Of course this may be wisdom on their part, but how can a poor outer barbarian chronicler testify on that score?

An Easy Shave.

"An easy shave?" The words come tripplingly, as if the art, or rather mystery, of shaving were facile. From the very earliest ages the problem of shaving, like all really great problems, has perplexed thoughtful men. Why our paleolithic ancestors began to shave is unascertained. It seems so easy to let the chin alone. There may have been some religious reason, or sexual selection may have intervened. Woman may have preferred a beardless wooer. Yet this is contrary to all analogy.

When Alma Venus behaved in the manner so poetically described by Lucretius, "the most eloquent of blasphemers," then the wanton lapwing procured for himself another crest, and the peacock spread abroad the splendors of his tail. The beard in man is averred by philosophers to have a corresponding moral. But man, being reasonable, must needs cut his beard off. To run in the face of nature has ever been his way of asserting his independence and demonstrating the lordship of reason.

Ere metals were invented, ere fire subdued the copper to his will, man plucked his beard out, or he tooled with a sharp shell. A soapless shave with a shell—it cannot be called easy, and travelers have described the agonies of the brave. Conceivably, man shaved because the beard might be caught hold of by an enemy with the left hand, while with the right he drove the pointed flint under the fifth rib. For whatever reason, man in the bronze age shaved with a bronze razor, as if we should do so with a paper cutter. The process must have been slow and painful, as much so as tattooing, but fashion was all powerful.—Saturday Review.

Not to Be Reached.

The people of the extreme south of France, in the neighborhood of the Pyrenees, have a hard shift to live. Some of them gain a livelihood by taming bears.

Many others take to begging, which becomes a trade by itself, reasonably remunerative and not exactly dishonorable. Baron Haussmann, in his "Memoires," cites the case of one of these professional beggars who amassed a good property and finally became mayor of a large commune.

Even then he continued to ply his trade, especially in the bathing season, when many tourists visited the country. One of these outsiders was so taken aback at the sight of the mayor begging on the street that he remonstrated with the mendicant.

"I should think you would be ashamed," said the stranger, "you, a man holding so honorable an office."

"Office," said the mayor, "my office! Why, man, this is how I gained it."—Youth's Companion.

Lemonade a Microbe Destroyer.

Further researches by M. Girard, chief of the Paris municipal laboratory, concerning the bacilli of cholera and typhoid fever have confirmed the efficacy of acids in destroying microbes. He finds citric acid to be the most useful and powerful of all. One gram, he says, added to a quart of tainted water, will destroy all the microbes that may be in it. Consequently he recommends the use of natural lemonade as an excellent beverage at all times, and especially during epidemics.—Sanitary Era.

The Lullaby.

There can be no doubt that if the lullaby was not in advance of the war song it was at least contemporaneous with it. Mr. Mason tells of the low, sweet chant of the Zuni mother and her quaint baby songs. In making their bread he mentions the imitative power of the native women, who sing notes and words which are made to sound like their hand stones working on the mealing stones.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Burger, author of the "Wild Huntsman," fell in love with his wife's sister and married her after his wife had died of a broken heart. He soon discarded her for a new favorite, who proved to be such a Tartar that Burger said, "I wish I had been born a dog."

The Atchalafaya river, in Louisiana, was so named from two Indian words meaning Long river.

A Mechanical Fluid.

A mechanical fluid is reported as a recent American invention. It is a mass of hard steel balls of two sizes, one-eighth and one-fourth of an inch in diameter respectively. Under pressure this mass flows and transmits pressure in all directions like a fluid. The device is calculated for use wherever fluid pressure is desired without leakage.

Another Chicago Murder.

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—Nicholas Seguda, a meat dealer in Wesson street, was murdered in his bed early today. His clerk, Frank Heller, who told the police that he was sleeping with Seguda and saw him shot by a burglar, was locked up, and Mrs. Seguda, who told several conflicting stories, is under police surveillance. The police place little confidence in the burglary story told by Heller.

YOUNG SPIRITS,

a vigorous body and robust strength, follow good health. But all fail when the vital powers are weakened. Nervous debility and loss of manly power result from bad habits, contracted by the young through ignorance of their ruinous consequences. Low spirits, melancholia, impaired memory, morose, or irritable temper, fear of impending calamity and a thousand and one derangements of body and mind, result from such pernicious practices. All these are permanently cured by improved methods of treatment without the patient leaving home.

A medical treatise written in plain but chaste language, treating of the nature, symptoms and curability of such diseases, sent securely sealed in a plain envelope, on receipt of this notice, with 10 cents in stamps, for postage. Address, World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

WHEAT WEAKER TODAY.

Various Bearish Factors Caused a Slight Decline in Prices.

Wheat was weak and lower here today, the bearish factors being heavy cables and the liberal deliveries in the Northwest. The demand was slack, and discouraged longs liquidated freely. It was reported that Bradstreet's would show an increase in the world's wheat stocks during November of only 6,030,000 bushels against 17,000,000 bushels in November last year. This made a little better feeling and there was a slight advance, which was not held.

May opened at 61¾c, a decline of ¼c from last night. It lost ⅛c and then firmed up to 61½c about 10:30, but lost the advance and went back to the opening figures. December opened ¼c lower and sold down ⅛c. A quantity of No. 1 hard to arrive sold at 63¼c. Nearly all the trading was in May. The close was ⅛c lower than yesterday for cash stuff and ⅛c lower for futures. Following were the closing prices:

No. 1 hard, cash 60½c, December, 59½c, May, 63½c; July, 63¾. No. 1 Northern cash, 59c; December, 58½c; May 61⅞c; July, 62½c. No. 2 Northern cash, 55c; No. 3, 53c. Rejected, 50c. To arrive— No. 1 hard, 60¼c; No. 1 Northern 59c. Rye 45. Flax, $1.41½. No. 2 oats, 31¼c. No 3 oats, 30¼c. Barley, 41@48c.

Car inspection today—Wheat 337; oats, 11, flax, 2. Receipts—Wheat, 136,082 bus; flax, 1033 bus; barley, 1839 bus. Shipments—Wheat, 2678 bus; oats, 937 bus.

Gossip.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, Room 107, Chamber of Commerce.

The market today was dull, the shippers doing all the business. Cables were weak, but reported an active demand at the decline. There was 150,000 bus taken for immediate shipment to Liverpool from St. Louis, and bids for more were reported a fraction under the market. Exports for the week were 3,011,000 bus against 2,600,000 bus last week. Clearances today aggregated 250,000 bus. With cash wheat up to within ⅛c of the May price, some grades selling 2c over the May and the outlook for about one-third of a crop in the winter wheat belt it is hard to see how they can put the futures any lower than at present. As soon as the weak holders are shaken out we will see much higher prices.

Corn and oats were weak on falling off of the cash demand that has been so active the past week. Provisions dull.

BUFFALO WIPED OUT

The Great Herds of Buffalo No More, Having Been Butchered During a Few Months.

Hundreds of Thousands Slaughtered In a Couple of Years After the Hunting Became General.

Thrilling Story of the Chase After a Herd and the Battle in a Deep Gorge.

Before the Northern Pacific railroad had crossed the continent west of the Missouri river the section of the country bounded by that river on the east and the Rockies on the west and stretching from the Platte, in Nebraska, northward to the British line, was the greatest stamping ground for buffaloes in the whole northwest. The country was more or less hostile in those days, and the Indians, who had been the best guardians of the bison until white pot hunters came among them, soon gained the civilized idea of slaughter, and from that time the doom of the representative American game animal was positively assured, but the greatest blow dealt the bison herds of the northwest was the completion of the Northern Pacific track west from Bismarck to the Rocky mountains. The road practically divided the herds (for the bison will never, unless forced, cross the iron of a railroad track), and those to the south were soon swallowed up in the general slaughter waged by Indians, pot, hide and tongue hunters, foreign sportsmen and others who were out to kill anything they saw on sight.

This was during the winter of 1882-3. The buffaloes to the north were in many scattered bands, but there was one great herd of not less than 75,000 head, which had found a temporary refuge in the triangle formed by the Musselshell, Missouri and Yellowstone rivers in Montana, and as yet they had not been "smelled out" by either red or white hunters, but they were as surely doomed as though already killed, for the railroad iron cut them off from their southern range, and the Indians of the Canadian northwest as well as those of our own country barred their retreat into the far north, and so they were hemmed in between the two, with no possibility of escape in either direction.

To illustrate in a few words the remarkable destruction of that section alone it will only be necessary to say that this last great herd was completely wiped out of existence in less than four months, and before the close of the year there were but a few singles and pairs left as fugitives in that vast country, where, but a year or two before, they could have been counted almost by the hundreds of thousands. The shipping figures from two points on the Yellowstone at the end of the season, Glendive and Miles City, show 800,000 buffalo hides sent from the former and 185,250 skins of elk, antelope and deer from the latter place.

It chanced, at the time mentioned, that the writer, with a small detachment of soldiers, was passing from the Missouri river country to the Yellowstone, and we came across, almost daily, numerous bands of Gros Ventre, Piegan, Blackfeet and other Indians, all hurrying to the slaughter of the noble animals on the Musselshell. Our scout, or guide, was a Crow Indian named Two Moons, and one day while threading our way through Bad Lands, painted buttes and broken coulies a small herd of about 600 bison came rushing into view around a bluff not more than 200 yards distant, and with heads down and paintbrush tails erect they came plunging on directly toward us in the wildest sort of confusion. A genuine stampede was probably in full operation, and the soldiers, not waiting for orders, lost no time in placing a safe and reasonable distance between themselves and the threatened danger. They quickly shied off to the right, and I felt it my duty at this "impending crisis" to keep as close to the heels of my fleeing comrades as the speed of my horse would permit.

In a few minutes the last of the fleeing bison were well to the rear, and they soon disappeared beyond a neighboring knoll with the speed of an express train. While watching them and debating whether a chase would be worth the trouble, from behind the bluff where the buffaloes had first appeared now came a second band of bison, about 60 in all, with a dozen well mounted Cheyenne bucks in hot pursuit. As before, the animals came direct toward us, but our shoutings and halloings turned them aside, and they shied off to the left, entering the jaws of a rough, broken ravine, which was precisely what their red pursuers wanted. The ravine was a sort of rift in the Bad Lands which practically led nowhere, but which we afterward discovered narrowed and closed in until it ended in a steep, impassable pocket, with no outlet except by the original way of entry.

The Indians shouted to us as they rushed by, and, rather interested in the outcome, as I suspected the nature of the ravine, I left the sergeant with the detachment, and, taking the guide with me, followed swiftly on the heels of the flying Cheyennes.

Game and hunters soon disappeared in the twinings and intertwinings of the gorge, and as it was an exceedingly rocky and difficult trail we took our time and practically "made haste slowly." How the red men ahead of us ever got over the ground so quickly was an unsolved mystery. Narrower and narrower became the gorge, and at last we paused to listen. There was scarcely a sound in the air, but this intense stillness became suddenly broken by a series of rapid shots and wild yells, accompanied by a thundering, rumbling noise which was almost deafening. The tumult rapidly grew louder, and then, just in front of us, from out the depths of the canyon came the buffalo herd like the wind, directly toward us. Some were bleeding, many were wounded, and others were limping badly. It never seemed possible that living brutes could travel over such rough ground with such speed, but the difficulties of the trail never seemed to concern them in the least, for, as a matter of fact, the rear ones crowded the forward ones with such persistence and so rapidly that they had to move quickly or else be trampled under foot.

After this thundercloud had passed, with feelings of great relief, we went on up the canyon to see how the Indians had fared. It proved to have been a disastrous encounter for the Cheyennes, as many of them were limping and bleeding as badly as the stampeded buffaloes. A survey of the free frontier circus ground discovered seven dead buffaloes, three wounded Indians—one of them quite seriously—and six ponies killed and maimed.—Chicago Herald.

CHESS EXPERT ADOLPH ALBIN.

He Has Beaten Dr. Tarrasch and Other Great Players.

Adolph Albin, the chess expert who recently had such an acrimonious newspaper controversy with ex-Champion William Steinitz over a game which the judges called a draw because Steinitz exceeded the prescribed time limit, is a native of Austria. Although Steinitz's time was plainly up, he refused to gracefully accept the decision of the judges, and a newspaper war followed that attracted considerable attention among chess players.

ADOLPH ALBIN.

Albin was born at Bucharest 46 years ago and has been playing chess for 22 years. He won the championship of Vienna several years ago, and at the Dresden congress in 1892 surprised the chess world by defeating the hitherto invincible Dr. Tarrasch, the German champion.

Albin came to this country about a year and a half ago in quest of the popular American dollar and has taken rank as one of the best second rate experts now playing the game in America. About a year ago he put up a very strong game in the international tournament held at the Manhattan Chess club, New York. In this tournament Emanuel Lasker gave the world an example of the wonderful skill that was soon to wrest the championship from Steinitz by winning 18 out of 18 games and first prize. Although pitted against the best men in America, Albin secured second prize. In the recent international tournament at the same club Albin again won second prize, first prize going to William Steinitz. Albin is a strong simultaneous player. He is now engaged in a match with Showalter, the score of which Dec. 1 was: Showalter, 7; Albin, 4; drawn, 3.

Tyers, the Great English Swimmer.

The greatest amateur swimmer in the world at distances ranging from 32½ to 500 yards is James H. Tyers of the Manchester Osborne club, England, champion of Great Britain and holder of numerous world's records. Since 1892 no English amateur has been able to cope with Tyers, for he has won every purely swimming championship from 100 yards to 5¾ miles with consummate ease. Some of the times credited to this youth are quite remarkable. He has covered 100 yards in 1 minute 2½ seconds in the Bury baths, 25 yards long; 150 yards in 1 minute 42 2-5 seconds in the Westminster baths, 44 yards long; 220 yards in 2 minutes 46 2-5 seconds, Manchester Osborne baths; 500 yards in 6 minutes 45 seconds at Sunder land; 880 yards in 3 minutes 42 2-5 seconds at Roundhay park, Leeds; 1,000 yards in 15 minutes 2 seconds at Southport, and a mile in 27 minutes 21 3-5 seconds at Walsall. This season he has won all the amateur championships.

In two years Tyers has not met defeat, and the only amateur who could give him a battle royal is Arthur T. Kenney of Philadelphia, champion of the United States. Kenney, who is an Australian, came to this country to take a dental course at the University of Pennsylvania. He astonished Americans by his rare speed and endurance. At the swimming championships of the Atlantic association July 30, 1892, Kenney won the 100 yard race in 1 minute 9 seconds and the mile in 27 minutes 6 2-5 seconds. A light current favored him in each race. He was again successful at the Canadian championships a month later, winning both the 100 yard and mile events. He was back in Philadelphia in time for the A. A. U. championships, both of which he won.

Last year Kenney was in great form at the A. A. U. championships at Chicago and won the 100 yards in 1 minute 12 2-5 seconds and the quarter mile in the American record time of 6 minutes 24 2-5 seconds. His latest successes at Travers island on Sept. 15 fairly entitled him to rank with the greatest swimmers in the world. He won the 100 yard championship on a straightaway course in 1 minute 9 3-5 seconds, time which has never been equaled by any amateur or professional in the world under similar conditions. Although sick, he turned out some hours later for the mile championship and won after a waiting race in 33 minutes 34 2-5 seconds over a course with seven turns.

The High Salaried Jockeys.

The high salaries paid to jockeys in recent years have attracted a great deal of attention and not a little criticism. Within the past seven or eight years Garrison, Simms, Murphy, Taral, McLaughlin, Bergen, Doggett and several others have drawn salaries ranging from $5,000 to $15,000 per annum, and the lad Griffin makes an annual earning of about $20,000. In fact, any jockey of prominence can command a higher compensation than the chief justice of the United States, says "Captain Absolute."

When we consider that in any other field not one of these youths could earn $300 per annum, it causes many a man to doubt the superiority of mind over matter and vow talent and learning are a delusion and a snare. Yet it is very much in obedience to the law of demand and supply, after all. There is a demand for that kind of talent, and the supply is limited, and as the competition is keen and the best only desired the competition forces the price.

An owner of a stable of the best horses will save money by paying the highest price for a jockey, as he will win more than will pay the difference in salaries between a Taral and a third rate rider.

Her Appearance

speaks louder than words. She doesn't use Pearline. She's worn out with hard work. Household drudgery, you can see, has told upon her. Possibly you are a woman who is going [illegible] way. Now, these are days when such things needn't be, for most women. Labor savers are all around you, and, for woman's work, Pearline leads the list.

Take advantage of the hints of science. They are broad enough to the bright, and they help the lowest kind of work as well as the highest. In every sort of washing and cleaning, let Pearline help you.

Send it Back Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, be honest—send it back. 635 JAMES PYLE, New York.

Doubtful.

"Can you love another?" she asked, nestling closer to his bosom.

Earnestly he gazed into her deep blue eyes.

"I think not," he said. "I'm buying flowers and theater suppers for six now, and with you I guess I've about reached my limit."

At that moment a one man band exploded right in front of the house, and when he had done the conversation drifted naturally and easily into other channels.—Detroit Tribune.

INSECT VISION.

The Probabilities as to What They Can See With Their Strange Eyes.

Two theories of insect vision are extant—the older one that each lens forms a separate eye, and the more recent one that insects see as in a mosaic, each lens forming part of the total picture. The old view is supported by the experiment of placing a thin slice of an eye under the microscope, when the image of any object reflected from the mirror is seen to be transmitted through each of the hexagonal lenses. A rough model of an insect's eye may be made by taking a glass shade of the form of a half sphere, say about 16 inches in diameter. Place the eye at the center of the globe and paint on its surface the picture of the outer world as seen through it. If this painting be divided into squares by lines scratched at intervals of one-eighth inch, there will be 25,600 of them, and the proportions are roughly those found in the eye of a dragon fly.

If now, instead of the details of the picture on each square, a dab of color be placed on it corresponding to the general tone, the effect of the whole will pretty nearly agree with that of the original painting. It is probably this indistinct vision that insects actually possess. Mathematically it may be shown that to obtain anything like such perfect vision as human beings enjoy an eye constructed on the compound type would have to be of most impracticable size. In our eyes the rays of light passing through a single lens form an image on the concave retina. The retina is built up of the sensitive terminations of the optic nerve, forming a kind of tessellated pavement with 36,000,000 squares to the square inch. If our lens were of perfect shape and the pupil wide enough, the size of things which might be seen as distinct objects would be limited by the distance of the nerve endings of the retina from one another. In order that two points may appear separate to the eye, they must subtend an angle of about one minute of arc—that is, for instance, that fine lines ruled one-twentieth of an inch apart can be made out to be separate at a distance of four yards. Beyond this the whole surface has a uniform gray tint.

Calculations clearly show that insects cannot see nearly as well as this, and their behavior to distant objects favors this opinion. But their eyes have this advantage—namely, that there is practically no limit to the nearness of objects they can examine. The details of their own antennæ probably appear plainer to themselves than to us, but objects at the distance of a foot appear to them with about the same minuteness of detail as would be attained if they were made of rather coarse wool work. Beyond this the shades of light and dark are evident to them, but outlines must be blurred and lost.—North British Advertiser.

Women In Italy.

In Italy, writes a correspondent, we have seen women not only working in the fields, but carrying bricks and stone and mortar up ladders for the construction of buildings. On the railroad from Brindisi to Naples, in southern Italy, where a tunnel was being repaired, we saw some 40 girls carrying on their heads bushel baskets of mortar and stone from a valley on one side of the track up a steep stairway above the tunnel on the other side. The baskets were filled by men and lifted upon the heads of the girls, who thus had by far the heavier task of carrying the loads up an ascent of 60 feet. Their feet and arms were bare, their faces brown, but they looked cheerful, at least those did who paused in their work to stare at the passing train. Near Paestum "gangs of women were at field work, with a man to oversee them, cracking a long hunting whip."

At Amalfi we saw old women carrying on their backs loads of wood up the long, rocky stairways leading to the Cappucini Monastery hotel. The wood was 4 feet long, and to all appearances there was nearly a quarter of a cord on each woman's back. In several places in southern Italy we witnessed this almost brutal scene of women bent and staggering beneath loads of wood which they were carrying up the hills. The first feeling one has on seeing women thus employed is of resentment against some one who has forced them to it, but evidently the rough out of door toil is voluntarily assumed, or at least accepted as inevitable.

Easily Traced.

"Stealing a typewriter," said a man who looks after the rental department of a large eastern typewriter house, "is grand larceny and a state prison offense, yet this and the further fact that an immense number of these culprits have already been sent to penitentiaries in different states do not deter dozens of others every month from making like thefts. We have a standing list of from 100 to 200 typewriters that have been stolen from our branch offices and agents in various sections of the country. Every typewriter has its own number, which cannot be effaced, and whenever we hear that a machine is missing we immediately communicate its number to our representatives in this country and abroad, with instructions to seize the machine when found and to prosecute the person holding it. It is only a matter of time when any typewriter will need adjusting and repairing and will be taken to a repairer, and then the thief is easily apprehended. Thus we actually lose few or no machines."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Correct Temperature.

The proper temperature for a living room is for adults in good health 68 to 70 degrees. Invalids and the aged require more heat, sometimes as high as 80 degrees, but children should not be kept in an atmosphere above 72 degrees. This applies to even young infants, the temperature given being correct for a nursery. For a sleeping room the temperature should not rise above 65 degrees, preferably 60, except where illness or special causes require modifications of the general

Advertise the City.

While the members of the Duluth chamber of commerce and others are discussing the formation of a Commercial club, modeled after similar organizations in St. Paul and Minneapolis—which is a commendable idea and deserving of encouragemet—it may not be out of place to draw attention to the necessity of strengthening the existing chamber of commerce so that it may perform the important work done by such bodies in other cities. The Herald is prompted to make this suggestion by the receipt of a letter from a reader in Fredericksburg, Va., who says regarding Duluth: "Your growth has been great, but if you do not call the attention of the world to the fact cities having not nearly as much or many advantages may get a bulge on you, just from united concert of action and your lack of blowing your trumpet loud enough for the people to hear."

Our Virginia friend draws attention specially to the splendid work done by the chamber of commerce of Los Angeles, Cal., in building up that city. In 1880 Los Angeles was a small village; in 1890 it was a city of 50,000 inhabitants, and it is still growing in population, wealth, and the usual accessories. It has organized substantial industries and they have prospered. It has set a splendid example to other cities in securing valuable reforms in municipal administration and in the construction of good roads in all directions through the adjacent country. It is, in brief, a live town, noted all over the United States for its energy, enterprise and progress. Geographical position, climate, and the fertility of that region are not a sufficient explanation of the remarkable growth of Los Angeles. Many other localities, where there has been little development, possess the same natural advantages.

In a recent article referring to Los Angeles' rapid progress, the Washington Post says the chief reason for this exceptional advancement is that Los Angeles has a thoroughly efficient chamber of commerce, and it has spared no effort to advertise the town in ways calculated to produce the best results. This organization has been at work six years. It is composed of 650 representative citizens, and they work together for one object—the progress of Los Angeles. Of course its work is accomplished through standing committees. One committee has issued sixteen pamphlets, in large editions, setting forth the advantages of the city, not only as a health resort, but as a desirable place of residence in all respects, and a good location for manufacturing establishments. Another committee has answered 20,000 letters of inquiry and another has done telling work by circulating sample copies of newspapers in all parts of the United States. Naturally all this has attracted many visitors, and these have been sought out and entertained by the chamber of commerce, and, if they manifested a desire to become residents and to invest capital, the chamber has assisted them in the accomplishment of that object.

Having an eye to the improvement in its own city, the Baltimore Herald says: "In season and out of season, the Los Angeles chamber of commerce has labored for the upbuilding of the town. It has taken a leading part in local politics, has purged the city hall once or twice of incompetent governments, and has worked intelligently and patiently for economy in local expenditures. Here is an object-lesson for cities in the East. Los Angeles has grown out of nothing within twenty years to a city of 50,000 inhabitants, and, chiefly by the united and unselfish efforts of its chamber of commerce, it is forging ahead of other cities in California, and attracting national attention. What might not Baltimore do with similar trade organizations forever at work for the upbuilding of the city?"

The same question might well be asked concerning Duluth. For several years past, comparatively little effort has been made to advertise Duluth abroad. The chamber of commerce has not been in a financial condition to attend to this important work, and yet there is no valid reason why the Duluth chamber should not have 650 contributing and working members as the Los Angeles chamber has, so that these matters could be attended to in a manner that would be helpful to this great city. One trouble was that the Duluth chamber was started in the wrong way. It was supported out of the city treasury and this mistaken policy created a wrong idea of public duty on the part of representative citizens. Now that the chamber receives no aid from the city treasury, the business men and property owners must be educated to look at its highly necessary work in the proper light and so be brought to see that it should be liberally supported. What Los Angeles has done Duluth can do to a still greater extent if the citizens will work in unison and with well directed energy.

The Tariff Question.

In a recent interview Representative Babcock, of Wisconsin, who is chairman of the Republican congressional campaign committee, gave expression to some views which are in line with those recently expressed by other prominent Republicans in regard to future tariff legislation. Like others who have talked on this subject, Mr. Babcock is opposed to the re-enactment of the McKinley law. He confidently predicts that the Republican party will not return to the false position in which it was placed by the passage of the McKinley law.

"That bill," Mr. Babcock is quoted as saying, "did not have the support of one Republican in five when it passed. It was responsible for the Republican defeat in 1892, and that defeat was one of the strongest expressions of the intelligence of the American people. This widespread intelligence is one of the most gratifying things to me, as an American citizen. Our people will cross party lines at any time to rebuke their own party when they think that it has not dealt fairly with them. There is a deep-seated prejudice against the McKinley bill. It was regarded as too friendly to the manufacturers and not sufficiently in the interests of the people, and they put the party out of power that was responsible for the legislation. The average American citizen believes in the principle of protection, but he believes still more in the principle of fair play, and that principle they thought was violated in the McKinley bill."

The Republicans will be powerless to make any change in the tariff until the term of President Cleveland expires. In the meantime the effect of the various provisions of the Gorman tariff law will be seen. This measure is filled with crudities that will no doubt demand legislation, but nothing in that direction can be expected until the Republicans regain control of all branches of the government. When they do obtain control, they will undoubtedly tamper with the tariff question to as small an extent as possible. Certainly, if they be wise, they will not make many changes.

The people repudiated the McKinley bill owing to its extreme protection, and they have repudiated the Democratic attempt to saddle free trade upon the country. The people will be better satisfied if the politicians keep their hands off the tariff and permit the business world to recover from the depression without being threatened by tariff changes.

Duluth Real Estate.

The recent purchases of First street property by A. L. Ordean deserve more than passing notice. Mr. Ordean is one of the most level headed as well as most prominent business men of this city and is well known to be extremely conservative. He would not buy gold dollars at 50 cents a piece unless he was almost dead sure that he could turn them at an advance. Like many other conservative men he has missed making a great deal of money in Duluth real estate, but he evidently does not intend to be at the wrong end of the procession next time.

The Herald believes that all men of judgment who are familiar with the situation will agree with Mr. Ordean that prices of Duluth real estate have touched bottom, and that from this time on they will go up. Then, too, First street property is unquestionably the best business property at present prices to be had. Many predict that inside lots on First street will go to $1000 per front foot within five years. That is not an extravagant prediction. The opening of the government building and the erection of the new board of trade building on First street will cause a great transformation on that much-neglected street. The truth is that Duluth has grown to such proportions that business has overflowed Superior street, and hence the rapid development of the wholesale and commission business on Michigan street, and the rapid growth of retail business on First street and the avenues between Superior and First.

The Herald maintains that there will never be as favorable a time, in all the future, to buy Duluth real estate as now, and events confirm the same. The tone and sentiment of foreign investors and the growing conviction at home all point to a great real estate activity here in a comparatively short time and those who want to get in at bottom prices had better make bay while the sun shines. Those who buy now will get the advance and those who wait will pay it. As soon as the market becomes active prices will advance, and what is more they never will be as low again for long before another such panic Duluth real property will have made several hundred per cent advance over the highest prices heretofore reached.

The fact that Duluth does not appear in the list of cities reporting their bank clearances to Bradstreet's each week is not doing this city any good. It is to be feared that the impression will gain ground among Eastern investors that the Duluth clearances are not given out because they show a decrease in comparison with last year. The fact is that they show a considerable increase, and there is no valid reason why they should not be published weekly.

The reports of the commercial agencies this week show that the unseasonable open weather has had an unfavorable influence, but outside of this fact, the condition of business is satisfactory. The country is slowly but surely climbing out of the depression, and the prospects are that after Jan. 1 there will be a great improvement and an increased demand for labor.

It is said many congressmen are disposed to pass a national bankruptcy law at the present session. Such a measure is much needed. There are thousands who were carried down in the late panic, who should be given a chance to get a discharge from their old debts and begin life anew. At present they are practically hopeless, and no one is benefited.

The last census puts the number of men employed in the sugar refineries of the country at 7500. This would indicate that the sugar kings are bluffing us with their 50,000 and 75,000 men thrown out of employment by a shut down.

That Drummer.

Oh, the drummer, festive drummer,
In the winter, or in summer,
He's the same.
Whether merchandise he's selling,
Or a bran new story telling,
Always game.

With his trunks, from two, to twenty,
And with confidence, a plenty,
Never fear.
He but needs the slightest chances,
With the trade to make advances,
Then it's clear.

That large orders he'll be taking;
And good friends be ever making;
Friends who'll stick,
All through life, if well the're treated,
And he don't get too conceited,
That's the trick.

On the train wherever going,
The conductor, well he's knowing,
That's a fact.
So if pretty girl, he's guying;
Or two whole seats, occupying;
Rests intact.

At the hotel, now this drummer,
If he be not a new comer,
Gets the best.
He quite runs the elevator;
And by tips, he owns the waiter,
And the rest.

Orders wine, with great abandon;
Ceremony, he don't stand on;
What's the use?
Never likes to have a tussle;
But will quick get on his muscle,
With abuse.

As a friend, you'll find no better;
And he's posted, to the letter;
What is what.
Then without this man commercial;
We would find the world, less social;
Would we not?

So may buyers ever treat him,
With kind looks, when'er they meet him;
And not state,
In a way to make him dizzy;
Those old chestnuts, "we've too busy,"
Or "you're late."

To Punish Libels.

St. Paul Pioneer Press: We are indebted to The Duluth Evening Herald for the valuable suggestion that the legislature of Minnesota should enact a law similar to the following provision of the New York penal code:

Any person who willfully states, delivers or transmits by any means whatever to the manager, editor, publisher, reporter or other employe of a publisher of any newspaper, magazine, publication, periodical or serial, any statement concerning any person or corporation, which, if published therein, would be a libel, is guilty of a misdemeanor.

The laws of the states make ample provision for the punishment of libel, when committed by any publishing agency, as a security to the public against malicious assaults upon character. Of this, when fairly and justly administered, no one complains. But the publisher is, at the same time, left without any remedy whatever against those persons in the community who seek to have libelous matter published and evade the responsibility. How frequent this offense is, no one but the publishers themselves can have any conception. When libels appear in the public prints, it is in only a very small percentage of cases that the publication uttering them is guilty of intentional injury. In the vast majority it is itself imposed upon by representations that have every appearance of credibility. Individuals who have their own interests to serve or their own revenges to accomplish furnish false information; and a daily guard has to be maintained against such imposition.

If the publisher is compelled by law to exercise constant vigilance, to which no one objects, he, too, should be protected against assault. If the informant is a private person, there is no remedy whatever, although the publisher may be mulcted in heavy damages. If it is an employe, who may have been persuaded to misstate facts for a consideration, there is no punishment but discharge from his employment, which has been taken into the account beforehand and provided against. Now the furnishing of libelous matter under a guarantee of good faith, with full knowledge that it is false and defamatory, is a far greater offense, not only against the publishing agency but against the person maligned, than the publication of it in good faith and under misapprehension. It should not, therefore, be over looked by the law.

Every newspaper withholds from publication hundreds of items every year, supplied to it with the most solemn assurances of reliability, which, on examination, prove to be without foundation in fact. But when it is deceived, as it must sometimes be, and has to pay the penalty, the active and willful cause of its error should not be permitted to escape scot free, chuckling because he has accomplished, at another's expense, his personal purpose to injure. If he, too, were brought within reach of the law, so that imprisonment awaited him for his offense, there would be fewer mistakes made and fewer attempts to use the types as an agent of private malice.

Ingalls Looming Up.

Kansas City Star: In the discussion of the senatorial question in Kansas John J. Ingalls looms up as a conspicuous figure. He is the preference of a large number of the Republicans who have been interviewed on this subject, although he is not an avowed candidate. Kansas has always been proud of Ingalls. He has some bitter enemies, but he also has many loyal and admiring friends who would be glad to see him in the seat which was occupied by P. B. Plumb. The Republicans who favor Ingalls are prominent in the councils of the party, and, as a rule, are men of high standing and of wide influence.

WILL PROBABLY SIGN

There Is Reason to Believe That Mayor Lewis Will Approve the Water Purchase Resolution.

He Claims to Have Until Tuesday Morning at Ten O'Clock to Make His Decision.

Bar Association Will Meet Tonight and Recommend Candidates for the Municipal and Special Judges.

It may be set down as an almost settled fact that Mayor Lewis will sign the resolution accepting the proposition of President Belknap for the sale of the gas and water plants of the Duluth Gas & Water company. The mayor claims he has until Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock in which to sign and will probably avail himself all the time he is allowed. He has been considering the question from many different sides and has been conscious of the importance attaching to his decision. He has not definitely stated whether he intends to sign it or not and may yet decide to return it without his approval but it is safe to predict that he will sign it.

THE JUDGESHIPS.

Meeting of the Bar Association to Recommend Two Candidates.

Tonight the bar association of the city will meet at the city hall and select candidates for the municipal and special judgeships to be recommended to the conventions of the different parties. The sentiment among the attorneys is pretty strong for H. B. Dibbell for the judgeship. There are two other candidates who are making a strong fight for it. One is Judge E. L. Winje, the present special judge and Isaac E. West, who was the candidate against Judge Powell three years ago.

A. H. Crassweller is most prominently mentioned for special judge. There are a number of candidates for both offices, however, who may develop a strong following.

Beyond all rivals in leavening power is Dr. Price's cream baking powder. Government analysis gives it 166 cubic inches available carbonic acid gas per ounce, higher by far than any other baking powder known.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

The Musical Society's First Concert Next Wednesday Evening.

As the outcome of many rehearsals the musical society will give its first concert next Wednesday night. The chorus will consist of 100 voices and everything will be accompanied with the full orchestra. The soloists will be Mrs. Custance, J. Howard, H. G. Gearhart, W. M. Barrett and Miss Jennie Magoffin. The musical society has a well-earned fame for excellent concerts and those attending this one will undoubtedly be many times repaid for the small outlay.

W. G. Smith, editor of School Education, published at Minneapolis, addressed the students Tuesday morning. He said that he was heartily ashamed of himself because he had lived thirteen years in Minnesota and had never before seen Duluth and her magnificent High School. He also remarked that in Duluth one could obtain a magnificent view if he continued to climb, and asked the students to apply the axiom to their school work.

The following program was rendered by the Adelphics on Friday afternoon: Music, Henry Brearly; critic's report, Maude Clark; oration, Albert Schulze; essay, Gertrude Wallace; vocal solo, Eva Rockwell; German recitation, C. Applehagen. Debate: "Resolved that Alsace-Lorraine Should Not Belong to Germany." Affirmative, William Wells and Laura Ward. Negative, Hale Horton and Fannie Bowers. The decision of the judges was in favor of the affirmative. General discussion was led by Winnie Wheeler in the affirmative and Robbins Anderson in the negative.

Thursday morning one of the teachers lost a purse containing $70, and had despaired of ever again feeling the reassuring touch of the same, when C. T. Larson, of 321 Seventeenth avenue east, appeared with the missing purse. He had found it on the street and contrary to the advice of several friends made haste to return the property to its rightful owner.

It has been decided that the joint contest between the Olympic and Adelphic societies will be held on the afternoon of Dec. 21, at 3 o'clock. No admission will be charged and the public and eighth-grade pupils are invited to attend.

I have money with which to take at once any good mortgage loan. Just now I would like some $5000 loans.

Some of my correspondents are offering to sell property in Duluth at very low figures. You'll pay more six months hence if you don't buy now—and be much more anxious to do so, in all probability.

WORDS OF WARNING.

Eastern Man, Formerly of Duluth, Speaks of the Situation.

A man who formerly resided in Duluth and is now living in a large Eastern city, but who still retains his large property interests here, has watched the negotiations for the purchase of the water plant with great interest. He wrote recently to a friend here, saying:

"The purchase of the water company's assets at the enormous price stated is a great mistake you are making. Your water tax will be no less; the stealing will cut down your resources and in the end real estate will be taxed to make up the deficit. The plant could be duplicated, no doubt, for one-half you are paying for it. If you have to place the bonds you will find it will be at a great shave. Everything is now scrutinized severely. I believe with your enormous school expenses and water debt Duluth securities will go to default in five years unless you have great growth in that time and that is going to depend upon the prosperity of the country. No one looks for any real estate until next fall when the crop begins to move. The era of lower prices for labor and everything else is here to stay for some time, I fear.

"The financial and conservative men of Duluth ought to check the boomers in Duluth. The boom of Superior ought to be a warning to every one of your citizens. Superior's downfall has had a bad effect on everything in Duluth from an investor's view. Its fate is constantly quoted now when I refer to Duluth. Of course in time if you manage Duluth well this feeling will pass away, but you must remember that St. Paul and Minneapolis have also added to the disquiet of investors there and this experience will add to the general fear for a while. Do not make any mistake about this matter. I hear it frequently discussed and know that there is sufficient in the situation to demand conservative action for some time to come.

"I hear of some impending failure both in St. Paul and Duluth. We look here for considerable trouble all over the East, the final shaking down of the panic of 1893. Congress will do nothing to help the situation. In the meantime we will have a hard winter, a reorganization all along the lines for the coming year and a struggle on the part of everyone to get into better trim.

"When the Republicans get into power the new boom will commence, but it will commence slowly and grow in momentum with the years. We now have competition in grain and cotton growing that we never had before and this fact will alone make lower prices for our principal products and of course cut down the purchasing power of the people.

"But Duluth has exceptional advantages in its cheap iron ore and lumber and as a distributing point for the Northwest, that will make you rich in spite of yourselves. Husband your advantages and do not allow a rival to crowd you to the wall by reason ot your high taxes on industry."

At every fashionable club, what? Why, Dr. Price's cream baking powder!

Breakers Ahead!

Prudence, foresight, that might have saved many a good ship that has gone to pieces among the breakers, is a quality "conspicuous by its absence" among many classes of invalids, and among none more notably than persons troubled with inactivity of the kidneys and bladder. When these organs fall off in duty, grievous trouble is to be apprehended. Bright's disease, diabetes, catarrh and stone in the bladder, are among the diseases which a disregard of early symptoms confirm and render fatal. That signally effectual diuretic, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, will—and let no one so troubled forget this—remedy the symptoms of approaching renal disease and check its further progress. Equally efficacious is the Bitters for constipation, liver complaint, malarial and rheumatic trouble and debility.

Any one who has children will rejoice with L. B. Mulford, of Plainfield, N. J. His little boy, 5 years of age, was sick with croup. For two days and nights he tried various remedies recommended by friends and neighbors. He says: "I thought sure I would lose him. I had seen Chamberlain's Cough Remedy advertised and thought I would try it as a last hope and am happy to say that after two doses he slept until morning. I gave it to him next day and a cure was effected. I keep this remedy in the house now and as soon as any of my children show signs of croup I give it to them and that is the last of it." Twenty-five and 50 cent bottles for sale by all druggists.

DREADFUL PSORIASIS

Covering Entire Body with White Scales. Suffering Fearful. Cured by Cuticura.

My disease (psoriasis) first broke out on my left cheek, spreading across my nose, and almost covering my face. It ran into my eyes, and the physician was afraid I would lose my eyesight altogether. It spread all over my head, and my hair all fell out, until I was entirely bald-headed; it then broke out on my arms and shoulders, until my arms were just one sore. It covered my entire body, my face, head, and shoulders being the worst. The white scabs fell constantly from my head, shoulders, and arms; the skin would thicken and be red and very itchy, and would crack and bleed if scratched. After spending many hundreds of dollars, I was pronounced incurable. I heard of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and after using two bottles CUTICURA RESOLVENT, I could see a change; and after I had taken four bottles, I was almost cured; and when I had used six bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, one box of CUTICURA, and one cake of CUTICURA SOAP, I was cured of the dreadful disease from which I had suffered for five years. I cannot express with a pen what I suffered before using the REMEDIES. They saved my life, and I feel it my duty to recommend them. My hair is restored as good as ever, and so is my eyesight.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

Bishop Charles H. Fowler Will Lecture on the Great American.

There is great interest being taken in the second lecture of the Star course by Bishop Fowler on Dec. 14, at the M. E. church, his subject being "Abraham Lincoln." This lecture was delivered in St. Paul not long ago and the Pioneer Press in a two column notice of the lecture said:

"America's foremost citizen was eulogized by one of the greatest of American orators last evening at the House of Hope church. The announcement that Bishop Charles H. Fowler would speak on Abraham Lincoln was sufficient to pack the house to overflowing. The gathering was a representative St. Paul audience, and betrayed the fact more than once by its vigorous spontaneous applause at the patriotic utterances of the speaker. Men and women of all ages, of all sects, came to see the well known Methodist and to hear him deliver his already celebrated address. They did not come alone to learn of the great liberator, but to hear his virtues sung again. It is needless to say that they were not disappointed, though advertised as a lecture, it was more than that. It was an address such as is seldom heard. Bishop Fowler handled the subject with great skill."

A Red Hot Fight.

DENVER, Dec. 8.—The fight between Billy Mahan and Paddy Purtell, known as the "Saginaw Kid," which ended at 2 a. m. today, was red hot from start to finish. In the third round Purtell broke a bone in his right hand and in the seventh one in his left, and in the twenty-first round he threw up the sponge.

A Household Treasure.

D. W. Fuller, of Canajoharie, N. Y., says that he always keeps Dr. King's New Discovery in the house and his family has always found the very best results follow its use; that he would not be without it if procurable. G. A. Dykeman, druggist, Catskill, N. Y., says that Dr. King's New Discovery is undoubtedly the best cough remedy; that he has used it in his family for eight years, and it has never failed to do all that is claimed for it. Why not try a remedy as long tried and tested. Trial bottles free at Max Wirth's drug store. Regular size 50 cents and $1.

THE GREATEST MODERN PHYSICIAN.

To Whom Thousands of Men and Women and Children Everywhere Owe Their Life and Happiness Today.

His Reputation Has Made Dartmouth College Famous in Every Town and Village in the Country---Prof. Edward E. Phelps, M.D., LL.D., Who First Gave to His Profession Paine's Celery Compound, the Wonderful Remedy That Makes People Well.

Prof. Edward E. Phelps, M.D., LL.D.

"Excepting its handful of magnificent statesmen and its military heroes," says the most recent writer upon America, "the people owe more to Dartmouth's physician-teacher than to any one man.

"In every walk of life, among the highest officeholders at Washington, in the homes of the best people in the large cities, among the every-day folks of the country, families in comfortable circumstances, families that 'live from hand to mouth' and could not, if they wished, afford the services of any but an ordinary physician—everywhere I have met people to whom Paine's celery compound has been a blessing."

The story of the life-work of this giant among men has been often told and is familiar to most readers. The likeness above is probably the best portrait of him yet printed.

It was the world-famed discovery of Professor Phelps of an infallible cure for those fearful ills that result from an impaired nervous system and impure blood which has endeared the great doctor to the world and made his life an era in the practice of medicine.

Professor Phelps was born in Connecticut and graduated from the military school at Norwich, Vt. He studied medicine with Professor Nathan Smith, of New Haven, Conn., and graduated in medicine at Yale.

His unusual talent soon brought him reputation and prominence among his professional brethren. First he was elected to the professorship of anatomy and surgery in the Vermont university. Next he was appointed lecturer on materia medica and medical botany in Dartmouth college. The next year he was chosen professor of the chair then vacated by Professor Robby, and occupied the chair, the most important one in the country, at the time when he first formulated his most remarkable prescription.

In view of the overwhelming testimony to the value of Paine's celery compound that has recently appeared from men of national reputation, the picture of Professor Phelps is particularly interesting.

New York's state treasurer, Hon. Addison B. Colvin.

Ex-minister to Austria, John M. Francis.

Miss Jenness Miller.

President Cook, of the National Teachers' association.

Hon. David P. Toomey, the publisher of Donohoe's Magazine.

Gen. John A. Halderman, of New York city.

Hon. John G. Carlisle's private secretary.

The popular and talented actress, Marie Tempest; the poet author, Albert H. Hardy; the mayor of Montreal, brave Ida Lewis and a host more of prominent men and women are among the thousands of grateful people who have recently sent to the proprietors of this wonderful remedy their expressions of its unequalled value—men and women who can well afford and do command the highest medical advice in the country.

And then also from "the plain people" there comes thousands of honest, straightforward, heartfelt letters, telling how Paine's celery compound has made them well.

Their testimony simply goes to show what New England's vigorous essayist has so aptly said, that Paine's celery compound is not a patent medicine; it is not a sarsaparilla; it is not a mere tonic; it is not an ordinary nervine—it is as far beyond them all as the diamond is superior to cheap glass.

It makes people well. It is the one true specific recognized and prescribed today by eminent practitioners for diseases arising from a debilitated nervous system. Professor Phelps gave to his profession a positive cure for sleeplessness, wasting strength, dyspepsia, biliousness, liver complaint, neuralgia, rheumatism, all nervous diseases and kidney troubles. For all such complaints Paine's celery compound has succeeded again and again where everything else has failed.

It is as harmless as it is good, and it was the universal advice of the medical profession that the compound be placed where the general public could secure it, and thousands of people have every year proven the wisdom of this good advice.

Only a truly great and effective remedy could continue, as Paine's celery compound has done, to hold its high place in the estimation of the ablest physicians and of the thousands of busy men and women whose only means of judging is from the actual results in their own homes or among their friends. No remedy was ever so highly recommended, because none ever accomplished so much.

Today Paine's celery compound stands without an equal for feeding exhausted nerves and building up the strength of the body. It cures radically and permanently. The nervous prostration and general debility from which thousands of women suffer so long that it finally gets to be a second nature with them—all this suffering and despondency can be very soon removed by properly feeding the nerves and replacing the unhealthy blood by a fresher, more highly vitalized fluid. A healthy increase in appetite and a corresponding gain in weight and good spirits follow the use of Paine's celery compound.

Paine's celery compound is the most remarkable medical achievement of this last half of the nineteenth century.

Joining Secret Societies.

ST. PAUL, Dec. 8.—Judge Kelly, a prominent Catholic, has joined the Knights of Pythias, and other Catholics here are joining secret societies. Archbishop Ireland said last night: "The question whether Catholics should belong to the so-called secret societies, such as the Sons of Temperance, Odd Fellows and Knights of Pythias or not is now being considered by the authorities at Rome and will soon be given out. Catholics would do well not to seek membership in these societies."

A Typical Republican Fight.

Chicago Times: The people of Minnesota are enjoying an object lesson in the art of making United States senators and the purposes for which senators are made which is exceedingly instructive. The term of Senator Washburn expires in March. The legislature which is to choose his successor is—thanks to antagonism between Democrats and Populists—Republican. As usual, the people find the Republican legislators merely the inanimate counters which great rival corporations use in playing for a senatorship.

Washburn is, of course, a candidate for election. Equally, of course, he is a railway magnate, and is in the senate principally as a representative of corporate interests. Another railway magnate, the redoubtable "Jim" Hill, has concluded that his road rather than Washburn's should be represented in the American house of lords, and he has taken up Governor Knute Nelson, formerly attorney for his corporation, as his candidate for the senatorial toga. The fight is bitter and the newspapers and politicians of the state are arrayed in hostile camps.

On the surface the question submitted to the legislature is whether Senator Washburn or Knute Nelson can better serve the state of Minnesota in the United States senate. At bottom it is merely a contest to determine whether Washburn's "Soo" road, which is part of the Canadian Pacific system; or Hill's Great Northern road, which is part of the Northwestern system, shall have an agent in a chair in the United States senate assigned to Minnesota. It is a typical Republican senatorial contest. Whoever wins the people lose. It is a pity there is not enough political independence in the Minnesota legislature to cry "a plague on both your houses!" and elect a true representative of the people.

A HORSE KILLED.

Runaway Animal Dashed Into a Telephone Pole and Eternity.

This morning about 11 o'clock when opposite the brewery coming into the city a horse hitched to the delivery wagon of Albert Bloch, the baker, became frightened and started to run. A bolt came out of one side of the shafts and finally a wheel caught in the street car track and threwout the driver, Henry Ganert, bruising him up some but inflicting no serious injury. The animal and the shafts pulled loose from the vehicle about a block east of the city hall. At the corner of Boyd & Wilbur's store the horse, while running wildly, struck his head against a telephone pole, broke his neck and fell over dead onto the sidewalk, barely missing the big front window glass. The animal belongs to a man named Currie and was in the keeping of Bloch.

WANTS HER ALIMONY

Mrs. Anna McLeod Alleges that Her Former Husband Has Not Obeyed the Court's Order.

She Claims He Has Received Money as Damages from the Duluth Street Railway Company.

Receiver W. B. Silvey Presents Some Facts and Figures Concerning the Spalding Hotel Affairs.

An old divorce case dating back to 1890, was brought up again in special term of district court this morning, and as a result Henry F. McLeod was adjudged guilty of contempt of court and a bench warrant was ordered issued for him by Judge Moer. In 1890 Anna McLeod brought suit against McLeod for divorce and alimony on the ground of cruelty and non-support. No defense was made and the decree was issued together with an order for $25 a month alimony.

November 30, 1894, a number of affidavits were filed to the effect that Mrs. McLeod is in a precarious and dangerous condition of health and is likely to die at any time of consumption. She is badly in need of funds and mortgages amounting to $800 threaten to involve her property. Not a cent of alimony has been paid by the recreant husband although she alleges he lately received $1500 out of a personal injury suit against the Duluth Street Railway company, and the amount now due her is $1275. Mrs. McLeod pathetically concludes her affidavit by saying that "she knows that she cannot possibly live but a short time, but in the short time she may live she would like to have a little money to make herself comfortable."

In answer to this affidavit, McLeod swears that betore the divorce was applied for they had agreed that it would be better to separate, and she agreed to make no opposition to the proceedings. A year or two ago he lost a hand in a street car accident, and during a friendly call his former wife advised him to sue for damages. He alleges that she promised not to bother him about the alimony. For the loss of his hand the company settled for only $750, and he has already used that in paying his debts. When the agreement was made to separate he alleges he deeded to her a house and lot worth over $1700, which she still holds. A counter affidavit by Mrs. McLeod denies the agreement for divorce.

Nov. 30 Judge Lewis signed an order for McLeod to appear in special term today and pay all the alimony due his former wife or to show cause why he should not be punished tor contempt of court. When the case was called Mr. McLeod did not appear and a bench warrant was issued for his arrest for contempt of court.

Spalding House Affairs.

The application of W. B. Silvey for the extension of the E. P. Emerson receivership for one year was to have come up in special term this morning, but it was continued until this afternoon. An affidavit of Receiver Silvey accompanies the petition in which he gives various reasons why he should be allowed to continue the receivership. He expects to do a big business next summer and gives as reasons for the comparatively light business this summer the fact that the Northern Steamship company only had one passenger boat, whereas it will have several next year; the great railroad strike and the forest fires which interfered with travel. He expects to make a profit of $25,000 next summer

A $35,000 mortgage on the hotel which fell due Dec. 9, he expects to be able to extend, and to make the following payments: $3000 to $4000 on Jan. 1; $4000 to $5000 May 1; $12,000 to $14,000 Sept. 1; and the balance in equal payments Jan. 1, and May 1, 1896.

His monthly statement was filed this morning and it shows a profit for November of $1479.91, and a total profit of $13,797.23. Total disbursements have been $149,787.36, and receipts $151,527.07.

Hibbing Difficulty Settled.

The Hibbing school difficulty has been settled and the quo warranto proceedings of C. H. Glover against Eugene Brown were stricken from the calendar this morning. George L. Robinson, the old clerk remains, while the men fighting over the treasurer's office, Eugene Brown and C. H. Glover, have both resigned in favor of James Ganzey. The new director, James McIntyre, is retained.

The indictment against Benton Hurd, Eugene Brown and G. L. Robinson, the old officers returned by the last grand jury, still stands. The indictment is for unlawfully converting public money, and alleges that while controlling $4000 belonging to the school district they paid $400 to J. F. Twitchell for the pretended purchase of a site for a school building which was never legally selected by the voters.

The much litigated matter of Alderman Cox's storm windows used on St. George R. Fitzhugh's houses in Brookdale division, for the recovery of which St. George lately got a verdict, came up before Judge Ensign this morning, and the alderman was made happy by an order setting aside the verdict and ordering a new trial.

DOINGS OF THE HOUSE.

Clark, of Missouri, Says He Will Talk a Bill to Death.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—Less than twenty-five members were present when the house was called to order at noon today. In the morning hour Mr. Mallory, from the committee on interstate commerce, called up the bill to promote the efficiency of the revenue cutter service. The bill was considered several times at the last session. It provides for the retirement of officers of the service incapacitated by reason of the infirmities of age or physical or mental disabilities.

Mr. Mallory, Mr. Enelish and Mr. Covert supported the bill, but it was antagonized by Mr. Clark, of Missouri, who deliberately avowed his intention of talking it to death. Mr. Clark's speech was a characteristic one, humorous and audacious to the point of sensationalism, and it kept the house in a confusion of laughter, cheers and jeers. The morning hour expired without action.

ARBITRATION OF STRIKES.

Two Important Charges Made in the Springer Bill.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—Two important changes in the bill for national arbitration of strikes have been made as a result of conference between labor commissioner Wright and Representatives McGann, Springer and Erdman. They are, first, that labor unions be chartered by the government; second, that the charter of a labor union be forfeited when its members resort to violence in the interest of strikes.

It is probable that the measure thus amended will be the form it will take in the discussion before congress. Commissioner Wright and the commissioners who made the recent investigation of the Pullman strike, will appear before the labor committee on Tuesday to express their views.

THE HOLIDAY BOOKS

Many Handsome Volumes, Illustrated in the Most Artistic Manner, Issued for the Christmas Season.

Mrs. F. A. Steel's Collection of Indian Stories, "Tales of the Punjab Told by the People."

An American Makes Answer to the Perennial Question, How to Reconcile France and Germany.

Among the beautiful little volumes issued for the holiday season are several published by the Frederick A. Stokes company, of New York, which call for special praise. They form a collection of the most successful and best-loved works by various authors, and each volume contains a large number of original illustrations by well-known artists, printed with the utmost care. "A Child's Dream of a Star," by Dickens, is beautifully illustrated by Elizabeth S. Tucker, while "The Day-Dream" by Tennyson is accompanied by fine illustrations by W. St. John Harper. The typographical details are somewhat in the best modern French style, and the paper is of the highest grade. The collection is issued in a variety of pleasing bindings, to correspond with the dainty interiors of the books. For sale by the Duluth Book and Paper company.

The Christmas number of Harper's Weekly will consist of thirty-two pages, including an illuminated cover, and will contain a large number of especially attractive short stories. John Kendrick Bangs will contribute a ghost story; Howard Pyle a novel in outline, entitled "Sailors and Landsmen;" a new writer, Reba Gregory Prelat, a powerful and dramatic story, for which illustrations will be made by C. Carleton. There will be other stories and features appropriate to the holiday season, and drawings by Frederic Remington, Gilbert Gaul, F. Luis Mora, Peter S. Newell, Miss Lydia Field Emmet, W. H. Hyde and others.

"Marie," by Laura E. Richards, has just been published by Estes & Lauriat, of Boston. This, the fourth volume in the now famous "Capt. January" series, bids fair to outrival in sale and popularity any of its predecessors, of which, by the way, over 100,000 copies have already been sold in the few years they have been before the public. This story will unquestionably rank as Mrs. Richards' best work so far, and it is perfectly safe to predict that no one who picks the volume up and commences to read will drop it until the story has been read to the finish. This touching little story is really a sweet song in prose, the central figure in it, Marie, is a little French girl, with her fiddle, who, passing through an old-fashioned New England country village with a band of itinerant musicians, becomes separated from them and remains there. The figures are most artistically drawn, and the whole is a perfect literary gem.

The holiday number of Town Topics differs from the holiday editions of other publications in the fact that its publishers have relied npon the excellence of its literary contents instead of illustrations to attract and entertain the purchaser. The Christmas Town Topics is a handsome book of sixty-four pages, forty-eight of which are "the choicest reading matter procurable, the whole being contained in an alluring colored lithographed cover. Poems and stories by the best authors of the day, including Bret Harte, Walter Besant, Bliss Carman, etc., etc., are interspersed with the quips, bright witticisms and dainty, pert sketches from which this publication has earned its reputation. There are also a number of ably written reviews by members of the staff. The number is one that will ornament any library table, and that, aside from the literary excellence of its contents, is well worthy of preservation as a comely souvenir of the merry season. Town Topics Publishing company, 208 Fifth avenue, New York city.

Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Boston, are the publishers of "Pushing to the Front, or Success Under Difficulties," of which Oreson Sweet Marden is the author. Inspiration is the key-note of this book; its object, to encourage youth standing on the threshold of active life, throbbing with high hope, hungry for stories of successful lives, and eager for every bit of information which will help them to win their way in the world; to assist the hesitating youth to find his right place in life; to help round boys out of square holes into which they have been wedged by circumstances or mistakes; to show the youth that it he is outside of his proper sphere he is getting his living by his weakness rather than by his strength, and that he is doomed to perpetual inferiority and disappointment if out of his place; to stimulate the youth to act the Columbus to his own undiscovered possibilities. The engravings are especially fine, being after such artists as Lenbach, Susterman. Rajon, Sir Thomas Lawrence, Baron Francois Gerard, Healy; treasury department engravings, etc. Over twenty of the portraits have been taken from original sources, and have never been used before. This book is invaluable to youth, young men, young women, teachers, students, clergymen, public speakers, and business men.

'On the Threshold of Universal Peace" is the title of an American's answer, in the December Review of Reviews, to the perennial question in European politics —how to reconcile France and Germany. The writer (whose signature is "Pan-Aryan") finds the solution of the problem in the division of Alsace-Lorraine: the French speaking portion, he says, should go to France, and the German speaking portion to Germany. His article is a fresh and vigorous contribution to a discussion of immense international moment. The prospects of a re-establishment of Olympic games as a factor in the promotion of peace among the nations are discussed by Dr. Albert Shaw. The discussion is apropos of the proposed games at Athens in 1896, at Paris in 1900 and probably in the United States in 1904, in which all the leading nations in the world will be represented.

A book that will be welcomed no less eagerly by the children than by students of folklore from a scientific standpoint is Mrs. F. A. Steel's collection of Indian stories entitled "Tales of the Punjab: Told by the People." They were taken down by her from the very lips of the natives in some of the most primitive districts in India, yet these tales, handed down solely by word of mouth from one generation to another, could hardly be distinguished from those in a Teutonic collection like that of the brothers Grimm; and even closer examination serves only to impress upon us more strongly than ever before the unity of the great Indo-European family of nations. The volume is issued in the Macmillan green and gold Cranford series, and is delightfully illustrated by J. Lockwood Kipling, the father of Rudyard Kipling.

The always fascinating atmosphere of stock speculation forms the subject of Gilmer McKendree's strong story, "A Deal in Denver," which is the leading feature of the December number of that sprightly publication, "Tales from Town Topics." The picture of a high-class New York physician who neglects his patients and his practice to plunge into the maelstrom of Wall street is graphically drawn, and the story possesses other elements, both tragic and pathetic, that are sure to interest the reader from start to finish. The case of a murder so ingeniously contrived and skillfully executed as to utterly baffle the police is sufficiently thrilling to enchain the attention of the reader, even without the other strong elements that "A Deal in Denver" contains. "A Deal in Denver" is accompanied by a collection of short stories, sketches, poems and witticisms taken from the back numbers of Town Topics. The whole makes a bright volume, especially suited for an acceptable holiday gift. Town Topics Publishing company, 208 Fifth avenue, New York City.

The relation which price bears to to quality in literature is made obscure by the Christmas Cosmopolitan. Stories by Rudyard Kipling, William Dean Howells, Mrs. Spencer Trask, Mrs. Burton Harrison, and Albion W. Tourgee, are interspersed with poetry by Sir Edwin Arnold, Edmund Clarence Stedman, and James Whitcomb Riley, while through the number are scattered illustrations by such famous artists as Remington, Foche, Reinhart, Turner, Van Schaick, Gibson and Stevens. A series of portraits of beautiful women of society illustrate an article on "The Relations of Photography to Art;" a travel article by Napoleon Ney, grandson of the famous field marshal; one of the series of "Great Passions of History," to which Froude and Gosse have already contributed, and half a dozen others equally interesting, go to make up the attractions of the number. The Cosmopolitan people say: "We might charge you more for this number, but, in all frankness, could we give you better material, better illustrated, if we charged you $1 a copy?"

"The Evolution of the Country Club" is discussed by Caspar W. Whitney in the December number of Harper's Magazine. "We Americans do nothing by halves," says Mr. Whitney. "Perhaps we should enjoy life more if we did; and the history of the country club, as much as anything else, bears witness to our tendency to superlative development. From having not a single country club in the entire United States of America twenty-five years ago, we have in half that period evolved the handsomest in the world."

The presence in this country of the Very Rev. Dr. S. Reynolds Hole, dean of Rochester cathedral, England, one of the brightest and wittiest of contemporary English divines, is giving a lively impetus to the sale of the learned dean's genial reminiscences, embraced in the volumes "Memories of Dean Hole" and "More Memeries of Dean Hole." The volumes are published by the well-known house of Macmillan & Co., London and New York, and are of remarkable literary interest.

The December issue of Harper's Bazar will be distinguished, so far as fashion is concerned, by elegant toilettes for evening and coming-out receptions, dinner and street costumes, and beautiful wraps in variety. "Our Paris Letter" will not only touch on fashion, but reflect the gayety of Paris in full notes as to what is going on in the world of music and drama. During December will be published two very striking stories, "The Tifft Way," by Maria Louise Pool; and "Mr. Ruthven's Black List," by Octave Thanet. An interesting paper on "Hypnotism in Fiction" will discuss a question of present interest; it is by Adaline W. Sterling. "Coming-Out Receptions" form the theme of one of Spectator's brilliant essays. The Christmas flavor will pervade the earlier numbers.

Professor Drummond has found the material for a great Christmas address in the career of D. L. Moody, which appears in McClure's Magazine for December. It is a remarkable story of a man whom, in the course of the article, Professor Drummond characterizes as follows: "Probably America possesses at this moment no more extraordinary personage; not even amongst the most brilliant of her sons has any rendered more stupendous or more enduring service to his country or his time. * * * Whether estimated by the moral qualities which go to the making up of his personal character, or the extent to which he has impressed these upon whole communities of men, on both sides of the Atlantic, there is perhaps no more truly great man living than D. L. Moody."

IN SPORTING CIRCLES

Skating Season is now on and all of the Rinks are Enjoying Good Patronage.

Fair Crowd at the Finnick Benefit and Plenty of Fun, but not Much Science.

Jimmy Murphy, the Chicago Boy, is Matched to Fight George W. Curtis on Dec. 19.

The winter season of sports is fairly launched on its way now, and all the skating rinks are running at full blast with good attendances. Many are also taking advantage of the vast amount of fine skating to be had on the numerous sheets of ice about the bay and slips. The Endion rink has had several good evenings for skating and the crowds have been immense.

The City band has been engaged for Wednesdays and Saturdays for the entire winter and nearly every Wednesday and Saturday the rink is filled with skaters gliding over the smooth surface to the music of the "Alabama Coon," which is becoming a favorite for that purpose.

The Glen Avon rink is also open and has been for some days. The ice is in excellent condition and every afternoon and evening a circle of skaters winds around the space on the inside of the rink devoted to the "roaring game."

Harry Finnick will leave soon on a trip for the benefit of his health. When he returns he has announced his willingness to meet all comers of his own class, Jimmy Murphy preferred.

This unwonted weather has had a bad effect on curling and skating. Up to the time of the rain curling was kept up each night at the Glen Avon rink, and some rattling informal games were had during the first part of the week.

* * *

The last regular game was played last Saturday night when the final draw for the decorated brooms came off. R. J. McLeod rink carried off the trophy. Following is the score:

Alex. Macrae, lead. D. G. Cutler, lead.
E. S. Palmer, second. E. P. Towne, second.
Donald McLeod, third. Walter Ayers, third.
R. J. McLeod, skip—17. C.B.Woodruff, skip—10.

As soon as the ice again hardens the club will begin playing points for a beautiful curling scene painted by Feodor von Luerzer. The painting will be raffled off among the members of the club, and the lucky holder will put it up as prize for the curler who makes the best individual record.

The curling club will not be officially represented at the Northwestern Curling association at Milwaukee, but at least two rinks, R. C. Heneage's and the R. J. MacLeod rink, the holders of the Merriam trophy, will probably go. The rinks will be made up as follows:

C. R. Heneage, skip; W. C. Collins, two; E. P. Hall, three; S. F. Fullerton, lead.
R. J. MacLeod, skip; Harry Hurdon, three; Ron Smith, two; Thomas Gibson, lead.

A good crowd will be sent to the Winnipeg bonspeil in February.

The Governor Merriam medal is held in Duluth and not in St. Paul, as stated by a local paper some time ago, and unless all signs fail it will stay here for some time. The trophy was donated by ex-Governor Merriam several years ago, and it is to be competed for only by rinks belonging to clubs inside of the state.

The trophy is under the control of the Northwestern Curling association of which the Duluth club is a member, and the association regulates the contests for the possession of the medal. The winning club holds it for one year. Last winter was the fourth in which the medal was competed for, and it was won by the R. J. McLeod rink, made up as given above. It must be played for again this winter, and as the McLeod rink is composed of crack players and is in a better condition that it ever was, the probabilities are that it will remain in Duluth for another year.

When it will be played for is not yet decided. The executive committee of the Northwestern Curling association have the power of determining that, but as the winning club has usually some influence in making that determination, every effort will be made to have the contest come off in Duluth, and it will probably be successful.

In the face of the setting in of the rainy season all the winter sports are temporarily laid on the shelf until a variety of weather more appropriate to Northern Minnesota is obtained.

* * *

Superior is going to have a polo club. They are organizing, and a day or two ago one of the boys was over talking polo to the Duluth team, and in consequence there may be a game between the two teams in a couple of weeks.

THE WORLD OF LABOR

There Is Some Talk of Reorganizing the Barbers' Union Which Was Once Very Prosperous.

Delegate McCallum Will Endeavor to Get John Burns to Visit Duluth and Speak Here.

A Recent Visit Paid to the Altrurian Colony Which Has Been Started in California.

There will be an interregnum of three weeks before the Federated Trades assembly meets again. Last evening was not the second Friday in the month, so the meeting goes over for another week. Matters in organized labor circles are quiet, too. About the only real new movement seeming to have any life whatever, is the agitation to reorganize the Barbers' union. Three years ago the journeymen barbers had one of the best, strongest and most effective unions in the city, but in some way interest waned and the organization was allowed to lapse. There is quite a strong sentiment in favor of reorganization and the matter may come up for consideration and action at the next meeting of the assembly. Some of the boss barbers are greatly in favor of the idea and will do all in their power to see it successfully carried into effect.

On Tuesday Alfred McCallum started for Denver, where he will represent the Duluth assembly at the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor. He carried with him a set of resolutions complimentary to Hon. John Burns, of England, passed by the assembly, and a special and pressing invitation to the great English exponent and champion of organized labor to come to Duluth on his return and deliver an address.

THE REAL ALTRURIA.

A New Co-operative Community Started in California.

I have traveled to Altruria. It is not such a mysterious journey as it sounds. I left San Francisco at 7:40 in the morning, and at 11:45 on the same day I was in the land of the impossible. There is no money in that land and no competition. There is neither wealth there nor poverty, and every man takes his brother's hand and says, "We will not work against each other, but for each other."

There are a lot of strange ideas, strange customs and strange promises in Altruria, and the strangest part of the whole thing is that it's a real place, as real as Petaluma or Santa Rosa and almost as easy to reach. I went up there the other day.

"There," said the moon faced boy who drove, "there's your mill. These folks you want is campin som'ers round here, I guess."

The mill has not been used for some time, and the great wheel is colored a tender grayish green with young lichens. We heard voices inside the mill-room, and we went in. A tall, strong man with a heavy gray beard was climbing a narrow stairway, carrying something on his back. "Put it in the corner of the room," said a woman's voice from the top of the ladder. A man stepped out of the shadow as we entered.

"We are looking for the Altrurians," I said.

"Well," said the man who stepped out of the shadow, "you've found 'em. I'm one of 'em."

"Where is your settlement?" I began.

The man laughed.

"There isn't any here yet," he said, "but there will be tomorrow. We're just moving in. The women folks are all at the house. I'll take you down there if you say so."

I did say so, and we started off down a way that was half road and half path. The man trudged along with a sturdy tread. He was good to look at, in his way. He was strong and in the prime of his manhood, though his thick hair was touched with white here and there. His shrewd, courageous blue eyes were bright and kindly, and they made me think somehow of the eyes of a very happy, very young person, who is expecting something pleasant to happen every minute. He didn't quite like the idea of visitors, and he made no attempt to disguise his feeling, although he was perfectly civil. "There's nothing to see," he said, looking first at the artist, then at me. "We're just like other folks, and we move just like 'em. We haven't any religious creed in particular, and no peculiar dress. And you won't find any interesting cranks. We are everyday fellows tired of living in anarchy."

I was a little surprised at the word anarchy, and I suppose I looked surprised, for his keen blue eyes twinkled, and he said:

"Oh, yes; I call you an anarchist! You don't know it, but that's what you are. I guess that's what most people are nowadays, every one fighting for himself and believing that that's the only right and proper way to live. Well, we got tired of living that way, and we've come off here in the valley to see how we can manage by trying to help each other. We're going to run things on what we think is a perfectly fair and square business basis. I'm going to help my neighbor, and I'm going to expect my neighbor to help me."

We came suddenly in sight of a little clearing. A long, low house stood in a beautiful little valley at the foot of the sloping hills.

It was moving day at the long, low house. There was no doubt of that. The porch was covered with boxes and barrels and bundles. There was a big wheelbarrow full of dishes standing near the steps, and stoves and beds and chairs were heaped in quite a little mountain around the door. A wagon stood at the end of the house, and two or three men were unloading it. A man toiled up a little rise of ground with a pail of water in each hand.

"Smells like dinner," said the man who came out of the shadow. Two men were chopping wood near the kitchen door. A toddling child wandered out of the door just as we approached. "Look out for these chips, Dot," cried one of the men who was chopping. A woman ran out and caught up the child. "Dear me," she cried, giving it something that was half a shake and half a hug. "You can think of more ways to get hurt." "Ugh, ugh," said the baby, imitating her father and striking her mother's knee as if she, too, were chopping.

"Ladies," said the man who had brought us, "here's some company." The woman put the baby down and tried to look delighted, but she was as dismayed as an everyday housekeeper. "We're all cluttered up," she said. "You'll have to excuse us."

I sat down on the clothesbasket, and the artist went out and sat in a swing which dangled from the big oak trees in front of the house.

"We came yesterday," said the woman, "and we're only just getting settled. There are 17 of us here now—17 grown folks, I mean. There are nine children. We're only the advance guard, you know. We're going to get things started, and the rest will gradually come. We married folks are all living in the house now, a room apiece for each family, and the single men are camping out up in the mill, but that won't last long. There's a house or two up the valley that we can use in a day or two, but in a little while we'll have our own houses. Each family can plan its own.

"I know how mine's going to look already. I've planned my kitchen to a dot. Any one that doesn't want to keep house can live in the hotel. We're going to build a hotel up there on the slope. There's a hot spring there, you know, and some of our members who don't live in the colony can come here instead of going to a summer resort. We're going to take this house away and turn all this land here into gardens. There's lots of water everywhere, you see. Oh, we'll show people how to be comfortable in a very little while."

"You have the money, then, to begin with?"

"Oh, yes; we have money, but we're not going to have it long. We don't believe in it. Of course when you start an entirely new idea it takes time to get things regulated. We won't need much money to build houses here, though. We have carpenters and paper hangers and plumbers among us, and just as soon as we get the old mill to going we will cut the lumber from our own trees, and there you are! We may have to buy a few nails from the outside world, but that's about all. In a few years we won't have to buy even that, we'll make our own nails. We're going to take care of ourselves here. There won't be any rent to pay or any gas bill to meet, and the first of the month will be the same as any other day in Altruria."

"I understand about the rent," I said. "You own this land together, all of you people, and you will all own your own houses, but the gas, now, and the coal—how about the first of the month when the coal bill comes in?"

The little woman laughed. "I know how you feel," she said. "I thought the same as you do till I studied the thing up. You're so used to money that you don't believe you can get along without it. You can. About coal, now. We've found some coal in the bed of the creek, and we're going to prospecting some day. The gas we'll make ourselves If we shouldn't find coal—well, I'd have to explain our whole system to explain that, and I guess I'll call Mr. Nelson to do that. I promised to help about dinner."

Mr. Nelson was chopping wood, but he laid down his ax and came up to the porch when he was called.

"Mr. Nelson," I said, "how are you going to get your coal and your tea and sugar and things without any money?"

"We have a store in the city," he said in the manner of one who says a thing he has said many times before, "a co-operative store. We will raise vegetables, and we are going to have chickens and eggs and fruit and by and by shoes and other things to dispose of.

"Now, a man who works in the shoeshop, say, take him for example. Suppose there are ten men in the shoeshop and you're one of them. Now, at the end of the month you own one-tenth of the shoes that have been made during the month. You get a check which calls for the value of one-tenth of those shoes. Not a bank check—we don't want to hear of banks—but the Altrurian check, which will be honored in our store. If you need coal, you'll get coal, and if you need sugar you'll get sugar. Don't you see?"

"About that one-tenth," I said. "If I should work faster or longer than the rest and make more shoes, what then? My check would have to call for more than one-tenth of the value of the shoes, of course."

"Of course not," said Mr. Nelson. "All our people are equal. We will have no rich and no poor. If we did your way and gave you more things because you worked longer than the rest, we'd be going right into anarchy again. You'd be getting rich, if not in money, then in goods, and that wouldn't do."

"But if I made better shoes than the others?"

"You would know that you were doing good work and that would make you happy."

"But I would get no more than the poorest workman of the lot?"

"No more. If the poorest workman was very poor, we'd put him at something he could do well. If he was a poor workman because he was careless or lazy, we'd put him out of Altruria."

"Then, as I understand it, ability counts for nothing in Altruria. The man who edits a paper and the man who digs drains get the same reward?"

"He gets the same reward. Only the man who digs drains works shorter hours because the work is harder."

"That is very well for the drain dig-ger," muttered the artist from the swing, "but it's a little hard on the editor."

The man who was washing his hands said: "Folks make the funniest objections to Altrurian ideas. A friend of mine was laboring with me the other day, and he said: 'Why, it's all nonsense. What if one of you fellows should want to go to Europe, and his share wasn't enough so he could, and you wouldn't let him rustle and get money enough on his own hook, what then?' I just looked at him. He had on an old hat that had been brushed until it was bald, and I knew that he didn't have $100 in the world.

"'Look here,' I said, 'why don't you go to Europe?'"

In the midst of the laugh which followed this sally the dinner bell rang.

"Come in and have some dinner with us," said a bright faced, live woman, bustling to the door. "It's kind of a picnic dinner. We've had to cook it as best we could, but I guess you'll make out."

We went into a low, old fashioned room, where the tables were set, and sat down to a good, substantial, old fashioned midday dinner. There were fried steak and turnips, and potatoes and cabbage, and pickles and coffee, and some very good jelly and preserves.

At the head of my table sat a man with a face of marked intelligence. He looked like a professional man of some sort. Next to him sat a well featured, smooth faced young man who might have been a successful real estate dealer from his appearance. The rest of the men looked like mechanics of the better class and farmers. They were all intelligent, and they all had wide open, earnest eyes, so much alike in a certain expression of candor that they all looked as if they might belong to one big family.

"Altruria is a good place for women," said the bustling little woman, pausing on her way to the kitchen for a plate of fresh bread. "We don't think washing is women's work. It's too heavy, so it's to be done by men and machinery. A woman has an equal voice with her husband in the management of affairs, and a woman who brings up a family of children gets her share of the association's property, just as her husband gets his share for making shoes."

"She doesn't get a bit more for nursing a lot of children through all their whooping cough and measles, and worrying herself sick over 'em, than her husband does for sitting still and putting good uppers on to good soles, and that," said the man who had had his say about the drain digger, "doesn't seem quite fair. But then, you see," he went on as he passed the artist a dish of preserves, "she gets her happiness out of her work. No worry, no fretting over old age coming or sickness, no envy or hate or what the anarchists call competition. Every one will have his own work to do—work that he can do—and he can go on in peace and happiness and know that he's going to grow old as the trees and the animals grow old—without an anxiety or a care. When he's past work, he can sit still and watch Altruria grow and grow until all the world shall be Altruria."

The artist and I climbed up a steep hill crowned with vines and looked out upon the world. We saw the neat little villages spread out like a map under our feet. In the distance the bay shone like a silver shield, and we knew that across the silver shield lay the great, busy, teeming city, with its misery and its wealth, its sorrows and its joys, its envy, its hate and all its uncharitableness, and we looked down into Altruria and the men trying to rub the lichens off the green old wheel of the mill, and we wondered if the old, old wheel would turn to this new music they had brought with them out of "anarchy."—San Francisco Examiner.

FLEEING FROM PULLMAN.

The Advance Guard of the Palace Car Magnate's Victims Off For Hiawatha, Kan.

If George M. Pullman had been at the Union depot at 6 o'clock last evening, he would have witnessed a scene to melt a heart of adamant. Tearful women, sad eyed children and thoughtful men were bidding, on his account, a sorrowful farewell to Chicago and friends. They were about to seek on the plains of Kansas a means of livelihood that he had denied them. Mr. Pullman might have found 123 persons—men, women and children—with all their little belongings, happy even in their tears and partings at the thought of shaking the dust of Pullman from their feet and in the thought of finding homes away from the scenes of their recent miseries. They included some of the best mechanics that ever worked in the town of Pullman.

The train bearing the party westward over the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road left the Union depot at 6:20 p. m. For an hour previous its members had been arriving and having their names enrolled for transportation. There were 34 families in the little band of emigrants. Boys, girls and babies were numerous. The pets of the family were not forgotten, and many of the bandboxes which the women carried in their arms and which were supposed to have hats in them held the family cat, which could not be left behind. Some carried pots of flowers that had adorned the windows of their high priced homes at Pullman, and others brought plain looking little plants from the garden. There were tiny terriers and big dogs, screaming parrots—some of them had been taught to curse Pullman—and terror stricken canaries with their cages wrapped in newspapers.

Half an hour before the train left the scene was a pathetic one. Friends of those who were taking their departure had come from Pullman to bid them "goodby," and the leave taking was most affecting and impressive. Promises were made of personal correspondence, and good wishes were expressed for the departing ones and better times hoped for those left behind. There were talks of pleasant reunions in the near future when others of Pullman's disgusted inhabitants should be given an opportunity to desert the place and join their friends in other expeditions to be sent out in a month or so.

Those who went away yesterday will build the shops, put up dwelling houses and make ready for the larger exodus from Pullman some time during the winter. When the last parting word was said, the members of the new colony filed into two cars reserved for them. Handkerchiefs waved from the car windows and from the depot platform, hands kissed final adieus, and the train steamed out.

Some of the departing mechanics had been earning $3.25 a day a few years ago, but were earning only 91 cents a day at the time of the strike.—Chicago Paper, Nov. 5.

Value of Labor Unions.

On the whole, I am firmly convinced that organization is necessary for the highest interests of the man. Capital is organized, and it is necessary to organize labor, not for the sake of the laborer contending against his employer, but in order that he may be able to secure a fair return for that which he has to sell—his labor.

The labor unions are of great value to workingmen for the educational influence which is promoted. They are also of immense service in enabling workingmen to take the part they should in securing fair legislation. Workingmen possess great power through the ballot, and if it were wisely used in favor of their real interests much good could be accomplished for themselves and for the community.—Rev. W. J. Nichols.

COMING ATTRACTIONS

Belasco and De Mille's Great Play, "The Charity Ball," at the Lyceum Two Nights Next Week.

Ida Van Courtland to Open a Two-Weeks' Engagement at the Temple on Monday.

Stuart Robson Will Play "She Stoops to Conquer" and "The Henrietta"—"The Passing Show."

An excellent company of artists will present Belasco and De Mille's great comedy drama, "The Charity Ball," at the Lyceum on Dec. 14 and 15, among whom are John Stapleton, who is one of Augustin Daly's famous company of players. Mr. Stapleton made his first hit and also won the regard of his austere manager by playing on startlingly short notice the difficult part of Bitter Edge, the eccentric journalist in "Love on Crutches," one of Daly's great successes. He neglected, however, to inform the surprised Daly that he had been quietly understudying the part some time on his own account. After this he played a number of leading parts with the Daly company, achieving great success in every role he undertook.

Miss Berenice Wheeler, the charming and versatile young actress, who plays the splendid role of Ann Cruger, in "The Charity Ball," made her first distinct hit with Sol Smith Russell in his World's fair engagement. Miss Wheeler is a very handsome woman, about medium height, with a trim figure; her face is regular in outline and gifted with rare power of expression; she has remarkably pretty brown eyes and almost classical features framed in soft brown hair coiled on the back of her shapely head. She has not only all the charms of personality, beauty of face, symmetry of figure, but also the inimitable loveliness of the strong and polished actress.

The Chicago Evening Post says of her: "Miss Wheeler is an actress of distinct promise, a coming artist, if not one already. She combines all the veracity of a Minnie Palmer and the finish of a Mrs. Kendall." From Elwyn A. Barron of the Chicago Inter-Ocean: "Her work was remarkable for a vivacity and zest of humor that proves her ability as a commedienne to be exceptional."

Columns could be written about the clever people brought together in this company, but want of space forbids it. The cast includes such clever people as Benjamin Howard, George Gardner, J. M. Seimpolis, Morgan Gibney, Henry F. Keenan, Miss Mamie Di Campi, Miss Helen Tracy, Miss Nellie Strickland, Miss Mabel Strickland and others. There can be no doubt of the grand reception this excellent organization will meet in our city.

IDA VAN CORTLAND.

Two Weeks' Engagement of a Competent Company at Popular Prices.

The eminent actress, Ida Van Cortland, commences a two weeks' engagement at the Temple opera house on Monday. Miss Van Cortland's reputation as a talented and delightful actress is so well established among the amusement loving people that her egagement here is looked forward to with most pleasurable anticipations. This season she appear in entirely new repertoire of plays, none of which, with one or two exceptions, have ever been presented here before and in the presentation of which she will have the assistance of the largest and most capable company of players that has ever supported her, as well as every accessory to a proper and effective staging of the plays. The present repertoire affords the widest scope for Miss Van Cortland's versatility, ranging from light comedy to the strongly emotional, and in all affording the people of Duluth wholesome and delightful entertainments at popular prices.

The company embraces Richardson Cotton, John E. Miles, George H. Howson, J. T. Myers, Frank Bouman, Albert Tavernier, Joseph E. Tavernier, Frank Jimerson, Frank Lee Miles, William R. Daly, Miss Eva N. Carr, Rose Adelle, Eugene Blythe and Annie Eggleston.

STUART ROBSON.

He Will Appear at the Lyceum Soon in Two Great Plays.

One of the greatest engagements of this theatrical season is that of Stuart Robson, the great comedian, who will appear at the Lyceum on Monday evening, Dec. 17, in "She Stoops to Conquer," and on Tuesday evening, in Bronson Howard's greatest play "The Henrietta."

The success with which Stuart Robson has met in his revival of "She Stoops to Conquer," leads one to believe that this is but the commencement of a series of revivals of the higher class of drama to be undertaken by this enterprising actor. If this surmise proves correct, it will lead to much interest being manifested by the thousands, who know how fine and thorough all of Mr. Robson's undertakings have been. A revival of an old play given by others, gives the revivalist the advantage of the time, study and labor of those who have preceded him in the same production.

One can expect the more of Mr. Robson, knowing that the part he takes in "She Stoops to Conquer" is not one a star could assume who wishes to shine preeminently in a tour, but he has produced the play for the effects to be gained by the grand old comedy more than for the mirth and praise likely to be accorded to him for his own part in the production. An actor who deals only with comedy, yet strives for that comedy which is of the highest order, even at the cost of personal gain, is an unique being on the American stage, and in these days of farce comedy, horseplay and cheap effects can be hailed as the bearer of the olive branch. Mr. Robson is an actor with an ideal. It is this which has kept him along the past aloof from the taint of farce comedy and associated him with plays produced in a manner that cannot help but elevate the stage.

"THE PASSING SHOW."

Canary & Lederer's Great Success Coming This Month.

"The Passing Show," which will be the attraction at the Lyceum Dec. 21 and 22, is called a topical extravaganza, and it brings with it a freight of miscellaneous diversions. The second act represents a perlormance at a vaudeville club, and contains several novel and unique specialties. In this act also a number of satirical pictures are presented, being in reality a burlesque of the current craze. Then comes the twenty minutes around the operas, in which vocalists in grand operas are caricatured. Selections from grand operas are intermixed with popular ditties, and some very effective and showy burlesque is indulged in at this point. The last act is a court room scene. A grand amazonian march gives the feminine contingent of the company an opportunity for an elaborate display; and for making a very spectacular climax.

The management have endowed the production with magnificent costumes, scenery and properties, and over 100 people are employed in the cast. Among the most prominent individuals in the organization are John H. Henshaw, Miss Verona Jarbou, who, by the way, will do an interesting and novel specialty with Charles J. Ross; George A. Schiller, William Cameron, E. S. Tarr, Gus Pixley, Seymour Hess, Lucy Daly, Jessie Carlisle, Madge Lessing, Sylvia Thorne, Agnes Sherwood and May Ten Broeck. Miss Daly will appear at the head of the Canary and Lederer's original New York Casino band of Pickeninnies.

THE NEW YORK THEATERS.

"Jacinta" Is Said to Be a Rather Commonplace Operetta.

"Jacinta," a "new and original Mexican comic opera," according to the programme, music by Alfred G. Robyn, book by William H. Lepere, produced at the Fifth Avenue theater, is one of those works which are pleasing enough without possessing more than the merest suggestion of merit. Louise Beaudet is the star.

"Jacinta," Mr. Lepere would probably tell us, is a satire upon the frequency of revolutions in Mexico, but the satirical features of the opera are buried beneath such an avalanche of meaningless, leading-to-nowhere dialogue that it is only able to pop its weak little head up at long intervals for the purpose of reminding everybody that, although somewhat disfigured, it is still in the ring, so to speak. Toward the end Satire makes a vigorous attempt to create an impression that he is really in earnest, but the effort is too much for him, and with a feeble squawk the heavily handicapped little fellow expires.

Mr. Robyn's music in "Jacinta" is much better than Mr. Lepere's book, though it is far from being commendable. Most of the numbers are not catchy, and the few which are come dangerously close to being trifling. His orchestration, when not of the tum-te-tum order, is exceedingly thin, and the funny music Mr. Robyn has written in very nearly the same strain as the supposed-to-be serious work. Add to these faults the fact that the score is practically in no particular characteristic except where it is aggravatingly reminiscent, and it will be seen that the musical portion of "Jacinta" is not startling.

Still, with all these drawbacks, I should not be surprised if the opera were to last through the season and give reasonable satisfaction, for, although everything is very mediocre, nothing is positively worth less. Besides the company contains some excellent people. Edwin Stevens and Harry Brown—the former in particular—make two stupid comedy parts appear passable and sometimes even quite funny. Signor Perugini, Lillian Russell's No. 8, is in better voice than he has been for years and looks and acts better than he has ever done to my recollection. Jennie Reiffarth, Aileen Burke and Cecile Eissing all do their not important roles acceptably, while Louise Beaudet, with her very light but sweet and always true little soprano voice, was charming.

Zollo de Lussan must be a very happy woman. New York refused to see anything remarkable in her voice or acting several years ago because she had only been the prima donna of that magnificent organization, the Bostonians. She went to Europe, came back here as a member of Abbey & Grau's Metropolitan Opera House company, made her debut in "Carmen" before an audience which had applauded itself hoarse over the peerless Calve and was immediately accepted as one of the great lyric artists of the world. Mlle. de Lussan knew that comparisons with Calve were inevitable, especially as her conception of the part differs widely from that of the fiery Frenchwoman. Naturally she was very nervous, but in spite of everything she conquered, and that, too, with Melba as Michaela.

I cannot vouch for the truth of it, but I heard a few days ago that Mlle. Lussan now receives exactly twice as much per night as she was paid per week when she last appeared in New York city, another evidence of what pluck and perseverance allied to natural ability can be made to accomplish.

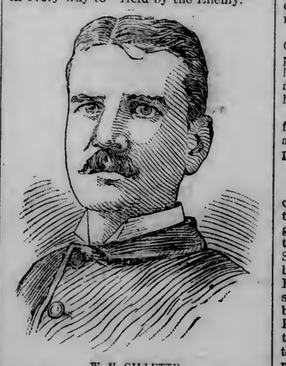

"His Excellency," the comic opera by W. S. Gilbert and Dr. Osmond Carr which is now running to phenomenal business at the Lyric theater, London, has been secured for this country by those indefatigable and usually successful theatrical speculators, Charles Frohman and Al Hayman. It will not be presented here, however, until next September, when it will be put on for a run at the Broadway theater. It is announced that Mr. George Edwardes, who owns all rights to the opera, has signed a contract with Frohman and Hayman by which he is required to bring over an entire company, with costumes, scenery, etc. This may be judicious, but a large majority of theater goers will regard it as flying in the face of fate, inasmuch as the last two experiments of a similar nature resulted in dismally disastrous failures. The companies sent over here by D'Oyley Carte with "The Gondoliers" and "Utopia, Limited," were sad in their commonplaceness, and the operas of course failed.

Mr. Edwardes is, however, a man who has much greater respect than Mr. Carte for the artistic discrimination of the American public, and it is possible that he may benefit by the recent unprofitable experiences of the man who was for so many years the skillful pilot of the Gilbert and Sullivan operettas until success had made him careless, and he finally ran his money making ship on to the reef of failure.

All theater goers of this city, and they form a not inconsiderable portion of the total population of New York, are watching with great interest and some trepidation the outcome of an experiment which Manager Charles Frohman has just inaugurated with his Empire theater stock company. Hitherto the prices have ranged from $1.50 for the best orchestra chairs down to 50 cents for a reserved seat in the gallery. Now the price of the best places has been increased to $2, and the action has been justified by the statement that the Empire company is a very expensive one, and that anyway in England $2.50 is charged for entertainments not one whit better.

Daly's is the only theater in this city which has been able to maintain with profit a tariff of $2, and I suspect that it is Mr. Frohman's pet desire to have his company supersede the doughty Augustin's in the affections of the dilettanti that has prompted this step. If Mr. Frohman's experiment should prove successful, it will give to his theater the air of exclusiveness which was once altogether and is still in great measure the prerogative of Mr. Daly. But if, on the other hand, it should prove a failure it will give his stock company a blow from which it will not soon recover. His aggregation of players is far and away the best in America, and this is one of the reasons why the result of the new departure is the cause of so much anxiety to the lovers of what is creditable in the drama.

William H. Gillette is once more in evidence as actor and author, and so far at least as this city is concerned he is again the rage. People affect to see in his "Too Much Johnson," an American adaptation of a French trifle entitled "Plantation Thomassin," all of the various merits of all of Gillette's previous work. That the farce is a mere piece of froth, that its comicalities and complications would be insufficient to deceive an intelligent child in real life, makes no difference. The piece has "caught on" at the Standard theater, where it is playing to very large business. The adapter has the principal male part, and of course does it as he has done everything he has attempted since "The Professor." But Gillette's stolen methods in farce and the utter absence of light and shade contrasts appeal to the risibilities of some persons, and they go to see him. I never could laugh at the man's inability to be funny except by one method; but, after all, "nothing succeeds like success," and he seems to be riding on the high tide once more. Gillette's greatest piece of work is, of course, "Held by the Enemy," which is the finest war play we have ever had. He has never written anything that approached it in genuine merit, but Mr. Charles Frohman is said to have a play from his pen which he considers superior in every way to "Held by the Enemy."

W. H. GILLETTE.

Wilson Barrett's latest play, "The Manxman," adapted from Hall Caine's powerful novel of the same name, appears to have scored a hit at the American theater. Naturally much of the atmosphere of the Isle of Man with which the book is redolent is lost in the drama, but this, as every one who has attempted it well knows, is unavoidable. It is impossible to condense 450 pages into the space of 50 without sacrificing something. The recounting of the numerous Manx superstitions and legends, the surmises of the characters as to what is happening somewhere else, descriptions of meteorological conditions and the detailing of the conflicting emotions of the hero on his lonely midnight walks and vigils may be and are exceedingly interesting in Mr. Caine's book, but they would be worse than tedious in the play and would besides stretch it out to an interminable length.

In a stage production almost everything must be sacrificed to action, and this in great measure is what Mr. Barrett has done, and was, in fact, obliged to do. Much of the "atmosphere" is necessarily supplied by the scenery, costumes and other accessories, and in "The Manxman" these all play prominent and creditable parts.

Whether "The Manxman" will be a box office success cannot, of course, be foretold. So far it has been, but the unconventional though only possible denouement will scarcely please those persons who like to have everybody shooted over the hero at the end of the last act. Mr. Barrett is certainly entitled to credit for his conscientiousness in this respect as well as for his excellent impersonation of Peter Quilliam, the noble and long suffering hero.

I saw Carmencita dance a few nights ago. I strayed into a resort in this city, and after watching one turn through, started toward the door. Something prompted me to take a last look at the stage. Another specialty was on, but it seemed to have made no impression on the auditors, for they had not applauded when the performer entered and were buzzing away as only music hall habitues know how to do when a worm-eaten chestnut is being served up to them.

Carmencita was dancing, and she was dancing better than she ever did in the heyday of her career. She had accumulated a little flesh, which to an aesthetic eye might have seemed superfluous, but which nevertheless added to the effectiveness of her ravishing outlines. What was wrong then? What caused the apathy? The answers are easy—nothing.

A few years ago Carmencita was the rage. She commanded and received a fabulous salary. Her pictures adorned the cigar store windows, and all sorts of articles of merchandise were made popular by being named for her. Finally the craze showed signs of abating, and Carmencita was taken on the road with a nondescript attraction. "Out of sight, out of mind," is usually the rule with New Yorkers, and so it proved in the case of Carmencita. The one time idol of the gilded youth of this city now can scarcely draw a corporal's guard.

How ephemeral is theatrical "goddesship!"

MRS. PATRICK CAMPBELL.

She Has Made a Great Hit In London In a New Play Called "John-a-dreams."

The actress most talked about in London today is probably Mrs. Patrick Campbell, although she has been on the stage a comparatively short time.

Her first attempt was as Rosalind in "As You Like It" at the Vaudeville theater, London. The Messrs. Gatti, managers of the Adelphi theater, saw her and engaged her. She played the part of Astrea, an adventuress, in "The Trumpet Call" and scored a hit as an emotional actress. She was forced to retire for some time on account of illness, but on her recovery was seen in "The White Rose." Again ill health caused her retirement for a time. Her next venture was as Clarissa Burton in "The Black Domino."

Mr. Pinero saw her act in this play, in which she took the part of an adventuress, and engaged her to create the part of Paula in "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray." In that character she held the cynical, hardened, London audiences spellbound. Even those who disapproved the character of the play could not but applaud the ability of the actress. Her recognition as a great actress was instantaneous and doubtless. Last season she undertook the part of Dulcie Larondie in "The Masqueraders" and again showed her capabilities in strong and trying situations.

Mrs. Campbell is now playing a leading role in a new play by Mr. Haddon Chambers called "John-a-dreams" at the Haymarket theater in London, Mr. Beerbohm Tree appearing in the title role. London critics describe Mrs. Campbell's work in this play as an admirable piece of acting, displaying splendid skill and high artistic merit.

Mr. Beerbohm Tree engaged Mrs. Campbell as his leading lady on his proposed American tour, but recent cables have it that Mrs. Campbell will not come, and that Mrs. Tree will be seen as her husband's leading woman.

Mrs. Campbell is related to the Howson family, two members of which—John and Emma—are well remembered by old playgoers.

Washington a Football Nursery.

Washington seems to be the nursery of college football players just now. It has turned out some of the best players on the gridironed field. Besides young Blaine there is Cockrell, the son of the United States senator from Missouri and a member of the University of Virginia eleven. Frank Butterworth, Yale's great mainstay, and the best full back on the football field, is a Washington boy. So is Phil King, who was for years the head of the Princeton team. Taussig of Cornell, the young man who is winning such a reputation as an end rusher, lives in Washington, and there are a number of others from the Capital City on the minor college elevens.

Amherst's New Football Captain.

John T. Pratt, '96, of Brooklyn has been chosen captain of Amherst's eleven for the next year. He captained the second eleven two years, and this fall played quarter back. He is a brother of H. L. Pratt, '95, captain of this year's team, and of G. D. Pratt, '93, captain of the championship team of 1892.

THE KNOCKOUT BLOWS

Last Year There Were Six Men Killed in Pugilistic Contests in the United States.

Dan Creedon Believes Fitzsimmons May Have Used His Deadly Forearm When He Killed Riordan.

Says That the Forearm Blow Should Certainly Not be Permitted in a Glove Contest.

The recent fatal blow administered by Bob Fitzsimmons to his sparring partner, Con Riordan, has revived discussion over the knockout blow. Last year six men were killed in pugilistic contests in the United States, but not one had any standing whatever in the ring. One was a colored stable boy named Emmet Burke, who had hardly recovered from an attack of pneumonia. The others were men of about the same class, and there does not seem to be a single instance on record where a healthy, well trained pugilist has been killed in the ring in recent years. Bob Fitzsimmons has knocked out over 100 men since he came to America, but Riordan is the only man he ever seriously injured, and the blow he struck Riordan was, according to his story, a light one, given in a mere exhibition bout in a theater. Fitzsimmons, using all the force at his command, knocked out Jim Hall and Dan Creedon with a single blow of his mighty fist in each instance, but Hall and Creedon were both nearly as good as ever in a week. Riordan, however, was a physical wreck owing to overindulgence in drink, and a light blow was sufficient to kill him.

All this merely goes to show that boxing is not a dangerous sport when the men who indulge in it are healthily and properly trained. If two elevens composed of untrained men should play a modern game of football, several of them would doubtless be killed, but despite the roughness of the play not a single healthily, well trained collegian has been killed on the football field in America in years.

Dan Creedon, who was knocked out by Fitzsimmons and who naturally does not love him, declares that in his belief Fitzsimmons killed Riordan by using what is called the forearm blow, a blow that is considered foul by all fair boxers. "That forearm blow is an old Australian trick," Dan Creedon said recently to a St. Louis reporter. "I have used it in fights on the turf, but it is even there considered foul, and a man is cautioned against it. It should certainly not be permitted in a glove contest, because it gives the man delivering it the advantage of striking with his bared arm. I see that Fitz says that the blow he struck Con Jones was just a tap with the back of his right hand on the jaw, not hard enough to knock his man out. Fitz strikes a wonderfully hard blow very easily. It is doubtful if he can gauge the speed of his delivery so that he can tap lightly or hit hard. You see, he has no muscles except those right over his shoulders, and it is there he gets his wonderful driving power. Now, of course, we all know that the exact blow which knocked Riordan out will never be known. Fitzsimmons might have hit Riordan squarely on the jaw or 'forearmed' him on the jaw or head without its ever being known.

"Fitz's glove might easily have gone over farther than he had intended, with the result that he would have dealt Riordan a fearful blow with the back or side of his wrist right over the jaw, a blow that would knock almost any man out. Riordan, not being in good condition, of course, was unable to recover from the shock. When Fitz knocked me out, his glove passed my head, but his wrist, solid and hard as a log, caught me on the temple. I was stunned and would have gone out then, but the bell sounded, and I staggered back into my corner. The crowd, of course, could not see that I was done for, for so quickly had Fitz delivered the foul blow that many thought I had got out of the way, seeing his gloved fist shoot past my head. That blow had done the work, and my seconds could not get me in shape for the second round, and he easily put me out.

"It seemed to me for about a week after the fight that the top of my head was coming off. No man knocked out by a punch on the jaw could have such feelings. I have talked with Jim Hall about how he got knocked out and his sensations, and they were about the same as mine. Fitz undoubtedly whipped his forearm into Hall's head. I believe he was practicing the forearm blow on Riordan and unintentionally struck him harder than he meant to."

The knockout blow, that crashing jolt of the fist which, coming suddenly against some bony section of a fighter's head, sends him into complete unconsciousness without damaging the vital functions, is generally supposed to be of quite recent invention, says the Chicago Tribune. John L. Sullivan is frequently credited with the discovery of the blow, and Colonel Monstery, a renowned teacher of boxing and athletics in his day, claims to have invented the punch and taught it to the great John L.

Sullivan undoubtedly developed and perfected the knockout blow and was the first glove fighter to put it into practical usage. Before Sullivan's time the heroes of the ring fought their great battles with bare knuckles and usually won them by wearing out the strength of a foe in a long, battering, bloody fight full of falls and wrestling clinches. John L. was the first one of the glove fighters, and Corbett and Fitzsimmons are the ideals, the perfection of the system which Sullivan brought into renown. But the knockout blow, largely accidental and seldom fought for and inflicted as part of a skillfully planned attack, was known ages ago. Virgil describes Entellus as knocking out Dares by a straight punch on the cheek bone, and Homer's hero, Epeos, put a pugilistic aspirant to sleep at the funeral games in honor of Patroclus in a similar drive. In later years the chronicles of England's prize ring tell of numerous suddenly ended battles in which a smash on the jaw terminated the encounter. When Jem Mace was defeated by Tom King, the papers of the time say that the deed was done by a straight right full in the mouth.

There was a great difference, however, between blows from the bare fist, such as Mace, King and Sayers gave, and the glove swings of the present day. The old time pug fought with the straight arm and avoided swings as dangerous to the giver. A swing with the bare fist, landing on a solid skull, usually ruins the hand and does not injure the head, while the fattened glove permits free use of the widest swings with but little danger. Again a blow from the fist cuts and bruises more than it stuns, while the glove, without bruising, extends its leverage and paralyzes the vital faculties. Practically, therefore, the question of the knockout blow may be summed up as follows: With the glove came the free arm swing, and with the swing came the knockout blow.

The physiological data of the knockout are, according to physicians, simple enough. A shock landing on a thin portion of the skull is transmitted to the medulla, the center of the nerve forces, and temporarily paralyzes those forces. A blow upon the neck may have the same effect, as large nerves, likewise connecting with the medulla, are therein located.

The point for a knockout blow varies according to the style and ideas of different fighters, but all agree that "the point of the jaw" is the place. This favored spot is not the exact tip of the chin, but at a place about one inch back along the jawbone. A line drawn diagonally down from the corner of the mouth will intersect the territory.

Dr. G. Frank Lydston of Chicago, who is something of a boxer as well as a surgeon, says: "There are several ways of accomplishing a knockout. A heavy blow on the temple, jaw, cheek or nose, if given with sufficient vigor, will produce a slight concussion of the brain and consequent insensibility. Much of the knockout is due, however, to the force with which the falling man's head and body strike the ground. The ideal knockout is a blow so delivered as immediately to transmit its force to the medulla, where the respiratory centers and the nerves governing the heart have, so to speak, their main office. A knockout is not so readily accomplished when the muscles are in a state of tension and the cervical vertebræ protected by this rigidity. But when the muscles are taken by surprise a light blow will stagger the medulla, and the man is rendered unconscious with but slight injury.

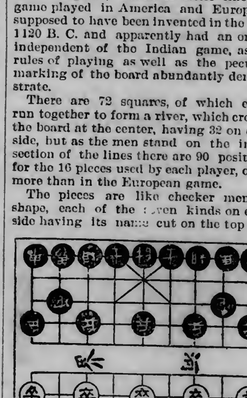

"Few fighters excepting Bob Fitzsimmons, who is said to have learned the fact and applied it, know that a tremendous knockout can be administered by a downward blow with the palm of the hand landed on the top of the frontal bone, the upper margin of the forehead. I have heard of knockouts on the jugular vein, but the jugular has nothing to do with the effect. Between the jugular and carotid artery lies the pneumogastric nerve, which controls the respiration, and a shock there reaches the medulla almost as quickly as one upon the jaw."

How the Chinese Play Chess.

Chess has been played in China, according to the Chinese, about 2,000 years. The Chinese game, which is little like the game played in America and Europe, is supposed to have been invented in the year 1120 B. C. and apparently had an origin independent of the Indian game, as its rules of playing as well as the peculiar marking of the board abundantly demonstrate.

There are 72 squares, of which eight run together to form a river, which crosses the board at the center, having 32 on each side, but as the men stand on the intersection of the lines there are 90 positions for the 16 pieces used by each player, or 26 more than in the European game.

The pieces are like checker men in shape, each of the seven kinds on each side having its name cut on the top and distinguished by its red or black colors. The four squares near each edge form the headquarters of the general, out of which he and his two secretaries cannot move. On each side of the headquarters are two elephants, two horses and two chariots, whose power are less than our bishop, knight and castle, though similar. The chariot is the most powerful piece. In front of the horses stand two cannoneers, who capture like our knight, but move like our castle. Five soldiers or pawns guard the river banks, but cannot return when once across it in pursuit of the enemy and get no higher value when they reach the last row. Each piece is put down in the point where it captured its man, except the cannoneers.

As the general cannot be taken, the object of each player is to checkmate him in his headquarters, therefore preventing his moving except into check. The want of a queen and the limited moves of the men restrict the combinations in the Chinese game more than in western chess, but it has its own elements of skill.

City Property, Buildings and Markets.

To the President and Common Council:

Your committee on city property, buildings and markets to whom was referred a resolution accepting the proposition for the purchase of the plants of the Duluth Gas and Water company, having considered the same and having taken into consideration the present condition of said plants and any depreciation that may have taken place in the value of said plants by reason of the same having been for some time in use and by reason of said plants and their machinery having become more or less obsolete by reason of subsequent improvements in the same kind of machinery since the making thereof and having further considered the difficulties and expense attending the construction of independent plants for said city, and the benefits resulting to the city from the ownership of plants already constructed with the present income therefrom and the prospective growth of its resources, recommend the adoption of the following resolution:

GEO. WM. GOLDSMITH,
R. S. LERCH,
Committee.

Resolved by the Common Council of the City of Duluth:

Whereas, on Sept. 11, A. D. 1894, the Duluth Gas and Water company, through its president, R. L. Belknap, made a proposition to a committee duly appointed by this council for such purpose to sell the gas and water plants of said company to the city of Duluth, which proposition was as follows:

Sept. 11, 1894.

On behalf of the Duluth Gas and Water company I hereby offer to sell the water and gas plants of the company to the city of Duluth for two hundred and ninety-four thousand dollars ($294,000) subject to a bonded indebtedness of eighteen hundred and twelve thousand dollars ($1,812,000) of which $295,000 are 6 per cent bonds payable May 1, 1905, and the remainder ($1,517,000) 5 per cent bonds payable Nov. 1, 1908, interest on both issues payable semi-annually on the first days of May and November in each year at the Central Trust company of New York; and subject to all real and personal property taxes for the year 1894.

If this proposition is accepted the company will pay all interest accrued upon its bonds up to the date of the transfer of the property, and shall be entitled to all revenues up to such date, whether collectible then or subsequently.

This offer is made with the understanding that the city shall take definite action within forty days hereof.

Respectfully,
R. L. BELKNAP,
President.

And whereas, subsequently and on Sept. 12, A. D. 1894, said company at the request of said committee, modified and explained its said proposition as follows:

"Sept. 12, 1894.

"Referring to my letter of yesterday, addressed to the committee, the 'water and gas plants' of the company include what is known as the Lakeside plant, and also the real estate connected with plants, more particularly that occupied by the old reservoir on West First street, by the new reservoir on New York avenue by the old gas works on East First street, by the new gas works on Garfield avenue and by the pump house at the foot of New York avenue, also site for high service reservoir at Fourth avenue east and Fifteenth street and site for pumping station at Lakeside, east of Lester river.

"The ground occupied by the present pumping station at Lakeside does not belong to the company but is loaned by the Lakeside Land company for temporary use.

"At your request I hereby amend the clause referring to the time within which the city shall take definite action so that it shall read 'fifty days' instead of 'forty days.'

Yours respectfully,
R. L. BELKNAP,
President."

And whereas, at a special election called for such purpose, the voters of this city duly authorized this council to issue water and light bonds to an amount sufficient to purchase said gas and water plants on the terms stated in said proposition, and duly authorized said council to expend the proceeds of said bonds in the purchase of said gas and water plants.

And whereas, said company has since informed this council that there was an error in the statement of the amount of its 5 per cent bonds now outstanding, there being $1,512,000 instead of $1,517,000, making the total outstanding bonded indebtedness of said company eighteen hundred and eight thousand dollars ($1,808,000).

Now, therefore, the common council of the city of Duluth in behalf of said city, hereby accepts the said proposition hereinabove set forth, excepting that the total bonded indebtedness shall not exceed $1,804,000, and hereby agrees to purchase the said gas and water plants upon the following conditions, to-wit:

That said company shall convey and transfer to the city of Duluth all of its property of every nature, real and personal and mixed, in said city, including all the property of every nature, real, personal and mixed, of the Lakeside Light and Water company, and including all books, charts, maps, profiles and other matters of record used in connection with the existing plants or necessary for its future operation, but excepting all other books, book accounts and moneys on hand belonging to both of said companies and shall release, convey and surrender to the city of Duluth all rights, privileges and franchises heretofore granted to said company by said city of Duluth or by the former village of Duluth, or by the former village of West Duluth, or by the former village or city of Lakeside, including all rights, privileges and franchises granted to said company by the village of Duluth and the city of Duluth under and by virtue of ordinance xxxiii of the village of Duluth, passed March 30, 1883, and all ordinances amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto, whether passed by said village of Duluth or the city of Duluth, and including all rights, privileges and franchises granted by the village of Lakeside or the city of Lakeside or by the city of Duluth to the Lakeside Light and Water company and including all rights, privileges and franchise granted to said companies in said city of Duluth by the legislature of the state of Minnesota.

That said Duluth Gas and Water company shall pay to the city of Duluth all claims and demands which said city may have against said company or its property by reason of local improvement, whether the same have been assessed and confirmed and have become a lien or not.

That said amount of two hundred and ninety-four thousand ($294,000) dollars shall be paid out of the proceeds of the bonds so authorized to be issued after the common council of the city of Duluth shall have received and accepted bids for at least five hundred and ninety-four thousand ($594,000) dollars of the bonds so authorized to be issued at said election said last mentioned amount to include three hundred thousand ($300,000) dollars of the additional bonds for the purpose of extending and improving said plant, all of said bonds to bear interest at the rate of four (4) per cent per annum; and said company shall forthwith be paid after the acceptance of such bids out of the first moneys received from the sale of such bonds; and said bonds to said amount of five hundred and ninety-four thousand dollars shall be authorized to be issued and advertised to be sold on or before Dec. 15, 1894.

That upon the payment of said sum of two hundred and ninety-four thousand ($294,000) dollars, said company shall make, execute and deliver to the city of Duluth such deeds, assignments and other papers, with covenants of general warranty, as may be necessary to convey and transfer to the said city all of said property including all rights, privileges and franchises granted to said company, as aforesaid, and all rights, privileges and franchises granted to the Lakeside Light and Water company as aforesaid.

That said Duluth Gas and Water company shall forthwith furnish to the city attorney of the city of Duluth all abstracts, records and other papers and any other information which he may demand including affidavits of the officers and agents of said company, necessary to show to the satisfaction of said city attorney that the title of all of said property so proposed to be conveyed is complete and perfect in said Duluth Gas and Water company, free and clear of all incumbrances, liens and charges of every nature, except said bonds, to said amount of one million, eight hundred and eight thousand (1,808,000) dollars, and the real and personal property taxes for the year 1894, and that the proper officers of said company have been duly authorized to sell, convey and transfer said property to the city of Duluth.

That at the time of the transfer and conveyance of said property mutual releases be executed by said city and said company, each to the other, of all claims and demands of every name and nature (except the then current hydrant rentals and water and gas bills) growing out of all past transactions between said city and said company, and including any and all claims which the said company may have against said city of Duluth by reason of guarantees for extensions of water mains, whether said extensions were made pursuant to ordinance passed by the city of Duluth or by the city and village of Lakeside, but not including any claims or demands which may arise to either party out of any transaction connected with the purchase and sale provided for by this resolution.

That said Duluth Gas and Water company shall file with the city clerk an acceptance to the conditions herein contained, within twenty (20) days from the passage of this resolution.

Section 4. The said telegraph company shall save the said city of Duluth harmless from any and all liability for loss or damage to life, person or property caused by the construction, operation or repair of said conduit.

DUNDER WAS UNMOVED

The Sergeant Vainly Tried to Touch Carl's Feelings by Referring to a Recent Bereavement.

Mr. Dunder Was Unmoved and Sprung Some More Jokes on the Long Suffering Sergeant.

The Editor of the Arizona Kicker Sensibly Makes Up His Mind to Back Water.

[Copyright, 1894, by Charles B. Lewis.]

"Any of the family dead?" asked the fat police sergeant as he looked up from his blotter the other afternoon and saw Carl Dunder before him.

"Not by some long shots!" exclaimed Mr. Dunder in reply. "Dot family vhas werry mooch alive und vhell, und eaferybody vhas laughing aboudt 20 hours a day."

"What do they find to laugh at?" queried the sergeant as he heaved a sigh and turned his face to the alley window.

"Vhy, at my almanac—ha! ha! ha!—of course. I vhas going by, you know, und I drop in to read you a few shokes from dot almanac."

"Have you got an almanac?"

"Say, sergeant, I comes down here more ash ten times und tells you I haf inwented an almanac. She vhas a comic almanac. She vhas full of shokes und sadness und advertisements, und eaferybody vhas wild to get a copy. It vhas werry strange dot you doan' remember."

"You see, I lost my father a few years ago, and anything sad brings up all the past," explained the sergeant as he brushed his left eye with a corner of his handkerchief.

"So did I lose my fadder a few years ago, but dot makes no deeference aboudt some fun. I vhill now read some shokes to you."

"Please don't, Mr. Dunder. I told you that my father"—

"Your fadder vhas deadt und can't be killed again! Now listen:

"What vhas der deeference between a giraffe und a swan? It vhas necks to nottings.

"Vhy vhas a garden seed like your mother-in-law? Because she vhas no good until placed beneath der sod.

"When vhas a ship not a ship? When she vhas a float.

"What vhas der deeference between a soldier und a woman? One faces der bullets, und der odder powders der face.

"What vhas der deeference between a conductor und a schoolteacher? One minds der train, und der odder trains der mind und licks more ash ten pupils a day.

"DOT MAN VHAS TECKLED."

"Sergeant," said Mr. Dunder after clapping his hands to his sides and indulging in a burst of laughter, "you vhill please oxcuse me, but I can't help her. My boy Shake und me got oop dose shokes in two days. Vhen I reads 'em to der oldt woman, she falls on der lounge und laughs till I haf to throw ice water oafer her."

"What was she laughing at?" asked the sergeant as he continued to look out of the window.

"At der shokes, of course. Nobody would laugh at some sadt things. You know dot man vhat makes sausages on der corner? Vhell, he lost his wife und three shildrens two months ago und goes aboudt feeling like some grafeyards. I vhas sorry for him, und vhen I get dose shokes done I calls him in und reads 'em off."

"And did he suffer much in his last moments?"

"Suffer! Vhell, I should shmile dot he haf der werry best time in all his life. He shed tears vhen I read dot first shoke, because he beliefs it vhas sadt, but pooty soon he begins to shmile und look happy, und vhen I vhas through dot man vhas so teckled he vhas almost in a fit. I haf to rub his ears und neck, und Shake haf to pull his leg, und he hollers so loud dot a policeman raps on der sidewalk und says he vhill break in der door und arrest somepody. Vhas you shmiling, sergeant?"

"No. I wish you hadn't come in this morning. I had forgotten my sorrows for the time being, but you have recalled them."

"I vhill now read you nine more of dose shokes, und if I can't make you laugh —ha, ha, ha!—I vhill"—

"I am very busy, Mr. Dunder."

"So vhas I, but it vhas my dooty to safe you if I can. Here vhas an adwertisement aboudt a summer hotel. If you like to weep oafer him, I can't help it. Listen:

"Dis popular resort vhas 1,980 feet nearer heafen dan any place on der seashore. Our malaria vhas secured by special arrangement mit der manufacturers und vhas second to none. Last year we doan' take any shildrens or dogs, but dis season we haf built a veranda 15,000 feet long, und we shall haf some happiness aroundt at half price. By special arrangements made mit no other hotel in dis locality der inwigorating breezes inwigorate you on all sides of der house der same und vhas kept oop all day Sunday mitout extra expense. Dot scenery"—

The sergeant rose, wiped his eyes, blew his nose and retired to the captain's room and shut and locked the door. Mr. Dunder stood and looked at the door for a con- pen to be a busy day with the boys. We are naturally a good natured critter and wish to avoid acrimonious discussion of unpleasant subjects. Therefore when the boys got ready to ask leading questions and demand truthful answers we were willing to meet them half way. The interview was somewhat prolonged, and the rope chafed our neck, but we have a distinct recollection of admitting to the following:

That we knew more about pounding sand than editing a newspaper.

That the circulation of THE KICKER was only half that of our esteemed contemporary.

That we wanted to get out of journalism and become a cow puncher.

That we never ought to have been mayor of the town.

That we were a liar, a duffer and a discredit to the territory.

We didn't stop to argue or discuss, but answered all questions promptly and cheerfully and in a way to afford the most satisfaction. When it was suggested that we sing a song, we had one ready, and when one of the crowd kicked us and demanded a jig we shuffled away in a manner to elicit applause. When they got ready to pull on the rope, we stood on tiptoe to give them all the leverage possible, and when our opinion was demanded we answered that we felt we ought to be hung twice over. What saved us was the arrival of Major Jones, owner of the ranch, who had always been one of our warmest friends. The boys let go rather grudgingly, though realizing they had the best of us. They had the drop on us, and we wilted.

Within the last two days at least 50 people have called at THE KICKER office to ask why we didn't deny the rumors in circulation affecting our reputation. We simply couldn't. The boys got the call on us, and we had no show. When the editor of an Arizona newspaper is idiot enough to start off on a lame mule and leave his guns behind, he shouldn't complain of consequences, and we propose to saw wood and keep quiet.

Cashing a Check.

I had a Chicago check on a bank in one of the territorial small towns, and one day I walked in on the banker and presented it to be cashed.

"Have to be identified," he said as he handed it back.

"But I know no one here."

"Can't cash it unless you are identified."

"I have a dozen letters here addressed to me."

"No good.

"My name is on the waybill of the stage route."

"That's nothing."

"I have called on the editor of The Bugle and introduced myself."

"But you might have given him a false name. Business is business, sir, and you will have to be identified before I can cash that check."

I went away wondering how long $8 would last me in that town, and how I could get out of it without the money on that check, when I bumped against a man on the street who whipped out a gun and fired a bullet through my cap before I could apologize. When I had begged his pardon, he put up his weapon and extended his hand and said:

"It's all right if ye didn't mean it. Mebbe ye was so busy ye didn't see me."

"That's about it. I am in trouble."

"Bin robbed or anything?"

"No. I have a check on the bank and can't get the money."

"Fur why?"

"Because no one here knows me."

"Check is all right, eh?"

"Good as gold."

"And Jim Taylor won't cash it bekase nobody knows ye?"

"No."

"Humph! Come along with me. What did ye say yer name was?"

I told him, and he took my arm and walked me back to the bank. As we entered he said to the man behind the counter:

"Jim, I've cum yere to identify this feller."

"You know him, do you?"

"Ye jest bet I do!"

"You know him to be the person named on the check?"

"Exactly, Jim Taylor!"

"How do you know it? Ten minutes ago he told me he didn't know a soul in this town."

"How do I know it?" repeated the man as he lifted the cap off my head. "I know it bekase thar's my bullet hole, which ar' jest two inches too high fur a plumb shot, and if thar's a critter in this town who wants to dispute a bullet hole made by my gun one or t'other of us ar' gwine to be planted afore sundown! He's the feller, and I knows it, and ye shell out and quit puttin on New York style!"

The banker looked tired and hadn't a word to say as he counted me out $95, but when we reached the sidewalk the shooter held out for a handshake and cheerfully exclaimed:

"I thought that bullet hole would fetch him to time! If ye want anythin else in this town, ye jest take off yer cap and p'int at it, and the critter who goes back on ye has got to git the drop on me, or he'll be chawed up to dog meat in the flop of a steer's tail!" M. QUAD.

He Had Quit Betting.

A game of billiards was attracting considerable interest in the barroom of a western hotel. Grouped about were a number of spectators watching the progress of the game.

"I'll bet you a fiver that Christmas wins," remarked an old timer to a newcomer.

"No, I guess not," was the answer.

"I'll bet you $20 to $5 that the game is his."

"No, I guess not," repeated the newcomer, dissenting.

"I'll bet you $50 to $1, then," was the emphatic retort. "Will you take that?"

"Can't do it," replied the stranger. "I never bet."

"Missionary or parson perhaps?" suggested the old timer, with a grunt.

"Oh, no," was the answer. "I have simply sworn off. I bet $10 a month ago that I could get a billiard ball in my mouth."

"Lost your bet, of course. Any fool would."

"Oh, no! I won the bet, but it cost me $15 to have my front teeth extracted to get the ball out. Since then I have quit betting."—New York Herald.

"See heah, Sam, what's de matter wid yo'?"

"Pusson," replied the porter as he glared at the man before him, "was yo' speakin to me?"

"Of co'se."

He turned to me with a smile of victory on his face, and for a minute I also considered the drayman as having been thoroughly squelched. He had something in reserve, however, and after catching his breath and bracing up he said:

"Scuse me, Mistah Hawkins, fur callin yo' Sam."

"Yes, sah."

"Also scuse me fur axin yo' fur a match."

"You ar' scused, sah."

While I was talking to the colored porter at the depot a negro drayman drove up and called to him while yet 30 feet away for a match to light his pipe. No attention was paid to his request, and he came slouching down the platform to query:

"Say, Sam, didn't yo' dun h'ar me axin yo' fur a match?"

ATTEMPTED MURDER.—The relations between the mayor of this town (who is ourself) and the cowboys over on Big 6 ranch have been for the past year what is termed strained. The boys want to ride up and down the streets shooting at pipes and cigars and hats and have the doors of all saloons made high enough and wide enough to take in a horse and rider, and it is our official duty to discourage them. We have wounded three of the crowd and had most of the others in limbo, but they hang on with a perseverance worthy of a better cause. The other day business called us over to Big Bend. Being in a hurry to start, we forgot our guns and rode away on a mule belonging to our horse editor. We were seven miles out of town and had no thought of the Big 6 boys when a gang of them out rounding up stray stock broke cover with a yell and charged us. Our mule made a run of 20 rods and then bucked us out of the saddle, and a moment later we were in the hands of the Philistines. We have always given the Big 6 boys credit for being hustlers, and it was no surprise to us that they had a rope around our neck and a limb over our head inside of 60 seconds. The spot was just beyond Indian creek, and the 40 or 50 trees growing there offer exceptional facilities for lynching bees. We expected to be pulled up at once, but it didn't han-

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Dec. 9. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Helps and hindrances to a Christian life.—Luke viii, 4-15.

No one can attempt to live a Christian life without soon discovering that there are many things to help him and that also there are things that hinder him in such a cause. The topical reference emphasizes the hindrances rather than helps, as it contains simply the familiar parable of the sower, in which in three cases out of four the seed that was sown did not bring forth as it ought. In the parable the hindrances naturally, by the order of the illustration, came first and must thus be considered.

1. The hindrances to a Christian life. The first hindrance mentioned by Christ is the devil. The seed is sown. It falls upon the heart, but no sooner has it fallen than satan comes along and carries it away, as the birds carry off the seed that falls upon the beaten paths. It is a solemn fact to us that there is a personal agent of evil in the world, powerful, wise and tactful, whose sole purpose is to win us from God and the truth, and we should have constantly "on the whole armor of God that we may withstand the wiles of the devil." The second hindrance is temptation. In another instance the seed sown falls upon the heart and is well received, even with joy and gladness, but there is no constancy of character, and when temptation comes the lip of joy is lost. The desire for evil within us is a great hindrance to our Christian lives, and we should pray to God for constancy of character, for the power to overcome temptation. The third hindrance is the world — its cares, its riches and its pleasure. These choke out the impressions made as the thorns choke out the seed that grows up.

In all of these cases we can see that the great trouble is in the heart, or the ground. The seed is all right. The sower is all right. It is the heart that is all wrong, and therefore to overcome these hindrances the heart must be right. The ground must always be in good condition before we can expect any kind of a crop. But who alone can make the heart right? God. And therefore the greatest help needed is to have God change the heart and dwell in the heart, and the life will be successful and fruitful. If we are overcome by satan, led astray by temptation, allured by the cares and riches and pleasures of the world, what we need is to have God "create in us clean hearts and renew a right spirit within us."

Friends In Joy and Sorrow.

You may sometimes see in a garden two flowers side by side, one of which opens its petals as the sun goes down, and the other at the same time closes them, to open them again after sunrise. The one has sympathy with the shade of evening, the other with the brightness of noonday. So there are some friends to whom we more naturally turn for sympathy in joy, and others to whom we feel we can go in sorrow. But we must not say that the former are unfeeling and the others morbid. The flowers referred to were so created by God, and the different dispositions of men were also his gift. "There are diversities of operations, but the same Lord."—New York Observer.

Missionary Extension.

The movement along missionary extension lines has advanced in the last three months as it never has before. The most conspicuous success has followed the efforts of the leaders of the missionary extension course in Chicago. Hundreds of doors are now open that were closed before, and missionary enthusiasm is stimulating missionary giving. More and more our young people are becoming informed about their duties at home and abroad to those less fortunate than themselves and are giving generously of their income, many giving not less than one-tenth.—Secretary Baer.

God Wants First Place.

A heart divided between God and mammon is in reality not divided, but belongs to the world. It may appear to be divided, but every heart has one and but one supreme object of regard. If that object is not God, it is some temporal object. God never shares the heart of any person with the world. He accepts only the supreme place.—National Presbyterian.

New Form of Endeavor Work.

The Christian Endeavor union of Cleveland has arranged for a new form of work in its "brotherhood committee." This committee will work in connection with the Y. M. C. A. Representatives of each society will attend the Y. M. C. A. Sabbath afternoon services, become acquainted with the converts and offer them a church home.—Exchange.

Five Minutes With Christ.

Five minutes spent in the companionship of Christ every morning—aye, two minutes, if it is face to face and heart to heart—will change the whole day, will make every thought and feeling different, will enable you to do things for His sake that you would not have done for your own sake or for any one's sake.—Drummond.

Faith and Patience.

Keep on a sowing.
God will cause the seeds to grow
Faster than your knowing.
Nothing e'er is sown in vain
If, His voice obeying,
You look upward for the rain
And falter not in praying.

Keep on praying.
In the brightest, darkest day
Still His voice obeying,
Never from the gates of prayer
Turn with doubting sorrow,
For the One who standeth there
May answer you tomorrow.

Best Paper, Best Advertising!

When a contractor is in a hurry to drive a long plank down the side of a new sewer, he sets two men at it. Each with a big maul hits it alternate blows as often and as hard as he can. The strokes come as even as a pendulum swings.

One man and one maul would drive the plank down, but it would take longer.

The bigger the maul, the quicker and easier he will do the work.

Two men, or a dozen, with tack hammers would not get the plank driven in a hundred years.

There's a parallel to this in advertising. If you're in a hurry to drive your business, use two papers and make the advertising maul---the space as big as possible.

If you haven't money enough to buy two big mauls, buy only one---use only one paper, the best, and make the space big enough to be felt.

You'll do more good with one maul than with half a dozen tack hammers. You'll get more benefit from a regular advertisement, of sufficient size, in a paper like The Evening Herald than you will from half a dozen smaller ads in weaker papers.

If you only have one ad, have it right. You don't believe in cutting your store in two, do you?

You don't establish a branch until you feel sure you are doing all you can in the main store.

Be sure you are doing enough in the best paper before you think of adding another.

SOCIAL AND MUSICAL

Winter Club Monthly Entertainment on Dec. 18, With an Operetta by Some of the Members.

Reception on Thursday Evening by Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Day.

Charity Ball at the Spalding on Dec. 26, by the National Council of Jewish Women.

Society is fairly active just now, but more in the way of informal and small entertainments than in elaborate affairs. The preparations for Christmas are occupying much time and the ladies are interesting themselves in church bazars and work of that kind. There was one elaborate affair this week, the reception and dancing party Thursday evening by Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Day.

The Winter club will have its regular monthly entertainment on Tuesday evening, Dec. 18. An operetta is to be given by the members of the club, after which there will be dancing. A fancy dress party is being talked of for New Year's night and will undoubtedly be given if the interest already manifested does not die out.

The charity ball by the National Council for Duluth and West Superior of Jewish Women, on Wednesday evening, Dec. 26, at the Spalding, is an event which is being considerably talked about and will be a fine social affair.

A DELIGHTFUL AFFAIR.

A reception and dancing party was given on Thursday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Smith and Dr. and Mrs. D. H. Day, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Smith, 1231 East Superior street. The parlors were decorated with smilax and roses and looked very pretty. The reception continued from 9 to 10 o'clock after which there was dancing. Hoare's orchestra played. The refreshment table was in charge of Mrs. A. L. Ordean and Mrs. S. F. Wadhams. Among those present were:

THE CHARITY BALL.

Fine Social Affair Promised by the National Council of Jewish Ladies.

The charity ball to be given on Dec. 26 at the Spalding by the National Council for Duluth and West Superior of Jewish Women will be an event of no small importance. The progress made by the committee on arrangements is highly satisfactory. The ladies in the sale of tickets have met with gratifying success. Everything indicates that the occasion will be a memorable one. It is the first ball of the kind ever held in Duluth by the Jewish ladies and unusual interest will attach to it for that reason. Hoare's orchestra will play and arrangements may be made for a mandolin orchestra to play promenade selections between dances. This is a custom which is growing in favor in Eastern society circles.

THE SUPREME COURT

Twelve Decisions Are Handed Down by Judge Mitchell in Appeals From the District Courts.

After a Twelve Years' Fight Jonas Guilford Wins Against the Western Union Telegraph Company.

The County Seat Removal Case of Dodge County Results in Favor of Mantorville's Claims.

In the supreme court yesterday Judge Mitchell handed down twelve decisions. The most important case is that of Jonas Guilford vs. the Western Union Telegraph company. This is a somewhat remarkable case and involves the jurisdiction of the courts of this state over corporations of other states. The plaintiff in this case, Jonas Guilford, was the son of Asa Guilford, who died in 1882. At the time of his death he was the owner of $35,000 worth of the stock of the Western Union Telegraph company, but the stock certificates could not be found, neither have they been presented to the defendant company for transfer or to secure the payment of dividends.

Jonas Guilford brought suit to compel the Western Union company to reissue the certificates of stock, and in its answer the defendant set up the provision that no stock that had been lost or stolen could be reissued unless a bond for double the amount was furnished the company. Jonas was unable to furnish this bond and the supreme court has already twice ruled against him on the ground that the courts of this state have no jurisdiction over a foreign corporation.

Now, after a lapse of twelve years the court assumes such jurisdiction and directs the company to reissue the stock without the indemnity bond being furnished by Jonas and upon failure to so issue the stock, judgment for the amount claimed will be entered against the company. The court took the ground that the stock certificates must have been lost, as no other claim had been made during the twelve years.

County Seat Removal Case.

Slingerland vs. Morton—This case is known as the county seat removal case of Dodge county, and the decision is upon the right of a signer of a petition for the removal of a county seat to withdraw his name at any time before the board of county commissioners has completed its action in the matter. After the petition for the removal of the county seat from Mantorville to Dodge Center had been filed with the county auditor, 194 of the signers asked to have their names struck from the petition.

This the county auditor refused to do, and, as the striking off of the names would have brought the number below the 60 per cent required by law, the decision of the court is to the effect to continue the county seat at Mantorville and to defeat the rival provision. Although the decision is technically in favor of the respondent, it in reality defeats him and the removal of the county seat to Dodge Center, which he had favored.

Life Insurance Case.

Maud Schultz et al, respondents, vs. the Citizens Mutual Life Insurance company, appellant. Order affirmed. The plaintiffs in this case are the widow and children (heirs at law) of August C. Schultz, who died in July, 1892. The defendant company is a life insurance company doing business on the assessment plan, and the plaintiff sued to recover on a policy of $2000 on the life of the deceased. The lower court entered a judgment in favor of defendant and the order is affirmed by the supreme court.

In the opinion accompanying the syllabus, the court says: "It would certainly be a great boon to the public if there could be devised a legal contract and rules of all such associations couched in clear, concise and intelligible language and to or from which the associations could neither add nor subtract."

A Dispute Over Rent.

Twin City Stock Yards company, respondent, vs. Cunningham & Haas, appellants. Order affirmed. A cross suit arose over the payment of office rent, it having been claimed in a counter claim that the firm Cunningham & Haas in consideration of removing their place of business to the defendants stock yards should pay a specified monthly rent, which should be returned to them when they vacated the yards. The firm removed from the stock yards and vacated the office for which they had paid no rent. The stock yards company sued to recover and judgment was rendered against the firm, which is again defeated in the present action.

St. Paul and Minneapolis Trust company assignee of the Farmers' and Mechanics' State bank, insolvent, appellant, vs. Robert J. Howell & Co., respondents. Order affirmed.

In the matter of the assignment of Frank Nicolin, insolvent, Theodore Welland (present assignee), respondent, vs. Gerhard Hilders, assignee (removed by the court), appellant. Order affirmed.

Henry Schmidt, appellant, vs. Louis N. Gayner, respondent. Judgment affirmed.

Specimen Cases.

S. H. Clifford, New Cassel, Wis., was troubled with neuralgia and rheumatism, his stomach was disordered, his liver was affected to an alarming degree, appetite fell away, and he was terribly reduced in flesh and strength. Three bottles of Electric Bitters cured him.

Edward Shepherd, Harrisburg, Ill., had a running sore on his leg of eight years standing. Used three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes of Bucklin's Arnica Salve, and his leg is sound and well. John Speaker, Catawba, Ohio, had five large fever sores on his leg, doctors said he was incurable. One bottle of Electric Bitters and one box of Bucklin's Arnica Salve cured him entirely. Sold at Max Wirth's drug store.
